WOMAN IN CASE TO AID STILLMAN IN BALM SUIT

No Love for Mate in Years, She Says.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Marjorie Rochefort will come to the aid of James A. Stillman, the former banker, if her French-Canadian husband, Luc Rochefort, continues the action for alienation of affections which he has begun against Mr. Stillman, it was learned today.

Mr. Stillman's counsel, Malcolm Sumner, announced that Mrs. Rochefort is willing to testify on behalf of the former banker if her husband persists in pressing the suit, the papers in which have not yet been filed, though the summons and complaint have been served on the defendants. Her attitude, the lawyer said, is that she now wants to do what she can in fairness to Mr. Stillman.

Doubts if Suit Will Be Filed.

Mr. Sumner revealed that he had in his possession an affidavit signed by Mrs. Rochefort showing that she has been estranged from her husband for seven years.

"We do not consider this action worth a 5 cent piece in confederate money," the lawyer asserted, and added that he did not believe the suit would be filed. At the office of Rochefort's attorney, Alfred L. Becker, however, it was said that the suit will be filed on Monday.

"Mr. Stillman's attitude in this matter is simple," Mr. Sumner asserted. "It is not a matter of dollars and cents with him, but he does not purpose to be intimidated and coerced into paying a sum of money. He hopes that by fighting this action he will be doing his bit to protect men in circumstances similar to his."

Serves Alienation Papers.

Rochefort is contemplating two separate actions against Mr. Stillman—one charging that he alienated the affections of his wife and the other charging him with libel totaling about $1,000,000.

The summons and complaint in the alienation suit have been served, but the contemplated libel suit has not reached that stage.

Mr. Stillman is in Havana, where he has a home, but he has announced through his counsel that he will fight both actions "to the limit" if and when they are filed. The former banker charges that he is being made the victim of a conspiracy, and Mr. Sumner has filed on his behalf in the Supreme court in Brooklyn an affidavit charging that both actions were but a deliberate attempt to extort money from him and to intimidate him by stressing the attendant publicity of the projected actions.

Calls Husband's Action Outrage.

Mrs. Rochefort was located today and talked freely of the case. She is quoted as having said:

"I think that my husband's lawsuit is an outrage. I lost whatever love I had for him years ago. Our life together was just one separation after another.

"In the spring of 1931, after another one of those separations, Luc was out of work and ill. Out of the goodness of my heart I took him in.

"We both slept under the same roof, but there was no closer relationship between us. There hasn't been for more than seven years.

"Mr. Stillman can count on me if he needs me to tell the truth in this case. And believe me, the story I will tell won't be of any help to Luc Rochefort."

Rochefort, twice candidate for mayor of Montreal, also was found by interviewers, and he seemed more interested in an invention for a paper umbrella, upon which he is working, than in his suits against Mr. Stillman.

"I ought to make a million or more out of this paper umbrella," he said. And after that he talked of the Stillman case.

"I loved my wife," he is quoted as having said. "Well, yes, we did separate a lot, but I always came back. Haven't seen her for a year now, though, since she went to Havana with Stillman.

Son Dies in Infancy.

"We were in love, all right. We had a son, but he died in infancy."

Of the affidavit made by Astrid Haug, his wife's friend who introduced Stillman to Mrs. Rochefort, he said:

"There's no truth to what she says about me in that affidavit. Why, I only met her two or three times. I met her while my wife and I were parated. Then a year later she

LIGHTS CANDLES, THEN ENDS HIS LIFE WITH GUN

After writing a letter to the police, in which he asserted that he had been driven to distraction by an extortioner, William Pendick, 40 years old, lighted two candles in the living room of his home at 701 Milwaukee avenue last night and ended his life by shooting himself in the head.

In the letter, a long and rambling document, Pendick said that a man known as Joe Clark, with half a dozen aliases, had chased him with a gun recently and had threatened to rob him even of his clothing. He added that his tormentor was a dealer in stolen goods and had been sought by the police for a robbery recently.

"God help me for what I have suffered and whatever I may do. This is all Joe Clark's fault. He drove me to it," the letter ended.

Pendick wrote also that he was worried because a couple who owed him $3,500 had refused payment.

70 MILE GALE WHIPS CHICAGO; MERCURY SKIDS

A west-southwest gale, reaching its maximum intensity in gusts of 70 miles an hour, swept Chicagoland yesterday while the temperature dropped from a maximum of 57 degrees at 12:15 a. m. to the lower thirties in the late afternoon. The 57 degree reading was two degrees above the previous record high for Jan. 19, set in 1907.

The wind blew down signs and some trees, piled up white capped waves in the Chicago river and made the going difficult for pedestrians. The official maximum velocity for a sustained wind of five minutes' duration was only 35 miles an hour, at about 8:30 a. m., but a 59 mile gust was recorded at the University of Chicago observatory 30 minutes later. The anemometer in Tribune Tower registered 70 mile gusts in the afternoon.

FLAMES SWEEP OLD CHURCH IN MORGAN PARK

Damage estimated at between $25,000 and $30,000 was caused late last night and early today by a fire which destroyed the interior of the Morgan Park Presbyterian church, 111th street and Longwood drive. The flames spread rapidly and almost the entire structure was burning when firemen arrived. A crowd of several hundred gathered to watch the fight to bring the fire under control.

C. R. Hood, a member of the church board of trustees, said that the building had been erected before Morgan Park was annexed to Chicago and that it was regarded as a landmark. It was more than forty years old. The Rev. Leason Sharpe is pastor of the church.

Queen of Night Clubs Dies at Home of Peer

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Kate Meyrick, notorious "night club queen," died tonight of influenza at the residence of her son-in-law, the earl of Kinnoull, in London.

INMATE OF PRISONS.

Mrs. Meyrick, the mother-in-law of two peers, several times served jail sentences on charges connected with her activities as a professional entertainer. In May, 1931, the occasion of her fourth sentence, she received seven months at hard labor and was fined $150 for selling liquor at her "46 club" without a license and for permitting unlawful gambling there.

Her second son-in-law of the peerage is Lord de Clifford.

Mrs. Meyrick was believed to have died wealthy as a result of running successive clubs to which the gilded youth of London flocked for years.

Her offenses, for which she paid many thousands of pounds in fines besides imprisonment, were mainly the selling of intoxicants at prohibited hours and otherwise illegally, but in 1929 she was convicted of bribery and conspiracy, for which she received a sentence of 15 months at hard labor.

Was Prosecuted in 1932.

Repeated penalties did not deter her and always she renewed her lawbreaking, her last prosecution being in May, 1932, for selling intoxicants without a license.

She charged huge prices in her club for liquors, the quality of which was in nowise unimpeachable, but she never lacked customers. Her genial manner attracted them.

With the wealth thus acquired she was able to spend lavishly on the training of her children. Her son was educated at Harrow, one of the foremost aristocratic schools, and her two daughters also attended expensive schools, afterward going to Cambridge university.

Daughters Wed Peers.

Mrs. Meyrick's elder daughter, Dorothy, was married in 1926 to Baron Edward de Clifford. The baron was 19 years old at the time, but swore he was 22 at the license bureau. He was fined $250, but the marriage was not annulled. In 1928, May Meyrick was married to the earl of Kinnoull.

Nancy, another daughter, at one time was reported engaged to marry Charlie S. Fitzroy, Lord Southampton's heir, but she later denied the engagement.

Last year Mrs. Meyrick gave her promise never to run another club, and she kept it.

SHOOTS AT WIFE IN DRUNKEN RAGE AND WOUNDS BOY

During a drunken rage last night August Vandenbempt, 58 years old, 2838 North California avenue, shot at his wife and wounded a 14 year old boy across the street, and then shot himself, probably fatally.

Vandenbempt came home drunk and began abusing his wife, police said. He seized a .12 gauge shotgun and attempted to shoot her, but struck instead Roy Solberg, 2814 North Mozart street, who was playing in front of the Vandenbempt home.

The youth was taken to the office of Dr. Samuel Heller, 2800 Diversey parkway, where it was said he would recover despite eleven pellets in his back. Mrs. Vandenbempt ran to the home of her son-in-law, Earl J. Weir, 2742 North Washtenaw avenue, who called police. Three squads from the Shakespeare avenue station surrounded the Vandenbempt home, but scurried for cover when they heard a shot in the barn at the rear where Vandenbempt conducted a coal and wood business. Later they found he had shot himself in the mouth.

PRESSURE USED TO BRING ABOUT TODAY'S PARLEY

White House Scene for Conference.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Powerful British and American influences working for reduction of the war debts owed the United States brought about the meeting which is to take place tomorrow between President Hoover and President Elect Roosevelt.

This was learned tonight following a conference of more than an hour between Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson at the Mayflower hotel, where the President elect also surveyed domestic questions and the legislative situation with numerous Democratic leaders.

See Origin in Britain.

The renewed effort to commit the President elect to a reopening of the war debt settlements is said to have originated with the British government, which wishes to send a commission to America at once to begin negotiations for a reduction of Britain's four billion dollar debt. Mr. Stimson and New York business interests having close relations with the British government brought pressure to bear on Mr. Roosevelt to change his attitude of aloofness and consent to treat with the debtors.

The President elect, who had rejected similar overtures at a meeting with the President several weeks ago, agreed to discuss the matter again with Mr. Hoover. He will be pressed again to designate members of a commission to negotiate with the British commission and perhaps with other debtors also.

The renewed efforts to commit Mr. Roosevelt to revision of the war debts followed several visits British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay paid to Mr. Stimson.

Commission May Stay Over.

One plan under consideration is that the British commission come to Washington in February and begin negotiations with President Hoover and Secretary Stimson, after which it would lay its case before President Elect Roosevelt on the eve of the inauguration and then remain here for more formal discussions with the new administration after March 4.

Mr. Hoover having failed to draw Mr. Roosevelt to negotiations with the debtors, Secretary Stimson essayed some private diplomacy of his own to achieve the same end. Associated with him in this endeavor was Norman H. Davis, a New York Democrat, who was an assistant secretary of state in the Wilson cabinet, and who for the last year has been a member of Mr. Hoover's arms conference delegation and a sort of roving ambassador in Europe, and who is not unlikely to draw an important appointment in the Roosevelt administration, if not that of secretary of state. Mr. Davis, like Mr. Stimson, ardently favors reduction of the war debts.

Davis Joins Stimson.

Mr. Stimson dispatched Mr. Davis to work on Mr. Roosevelt in the interest of accomplishing what Mr. Hoover had failed to do. Mr. Davis brought about the recent meeting between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Stimson. The secretary of state was so persuasive, it transpires, that Mr. Roosevelt said he would be glad to talk with Mr. Hoover again if the President desired it. Mr. Stimson came back to Washington and arranged the meeting for tomorrow.

Other influences had been brought to bear upon Mr. Roosevelt to pave the way for Mr. Stimson's persuasions. These influences were chiefly those emanating from the financial powers of Wall street and other elements of big business which are supporting the pleas of the debtors for reduction of their obligations. These powers employed the argument that reduction of the debts will stimulate international trade and thereby aid recovery from the depression.

Mr. Roosevelt had allotted half an hour for his talk with Mr. Stimson today, but the conference lasted an hour and ten minutes. Their talk was devoted largely to preparation for the meeting of the President and President elect tomorrow.

"We discussed a wide range of subjects," said Mr. Stimson when he emerged from Mr. Roosevelt's Mayflower suite. "No, we didn't touch on domestic questions. War debts? Well, you will have to ask that ques-

Huey Calls on Roosevelt; He's Same Ol' Frank

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Huey P. [Call Me Kingfish] Long, the senator from Louisiana, wove his way this evening to the Mayflower hotel to pay his respects to the President elect, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mr. Long, quite evidently, had been celebrating the victory he had gained in the senate earlier in the day when a motion to apply cloture to end his long filibuster against the Glass banking bill failed by one vote to bring him to silence. Mr. Roosevelt has refused publicly to take sides in the dispute, and both camps have claimed he had given them his support.

Shakes Door Vigorously.

The Louisiana Kingfish teetered a moment before the door to the Roosevelt suite, then he pounded on the panels. No one came immediately and Senator Long used his fist vigorously enough to shake the door violently. News photographers were on duty and he blinked at them obligingly while they recorded his knocking act.

A secretary opened the door, asked a bit querulously: "What time is your appointment, senator?"

"Six forty-five," he replied. "What time is it now?"

"It's after seven."

Admitted to Waiting Room.

Senator Long was admitted to a waiting room, was asked to wait a bit, but in a minute he stalked out again. Newspaper men waiting in the corridor surrounded him, and he announced loudly:

"I'm gonna talk turkey to him. I'm gonna ask him 'Did you mean it or didn't you mean it?' I ain't afraid of anything except the people."

Mr. Long, who dropped in a few colorful oaths for emphasis, seemed to be referring to his claim that the President elect was in sympathy with his filibuster.

The senator ambled to a nearby room where refreshments were being served, and then he returned and was admitted to his party chieftain's presence. About fifteen minutes later he returned to the corridors, where, with some difficulty, newspaper men interviewed him.

All Wool and Yard Wide.

"He's just like the man we nominated," Senator Long proclaimed, his voice seeming still to be directed to the walls of the senate chamber. "The same old Frank. All wool and a yard wide."

The senator's curly chestnut hair, falling over his forehead almost over his popeyes, was moist with perspiration. He grinned happily. Striking an oratorical attitude, his small pudgy hand stretched before him, Mr. Long said:

"What do you want to know, boys?"

Kingfish Announces Himself.

Asked if he discussed the Glass bill with the President elect, Senator Long said:

"I went in and he says 'Hello,' and I says, 'Here's the Kingfish.' Sure we discussed the Glass banking bill and as usual Mr. Roosevelt was right."

"But how about Mr. Long, was he right?" asked a reporter.

"You just watch my movements. That's the way to find out. We discussed all questions of national interest, international interest and local interest. He promised me the postmastership at Winfield.

Long Happy and Satisfied.

"Is he for branch banks? He's right on the question. I wish to say to you fellows I come out of this room a happy and satisfied man. Every man and woman in the country ought to be happy and satisfied with Roosevelt as President."

Questioned as to whether his jubilation meant that Mr. Roosevelt was opposed to the Glass bill, Senator Long said:

"It includes the Glass banking bill. It includes everything. It means I'm satisfied with what I've been doing."

Does He Favor Branch Banking?

"But isn't Mr. Roosevelt in favor of branch banking?" another reporter asked, and with surprising quickness, the senator snapped back:

"No, he isn't. He has favored branch banking within county lines, but he was against it state-wide."

This was an accurate statement of an explanation made by Mr. Roosevelt at the afternoon press conference of a position he had taken as governor of New York. The President elect had declined to discuss the Long filibuster or to state directly whether he favored or opposed the Glass bill.

It seemed fairly established that Senator Long's talk with Mr. Roosevelt did not tame the Louisiana Kingfish.

RADICALS BEAT SENATE CLOTURE ON GLASS BILL

Upset Democratic Leadership.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The radical filibuster group in the senate won a slim but a significant victory today in a skirmish that promises to be but the first clash in a legislative war which threatens to tear the Democratic ranks in congress wide apart.

It was not a one sided or a clear cut triumph which the radicals gained in defeating cloture on the Glass banking bill, to whose branch banking features they object.

Close Shave for Radicals.

It was enough of a victory, however, to send Huey Long, obviously exuberant and elated, to the Mayflower hotel to call on President Elect Roosevelt, as described elsewhere in another dispatch to THE TRIBUNE.

Despite the senator's exuberance, it had been a close shave in the senate.

The roll call showed fifty-eight senators—24 Republicans and 34 Democrats—for cloture, and 20 Republicans, 9 Democrats, and 1 Farmer-Laborite, or a total of 30, against. The switch of a single negative vote would have given the "ayes" the required two-thirds and have imposed the limitation on debate which the Long forces were fighting.

Unanimous Consent Agreement.

Immediately following the vote, the bank bill opponents found it strategic to comply with a unanimous consent agreement for a limitation on debate almost as strict as that which cloture would have fixed.

Their victory lay in the fact that they had shown their strength and in a heated verbal passage at arms had carried their defiance to the floor of the senate and tossed it in the face of Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas and the other conservative Democratic leaders.

It was looked on in congressional circles as notice that in the next session of congress the Democratic majority is to contend with an even wilder set of "sons of the wild jackass" than the Republican leadership in the present and past congresses has had to deal with on its side.

Conservatives Voice Satisfaction.

Democratic conservatives professed themselves satisfied because the defeat of cloture and the negotiation of the agreement meant that the banking bill sponsored by Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] will now move forward following eight days' delay on account of the filibuster conducted by Senators Long, Elmer D. Thomas [Dem., Okla.], and others.

They were glad enough to have avoided—for the present at least—the fight to which they may some day be forced, to amend the traditional rules of the senate to permit cloture to be voted by a majority instead of the present two-thirds.

The banking measure will move forward, but it will do so only because the radicals forced a compromise on a restrictive proviso drawn by Senator Sam Bratton [Dem., N. M.]. The amendment will limit the establishment of national bank branches to states permitting similar rights to their own institutions, and will prohibit a national bank with a paid in capital of less than $500,000 from establishing branches outside the city, town, or village in which it is situated, even in branch banking states.

Possible Future Restriction.

And for the fight over a possible future restriction on debate, the radicals indicated they are willing to let that go for a while. They believe the banking bill will be beaten in the house. They are looking forward to new recruits in the next congress.

As Senator Thomas put it, when the smoke had cleared away:

"We showed them that they could not get away with an attempt to gag a minority. If they attempt at any time to revise the rules to make cloture easier, we will filibuster their resolution. We shall have more strength than ever in the next congress, and the newcomers really will be radical, for they will come right from the people and will not have been infected with the virus of tradition and submission which attacks so many members of the senate."

It was a strange company in which the radicals found themselves in the cloture vote, for the 20 Republicans, in addition to such insurgents as Senators Norris of Nebraska, Borah of Idaho, La Follette and Blaine of Wisconsin, included Senator Moses of New Hampshire, the man who coined the "wild jackass" phrase; Watson of Indiana, Republican leader, and Smoot of Utah. The nine Democratic votes included Senator George of Georgia, normally a conformist.

It was Moses and Watson, both defeated at the last election, at whom Senator Couzens [Rep., Mich.], hit yesterday, when he denounced the "lame duck" leadership for its conspiracy with the radicals. The two had coached Senator Long in his filibuster, and now had voted with him. Their motive was to rub it into the Democrats, and they succeeded.

The atmosphere was charged with ill feeling when, immediately following the vote, the tall and stubborn Thomas of Oklahoma, unwilling to let well enough alone, started the fireworks.

Thomas Amuses Robinson.

"I wish to remind those on this side of the aisle," he said, looking at Democratic Leader Robinson, "that on a former historic occasion, when the south was sought to be enslaved, a famous senator by the name of Gorman in this body and a famous member of the house by the name of Sam Randall, saved the south.

"Today, I regret to announce that those on my side of the chamber, through the same tactics, sought to be imposed years ago, are seeking to enslave the people, both north and south, of this republic."

The words were a spring that shot Senator Robinson angrily to his feet.

"Any one who imagines that the preservation of the Union is involved in the right of two or three senators, combining with those who would like to embarrass the country and embarrass those who would like to do business in this body, represents a mental process that is utterly beyond my comprehension," he shouted. "I wish to say to the senator from Oklahoma that the time has come when the United States senate ought to demonstrate its ability to do business or else take censure and condemnation which is being heaped upon it by the patriotic people of this nation without regard to their political affiliations."

Whirls Upon Republicans.

Then the irate Arkansas senator whirled upon the Republican side, hurling his words at Senators Moses and Watson.

"The leadership on the other side of the chamber, repudiated in the cloture vote by many Republican senators, which has contributed to this effort to make the senate ridiculous in order to embarrass the incoming administration, has already found a day of judgment," he roared. "They have already been compelled to meet the test of failure of the American people.

"There is not involved in this issue any question as to the merit or demerit of a particular amendment. The question involved is whether at a time when the country is suffering from a depression unparalleled in its history, at a time when legislation is badly needed, the senate will demonstrate its unfitness and its incapacity to do business."

Senator Borah, who had the unanimous consent agreement ready, presented it, but before the senate could act, "Kingfish" Long got to his feet and bored through all efforts to silence him.

"I cannot let the statement of the senator from Arkansas go unchallenged," he declared. "He is not speaking the sentiments of the Democrats of the United States; he is not speaking the sentiments of the Democrats of the south; he is not speaking the sentiments of the Democrats of Louisiana; he is not speaking the sentiments of the Democrats of Arkansas in the statement he has made here today."

Asks Long's Authority.

It was hurling the glove right in the Democratic leader's face. Senator Robinson picked it up and hurled it back.

"By what authority or right," he barked, "does the senator from Louisiana assume that he is the spokesman for the Democrats of the nation or for those of the state of Arkansas, or other states?"

Applause rippled through the galleries. Senator Borah tried to get consideration for his agreement. But Senator Long had not yet done.

"By election returns," he shot back, and laughter and applause from the galleries greeted the sally.

But neither had Senator Robinson done. His angry gestures comprehended the Louisiana senator and his Republican allies.

Driven Out of Power.

"The election returns drove out of authority," he shouted, "the members of the senator's 'cabinet,' as some have designated them, the members on the other side of the chamber, the so-called leaders, the senator from Indiana and the senator from New Hampshire, who have joined him in an effort to prevent the senate from reaching a conclusion. I still assert with all the power and emphasis at my command that it is the duty of the senate of the United States to go forward and do business and not make a pitiable and contemptible aspect of itself."

At mention of their names, Senator Moses and Watson, like Siamese twins, rose to their feet, but they never got a chance to speak; for Mr. Borah insisted on getting the agreement through, and that ended it.

Later, however, they hinted at what they might have said.

"The Democrats have been crossing the aisle to combine with Republican insurgents," said Senator Moses. "Now they start bellyaching when it appears that we have done the same thing."

"They are going to have the same troubles with their insurgents that we have had," remarked Senator Watson hopefully; "in fact, they're going to get hell."

HE TELLS U. S. HOW TO SLASH GROWING COSTS

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Official Washington has heard of the proposed pay cut in Kansas City. A communication received today by H. F. McElroy, city manager, is from the United States department of labor, bureau of labor statistics.

The form letter informs the city manager that the department at Washington just had heard of all city employés taking pay cuts of 18¾ per cent of their year's wages.

"We are endeavoring to keep an up to date record of all wage changes in the United States," the communication continued, and there followed a list of questions to be answered. McElroy's reply, sent today:

"The city of Kansas City, Mo., under its present management, never has permitted operating expenses to exceed its revenues. If the federal government had adopted the same policy the last four years the country would be a hell of a sight better off today. I don't believe in spending money until you have it."

CUBA GETS FOUR ARMY PLANES.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Cuba's air force was augmented today by four new pursuit and bombing planes. The government recently purchased the planes in the United States. Cuban pilots flew them here from Miami, Fla., encountering snow and bad weather.

MOSES, WATSON TUNE UP VOICE FOR HUEY LONG

How Conscript Fathers Rescue Nation!

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The customers who have found football such a difficult game to understand with all its obscure and apparently senseless rules would be even more confused by the procedure of the United States senate.

Fundamentally the idea of football is simple. You advance the ball or you oppose its advance. Fundamentally the idea of a parliamentary body is to debate and vote on legislation.

One statesman thinks it would be good for the country to pass a law and tells why. Another one thinks this idea is no good and gives his reasons. So they argue back and forth, sticking to the subject, and then they take a vote.

That is the fundamental idea and the citizens in general probably still have some such simple notion of the function and procedure of the United States senate, which is a great joke on the citizens. The citizens who come and sit in the galleries to hear the senators yell discover that they have not the slightest idea what it is all about, and there are even more senators who haven't any idea what it is all about at a given time, either.

Moses Guides in Wilderness.

I am told that Senator George Moses of New Hampshire is undoubtedly the best rule-book lawyer in the senate and that he can do tricks with the rules which will make some of the other senators talk the wrong way. This would not be as serious as it might sound offhand, because much of the time it does not make any difference which way the brothers talk. Their arguments never have any effect anyway, and the talk which has been going on for a week, vaguely relating to the Glass banking bill, has been downright mischief, intended only to kill time.

Senator Huey Long of Louisiana did most of the talking, but it appears that Senator Moses, who is a Republican and pretty sore over losing his job in the election, was quietly steaming Huey along with suggestions for the prolongation of his filibuster. Senator Jim Watson of Indiana, another lame duck, also steamed Huey with ideas and Huey stood up there yelling day after day, and the Democrats got the blame for the blockade which eventually will cause this session of the United States senate to be acknowledged as the most useless, senseless and brutal gathering, the circumstances considered, in the history of the United States congress.

Why Spectacle Is Brutal.

It will have been brutal in its mocking contempt for the hopes and agonies of its citizens, who sent the boys down here to do something. You will have to think it over a little before you can bring yourself to believe that the senators, who are supposed to be the big men and the best minds of the country and who accept that distinction without any argument, could be cheap and evil enough to do this just to promote certain penny ante jealousies and spites of their own.

The senate chamber looks something like a schoolroom in the sense that there are glorified school desks, brothers, and a teacher's chair for old Charlie Curtis, the champion poker player of the U. S. A. at the head of the room. They meet at noon, and at that time there must be a quorum in the room. The clerk calls the roll, like a teacher's pet in school calling out "Willie Jones, Susie Smith, Abe Cohen," and so forth, and the senators answer "Here" like little boys. That is not the only point wherein the conduct resembles that of little boys, either.

As soon as the quorum is found, however, they begin to ease out. They don't have to raise their hands and get permission. They just get up and go and there is a great deal of whispering in class and passing of notes and general inattention among those who stay.

The boys have hide-outs around the capitol where they can sneak off and there is no way for the teacher—that is, Mr. Curtis—to keep a statesman after school.

The brothers even are allowed to carve their initials and fraternity letters on their desks if they want to, and, considering that so many of the statesmen began as whittlers down in front of the hay, grain, and feed store at the county seat back home, it is strange that they do not do this.

Typewriters Are Forbidden.

The press gallery consists of three short rows up above the teacher's desk. The writing shelf or ledge is much more solid and wider than those which are provided at the ringsides and some of the football stadia and is covered with billiard cloth, which would make good footing for typewriters and tend to smother the sound. But they do not permit the use of typewriters in the gallery, so the journalists are always popping into the gallery to scoop up an earful of nonsense and then popping back into the pressroom, which opens off the gallery, to write.

There are not many fast fist writers left in the business and this verboten on the typewriters tends to hamper the newspaper men. The reason for disallowing typewriters, even the new quiet ones, in the press coop is that the clatter would be contrary to the dignity and decorum of the United States senate, proving that the senate still retains some sense of the ridiculous anyway. Another reason may be that some day some reporter might accidentally shove a machine over the edge of the front shelf and drop it down on Mr. Curtis' head, ker-blooie or ker-pow!

Back in the pressroom there are two old marble fireplaces, one of them blocked off with an old desk, the other one in action for the burning of spoiled paragraphs and so forth. There are also two old mirrors in heavy gilt frames covered with cupids holding cornucopias from which parsnips, cabbage, apples, and other farm produce are spilling forth.

There also are some leather couches where a man may turn in and tear off a little sleep at such times as the yelling down on the floor becomes unbearable, and some phone booths and certain fenced off places, like the coops which used to be maintained for the vice presidents of trust companies. These seem to be allotted to the press associations and they keep telegraph operators on the job to expedite the handling of flash and bulletin matter.

The telegraph machines are not the old fashioned Morse layouts, but the modern printers or coffee grinders which ring bells and flash on lights and otherwise manifest excitement at the receiving end to denote that something very hot has just come over the wire and will some one please break away from the water cooler long enough to come and give a look.

They Grow Gently Cynical.

The journalists all have political opinions and are pretty studious in American history and current affairs, but aside from the normal expectable run of personal dislikes, they aren't indignant at anybody for blocking legislation or interfering with the nation's destiny.

This kind of thing was going on long before they came here and it will go on long after they are laid away and they realize that a man lasts longer if he takes it easy. Similarly, in the sport business, it is considered very foolish of a journalist to get sore at a champion just because the champion is no good, or because he got his title by bribery. It is also considered very foolish to get that way over a new champion as they are almost all ingrates and conceited ignoramuses anyway. This is called getting married to the champion.

Watson Likeable Liability.

A few of the Washington boys have got married to people like Borah and Huey, but very strangely, the most popular man, personally, with the newspaper set is Jim Watson, who can tell a good story and keep friends even though they realize that as a statesman he is a pretty terrible liability.

Watson is something like Jack Dempsey. He is a good fellow in the popular sense of the term and his professional actions are to be considered apart. He is a dry, politically, being out of Indiana, but whether he will take a drink in confidence, I do not know.

I think you will find the news in the papers that Huey Long finally gave up his filibuster. It seems that Mr. Moses and Jim Watson finally were scared off. The brothers knew they were steaming Huey up all along, and keeping him going with suggestions, all for the purpose of making the Democrats look bad. When they were finally put in the middle they ran, because they wanted the Democrats to get the blame for the disorder, and naturally couldn't afford to be caught running the thing themselves, a couple of high grade constructive Republican statesmen who hope to come back some day.

MILLS GIVES 5-POINT PROGRAM TO LEAD U. S. OUT OF WILDERNESS

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A five point governmental policy to "lead us out of the wilderness in which we are wandering" was presented by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills at a dinner at the Town Hall club.

His program, which he declared essential to maintain "the undeniable progress that has been made in the last twelve months," included the following:

1. A balanced budget.
2. Settlement of foreign debts between now and June 15.
3. Stabilization, with the help of the United States, of international exchanges by "getting at least the commercial and industrial countries back on the only natural standard we understand—the gold standard."
4. Removal of artificial barriers to trade.
5. An easy money policy.

Mr. Mills said that if this program were adopted the United States would get "almost immediately an expansion of commercial activity which would give a lift to the price level."

BRITISH ANNUAL TELLS OF FLAWS IN U. S. WARSHIPS

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Sharp criticisms of the United States battleships, the Colorado, Maryland, and West Virginia, are contained in the 1933 edition of Brassey's naval shipping annual, published today.

"There would appear to be something lacking," the book suggests. "In the way in which large displacements in the cases have been utilized for the various ends that designers and seamen should have in view when considering the desirable requirements for capital ships.

"The speed is low and the main armament of sixteen inch guns is less in number than in British ships. Notwithstanding the adequate thickness of the belt and barbette armor the horizontal protection appears weak, and the entirely unarmored forward end of vessels, if shot away at the stem near the water line, would diminish speed by a matter of knots."

10 BILLION TAX VIEWED AS NEAR BREAKING POINT

Money Is Spent Faster than Collected.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—A warning that the national burden of taxation had about reached the breaking point was sounded tonight by a house special ways and means subcommittee at the conclusion of an exhaustive study of the duplication of federal and state taxing machinery.

In a report bristling with figures showing how taxes have mounted in recent years in a vain attempt to catch up with soaring expenditures the subcommittee asserted that the federal government, together with a majority of state and local governments, has been spending and is continuing to spend money faster than it has collected it.

"Large as the increase in taxes has been," states the report's conclusion, "nevertheless such increase has been insufficient to meet the increase in expenditures; therefore the majority of our governments are increasing their public debt. It seems proper to conclude that this situation must be remedied at an early date, if the financial stability of our government is to be preserved. The tax burden on certain specific objects is reaching the breaking point."

400 Per Cent Increase.

The subcommittee set the total tax burden under which the nation is now stumbling at in excess of 10 billion dollars. Total expenditures during the 1930-'31 year were estimated at above 13 billion dollars. The subcommittee states its investigations indicated there had been a 400 per cent increase in expenditures for all agencies over the last twenty years. The increase over the last ten years was set at 40 per cent. The total tax value of the nation's property was set at 239 billion dollars and the total tax rate at $3.98 per $100.

Among the facts pointed out was the shifting of the tax burden from one source to another. For instance, it was shown that the federal government had collected 64.6 per cent of its revenue from liquor in 1913 and 10.1 per cent from incomes. In 1931, on the other hand, 76.6 per cent of the nation's tax revenues came from incomes.

Burden Is Shifted.

"It is apparent," comments the subcommittee, "that the federal tax burden has been shifted from the consumers of liquor to the persons with large incomes. The states have turned to gasoline taxes, privilege taxes, inheritance taxes, and special licenses taxes. In the case of county, city and other local taxes there has been little shift in the tax burden. The burden of our local taxes still remains on the property owner."

According to the report, the city government are the largest tax collectors, while the federal government spends the most money. The cities expend 31.3 per cent of the total taxes collected. The federal government comes second with 25.3 per cent, while the state government ranks third with 20.6 per cent. The general property tax is the greatest single tax burden, accounting for 53.5 per cent of all taxes collected. Income taxes are second in importance, amounting to 21.2 per cent of the total tax burden. Special sales taxes rank third, bringing in 11.3 per cent.

Burden Is Classified.

"According to our figures," says the subcommittee, "the total tax burden in the United States in 1931 amounted to 9 billion 519 million dollars. The total tax burden may be classified as follows, by governmental agencies:

| TOTAL REVENUE FROM TAXES, 1931. | |
|---|---|
| Federal taxes | $2,428,000,000 |
| State taxes | 1,967,000,000 |
| County taxes | 958,000,000 |
| City taxes | 2,978,000,000 |
| Local taxes | 1,188,000,000 |
| Grand total | $9,519,000,000 |

"These figures understate the federal tax burden at the present time, since federal taxes were materially increased in 1932. While it has been recently often stated that our total tax burden was from 12 billion to 14 billion dollars, we believes these figures unsubstantated, unless all governmental revenues are included rather than merely tax revenues."

On the basis of actual figures and its estimates the subcommittee set the total expenditures for 1930-'31 as follows:

| Jurisdiction— | |
|---|---|
| Federal | $ 4,220,000,000 |
| State | 2,220,000,000 |
| County | 1,505,000,000 |
| Municipal | 3,810,000,000 |
| Other local | 1,556,000,000 |
| Total | $13,411,000,000 |

The subcommittee's conclusions were that "our present system of taxation is complicated and cumbersome. There are many instances of double taxation, federal and state."

MRS. ANDERSON FILES NEW SUIT AGAINST GRAHAM

Wants Terms of Annuity Contract Amended.

Mrs. Alma Newton Anderson, comely 46 year old novelist, yesterday added another episode to her legal warfare with Ernest R. Graham, noted Chicago architect. Her attorney, Clarence A. Snyder, filed a bill in the Superior court to amend an annuity contract under which she is to receive $300 a month for 17 years, beginning May 1, 1934.

The annuity was purchased for her on July 4, 1928, by Graham, at a cost of $44,891. In the purchase contract was a provision giving Attorney Daniel J. Schuyler, counsel for the architect, the right to suspend payments if Mrs. Anderson made demand on the architect or publicized him after it was drawn. Her suit seeks to strike this clause from the contract.

A week ago Mrs. Anderson lost a $500,000 suit charging Graham and Thomas McGuire, a private detective, with conspiracy to harass her. Superior Judge Paul McWilliams directed a jury to return a verdict of not guilty in favor of Graham. Opposing attorneys said no settlement was made.

Files Two Libel Suits.

Mrs. Anderson also has filed two libel suits against Graham and McGuire. One for $500,000 is pending before Superior Judge Harry B. Miller and the other, for $250,000, is pending in New York. The conspiracy and libel suits were instituted after the signing of the annuity contract, it was said.

On the witness stand in Judge McWilliams' court Mrs. Anderson related the story of "a violent and passionate" ten year love affair with the architect. She testified that Graham had paid the rent of her New York apartment and had given her an average of $36,000 a year. The romance ended shortly before Graham's second marriage in 1925, she said.

Other payments made by Graham were revealed at the trial. Mrs. Anderson's attorney declared she received $82,000 in two settlements before the 1928 annuity was created, that she was paid $15,000 at the time it was drawn and has since received $3,500 "as a gift." In addition the existence of a $500 a month annuity, purchased in 1927 and expiring May 1, 1934, was disclosed in an action brought in the Federal court last Friday.

Names Two Co-Defendants.

The suit filed yesterday names Attorney Schuyler and the Canada Life Assurance company of Toronto, from which the annuity was purchased, as co-defendants. She asks an injunction to restrain the attorney from invoking his right to stop payments. It was said yesterday that Attorney Schuyler had made no move toward revocation of the agreement, the first payment of which is not due for more than a year.

Mrs. Anderson alleged in her bill that the revocation clause was inserted through "mistake, misprision, deceit, or connivance." This was denied by Attorney W. C. Graves, a member of Schuyler's law firm. He said Mrs. Anderson virtually dictated the terms of the contract and signed it with advice of counsel.

In support of his contention Attorney Graves cited a statement, issued by Attorney Snyder's office by Mrs. Anderson before her bill was filed, in which she said she had never made a move in her legal relations with Graham without advice of counsel.

Includes Letter in Her Bill.

Attorney Graves also cited a letter included in her bill. The letter, written by her to the architect after the signing of the contract, reads in part: "Surely you know me well enough to appreciate that, feeling as I now do, any further demand would be foreign to my character. . . . I should regard such conduct as extortionate, dishonorable and wholly inexcusable."

In her bill Mrs. Anderson charges Schuyler dictated the letter and insisted she send it to the architect.

"Mrs. Anderson's conduct is best judged by her words," Attorney Graves said. "She signed the letter and the contract voluntarily and on advice of her counsel. It was her wish that she receive monthly payments rather than a lump sum.

"Now before any action toward revocation has been taken she brings her suit. Possibly she feels she has violated the contract in making further demand on Graham and bringing publicity. It may be she is attempting to regain what she considers lost ground. We will fight this suit and any further demands she may make in court or privately."

Wants Annuity Interpreted.

The Canada Life Assurance company disclosed the existence of the other annuity in the federal court action. The company is asking the court to interpret the rights of five persons under the contract. Those named are Mrs. Anderson; Edwin Markham, 80 year old poet, who wrote "The Man with the Hoe"; I. R. O'Crowley and Lucy C. McDannell, New York attorneys who advanced a claim against the poet, and Robert E. Burke, Chicago attorney, who represented Mrs. Anderson in litigation against the company in November. Mrs. Anderson explained that Markham had loaned her money in return for which she assigned a portion of her rights in the annuity.

The $300 monthly payments were originally to have been made for life after May 1, 1934. Since then Mrs. Anderson reduced the principal by loans from $44,891 to $32,884, the bill disclosed, and the contract was amended to cease payments after 17 years.

Identity of Woman Found Ill in Hotel Is Mystery

An unidentified woman of about 45 years, found suffering from poison in a room at the Planters hotel Wednesday night, was still unconscious and in a serious condition at the county hospital yesterday. A note requested that Deputy Sheriff Harry Bryant of Sacramento, Cal., be notified, but he told Chicago police he had never heard of "Mrs. Mary Murphy," the name under which she registered on Jan. 16. A wrist watch, purchased in Los Angeles, was inscribed, "To Peggy from Ed, 12-25-26."

Winnetka Suit Over Dog's Death Set for Jan. 27

Louis H. Northrop, banker, yesterday refused to enter into a controversy with his Winnetka neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Gardner, over the death on Sunday of their wire haired terrier, Pal. Mrs. Gardner is suing Mr. Northrop for $500, charging that he struck her dog and caused its death. The case is set for Jan. 27. "We'll try the case when it comes up," said Mr. Northrop. "Anway, it was a fight between two dogs and not between two families."

LOST AVIATRIX SNATCHED FROM DEATH IN SAHARA

Lady Mary Bailey Found; in Desert Four Days.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Lady Mary Bailey, British airwoman, who was forced down while attempting a speed record flight from England to Cape Town, was rescued today in the Niger colony, French West Africa, after four days of privation in the desert.

Although uninjured, she was extremely tired and she had suffered greatly from thirst.

Because her gasoline supply was running low, she made a landing fifteen miles southwest of Tahoua in Niger. When rescuers reached her they found her standing helplessly beside her machine.

Four Days of Desert Terrors.

The London Daily Mail said the airwoman was overcome by joy when help got to her. She had faced four days of desert terrors—choking sandstorms, tropical heat by day and bitter cold by night—without any shelter except her tiny airplane. Moreover, there was the threat of death by starvation and thirst.

The district where she was found is one of the most desolate regions in that section of the world and the fact that she was discovered at all was said by airmen to be testimony to the thoroughness and speed with which the search was carried out. Thousands of men were engaged during the last three days in the hunt for her. Cavalry and camel patrols were sent out from every military post, and airplanes searched the vast tracts of sand.

Taken to French Port.

First news of the rescue of Lady Bailey came in a wireless message to the French authorities. Subsequent dispatches said that she was taken in a caterpillar car to the French post at Tahoua, which is about 1,400 miles south of Algiers, Algeria.

Lady Bailey took off from England on Sunday, in an attempt to beat the time of Amy Johnson, wife of Capt. J. A. Mollison, to Cape Town. She reached Oran, Algeria, safely, although showing symptoms of influenza, but no reports had been received from her until news arrived this afternoon that she had been found.

The rescued aviatrix is the wife of Sir Abe Bailey, millionaire living in Cape Town.

The finding of the airwoman cleared up one aviation mystery, but another still is to be solved. No trace has been discovered of Bert Hinkler, Australian flyer lost en route for Australia from England, and fears were expressed tonight for the safety of Capt. W. L. Hope, British airman who took off this morning to search for Hinkler's plane in the Alps.

Mud Delays Mermoz.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 19.—A quagmire kept Jean Mermoz, Atlantic airman, here another day. The Frenchman piloted six passengers in a tri-motored plane from Africa to Natal, Brazil, in record time on Tuesday.

Plans England-Brazil Flight.

DUBLIN, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Capt. J. A. Mollison, noted long distance flyer, came here by plane from England today, and announced plans for a flight next month to South America. He said he intends to leave Lympne, Kent, England, Feb. 8, with either Rio de Janeiro or Natal, Brazil, his destination, depending on the weather.

Mollison, who is the husband of Amy Johnson, holder of the record for a speed flight from England to Cape Town, intends to make a return flight from South America, in an attempt to set a record.

POLISH PLANS FOR THE FAIR ARE ANNOUNCED

Plans for Polish participation in the World's Fair were announced yesterday by Leon C. Nyak, chairman of the Polish Day association. Persons of Polish descent in this country and citizens of Poland will be urged to attend the exposition.

According to the program outlined by Mr. Nyak, the Polish celebration will commemorate the 250th anniversary of the expulsion of the Turks from Europe by Sobieski, the 150th anniversary of Kosciusko's oath of American citizenship, and the 100th anniversary of the first American land grant to a Polish citizen.

Polish week will last from July 17 to 23. The high point of the week will occur on the night of July 22, when ballet dancers, choristers, musicians, and performers in tableaux will take part in a Polish-American historical spectacle in Soldiers' field.

GUNMAN SLUGS PHONE GIRL IN OFFICE HOLDUP

Miss Ann Tyman, switchboard operator at the offices of Cudney & Co., meat packers, at 400 Orleans street, was struck on the head with a revolver by one of three gunmen who robbed the offices of $1,300 yesterday. Miss Tyman, who was not seriously injured, was struck when she did not immediately obey a command to move after the bandits had looted the cash other employes, including the manager, Frank D. Swanson, were lined up against a wall and robbed of $300 away from the switchboard. Eight drawer of $1,000.

Five Companies Bid to Reinsure 75,000 Policy Holders of Illinois Life Company

The 75,000 policy holders of the Illinois Life Insurance company will know within a week or ten days the conditions under which they can be reinsured.

This was announced yesterday by Gen. Abel Davis, receiver of the company, in submitting to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson a full report showing how the Stevens family, former owners of the Illinois Life, drained $12,000,000 of its assets in a vain effort to keep afloat their other properties, the Stevens and La Salle hotels. The hotels are now in receivership also.

Five Companies Submit Bids.

Five companies have submitted bids for rewriting the $140,000,000 insurance the Illinois Life had in force, Gen. Davis informed the court. He will submit these bids for analysis by an experienced insurance authority this morning, the receiver said, with the expectation that a report on all the bids and a recommendation by himself on the most advantageous will be ready for the court by Jan. 30.

Despite the desperate condition to which the company was reduced by the investment policies of the Stevens family, Gen. Davis expects lively competition among the reinsurance bidders, he said. It was the judgment of all insurance executives he consulted that the quality of business written by Illinois Life was unusually high grade, he added.

Calls Risks Satisfactory.

"The selection and placement of risks, savings on premiums, and the mortality rate of the policy holders are, in the opinion of all of us, highly satisfactory," he said. "The company had a very efficient medical department."

"In other words," Judge Wilkerson remarked, "you find the Illinois Life all right as an insurance company, but not so good as an investor in certain hotel securities."

Gen. Davis smiled assent. Outside the courtroom afterward he said he was not at liberty to announce the names of the companies bidding for the reinsurance nor disclose the identity of the actuary who will pass on the bids. To insure the actuary's freedom of judgment in the matter he said he would key the bids as A, B, C, etc., and not disclose the identities of the bidders to the actuary until the report was complete.

A feature of the receiver's report is the disclosure that the policy holders' reserves, carried by the Stevens auditors at $24,252,547, have been impaired to the extent of $11,426,553, or nearly 50 per cent. Policy holders' reserve is the fund from which policy loans and cash surrender payments are met.

Loan Collateral Dwindles.

Another feature is the revelation that the Stevens family, as principal stockholders of the company, authorized loans to themselves and friends amounting to $5,296,450 and that, whereas they represented these loans as adequately secured, the present market value of the collateral they posted is a mere $152,900, about one-fourth of 1 per cent of the amount of the loans.

A third disclosure is that the Stevens family, as controlling stockholders, voted themselves $2,000,000 in cash dividends in 1930 and 1931, with the surplus declining from $3,000,000 to $600,000 in 1930, and the deficit mounting from zero to $6,800,000 in 1931. The Stevens auditors concealed the deficit up to the day of receivership in November, 1932, by the padding of assets, the report reveals.

The Stevens auditors went to the length of doubling the cost value of the company's home office building on Lake Shore drive, the report indicates, and of ascribing a par value to Stevens and La Salle hotel liens which in fact were worthless.

To redeem or pay interest on the hotel bonds, the report states, the Stevenses, as owners of the hotels, borrowed large sums from the life insurance company.

Authorize Large Loans.

To maintain the credit of the hotels, the report states, the Stevenses authorized large loans by the insurance company to the hotels, which moneys the hotels used to pay interest due the insurance company on the hotel bonds.

In one such loan, the report discloses, the insurance company gave the Stevens hotel $600,000 in Liberty bonds in exchange for an unsecured note, for which the hotel later substituted $900,000 of its own junior bonds. In another such loan, as late as Jan. 2, 1932, the insurance company loaned the Stevens hotel $700,000 cash with no security, the loan being still unpaid.

Loans to the Stevenses and their friends are summarized in the following table:

| Loans made to or for the apparent benefit of— | Principal amount. | Mkt. value of collat'l Nov. 28. 1932. |
|---|---|---|
| For the benefit of— | | |
| James W. Stevens | $1,868,500 | $ 30,000 |
| To George F. Ramer | 41,000 | 10,749 |
| To E. J. Stookey | | |
| | $1,849,500 | $ 41,649 |
| Loan to M. B. Stevens (Mrs. J. W. Stevens) | $ 78,000 | $ 30,900 |
| Loans to Lincoln Securities company | 1,100,000 | 16,875 |
| For the apparent benefit of Raymond W. Stevens— | | |
| To George L. Douglas | $10,333 | |
| Other loans— | | |
| Joseph E. Otis | 116,000 | 3,688.50 |
| Miscellaneous | 32,965 | 13,980 |
| | $3,446,950 | $111,390.50 |

James W. Stevens was chairman of the board of the insurance company. Raymond W. Stevens, son of James, was president of the insurance company. Ernest J. Stevens, brother of Raymond, was president of the Stevens hotel and is still its manager. Joseph E. Otis was and is president of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, of whose common stock the insurance company owns 2,500 shares, valued by the Stevenses at $760,000 and by the receiver at $5,265.

Record of Dividends.

The record of dividend payments, three-fourths of which went direct to the Stevens family as owners of that percentage of the stock, is shown in the following table:

| Quarter. | Surplus or Deficit. | Dividends. |
|---|---|---|
| March 31, 1930 | $3,042,877,408 | $250,000 |
| June 30, 1930 | 1,543,591,645 | 250,000 |
| Sept. 30, 1930 | 1,047,062,248 | 250,000 |
| Dec. 31, 1930 | 645,701.96D | 250,000 |
| March. 31, 1931 | 1,361,904.96D | 250,000 |
| June 30, 1931 | 3,214,850.98D | 250,000 |
| Sept. 30, 1931 | 4,165,273.98D | 250,000 |
| Dec. 31, 1931 | 6,822,537.93D | 250,000 |

Judge Wilkerson announced that the report would be approved, subject to a five day interval during which attorneys for any interested party may file objections. None of the Stevens family appeared in court yesterday.

Prior to the appearance of Gen. Davis, Attorney Henry M. Price, representing nineteen agents of the company now discharged, filed a petition to allow claims amounting to $90,000 a year on commissions and bonuses granted them under contracts which the receiver canceled. The court ordered Mr. Price's petition admitted.

HOLD MEETING TO SPEED BILLS FOR 1931 TAXES

Mayor Cermak and a group of county officials met with County Treasurer McDonough yesterday and promised to speed the work of preparing the 1931 real estate and personal property assessments so that tax bills can be sent out by Feb. 5. The officials agreed to retain the March 1 penalty date on the first installment of the 1931 real estate bills.

The officials, including Assessor J. L. Jacobs, Fred W. Brumel and George F. Nixon of the board of tax appeals, and County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, were told that a delay in dispatching the 1931 bills would endanger the Sargent committee's financial plans. Mr. Sweitzer promised to have the tax rates for the 419 tax expending divisions within the county ready within a few hours after he is to be given the final personal property books on Jan. 29.

If the rates can be calculated by Feb. 1, the treasurer said, the first country town bills can be sent out by the 5th and the city town bills by the 15th.

U. S. DENIES PLEA OF YACHTSMEN TO DEEPEN HARBOR

Col. E. M. Markham, the war department's division engineer at Cleveland, yesterday denied the request of Chicago yachtsmen that the federal government deepen the inner harbor basin off Grant park and remove a trick weed growth which has interfered with navigation close to the shore. The request was made to the government last summer.

"The principal grounds upon which the adverse conclusions are based," said Col. Markham, "are that, since the existing project area and depths of the inner harbor basin provide adequately for the present and prospective water borne commerce of the locality, there is no justification for federal participation in the improvement of that basin."

GIRL WINS $20,000 FROM CLAYTON MARK IN DAMAGE VERDICT

A Waukegan jury yesterday returned a verdict for $20,000 damages for Miss Jean Holopenin, 25 years old, 226 Franklin road, Glencoe, in her suit against Clayton Mark, a director of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company. Mark lives at 980 North Lake road, Lake Forest. The case was heard before Judge Ralph J. Dady.

The suit grew out of an automobile collision in Green Bay road at Ravinia park on Aug. 25, 1931. The Mark chauffeur, Ragner Carlquist, was driving Mr. Mark's daughter, Mrs. Everett L. Wyman, and three other women to the Ravinia opera. Miss Holopenin was riding in an automobile driven by Carl Salo. At the entrance to Ravinia park the Salo car struck the rear of the Mark car. Miss Holopenin was thrown to the pavement. Witnesses testified that Carlquist made a left turn across Green Bay road without any warning signal. Attorney Okel Fuqua, representing Miss Holopenin, presented testimony that the injuries suffered by the complainant resulted in a two inch shortening of her right leg.

The $20,000 award set in the verdict was the maximum asked in the suit. Judge Dady said he would hear a defense motion for a new trial within a week.

ARTIST AND ARCHITECT ROBBED.

E. F. Jones, 2403 Ashland avenue, Evanston, an artist, and his neighbor, Malcolm D. Charleson, 2345 Ashland avenue, an architect, were robbed of $10 each late last night in the rear of the latter's home by two youths.

U. S. GIRLS FIND RUSSIANS WORK AT POINT OF GUN

Armed Soldiers Fail to Enforce Efficiency.

Motoring through Russia, the author and Mary L. De Give, both of Atlanta, Ga., observed the workings of the soviet government and listened to the complaints of those forced to labor under its iron rule. The troubles of the two girls with the bureaucracy are not the least interesting of the stories Miss Christensen is telling for The Tribune.

BY ALVA CHRISTENSEN.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

We spent one day in Verblud, looking over the experimental stations, where the government is conducting vast tests in agriculture. The design is to prove to the Russians what can be done along the line of increasing production.

We were allowed to visit the dining rooms, to stroll into the apartments of the workers and to examine the machine shops. The presence of armed soldiers—there was a small army at Verblud—aroused our wonder. Why were they here? Against whom were they going to use the machine guns, the tanks, and the artillery with which they were equipped?

Labor Is Forced.

The answer was plain? Obviously the labor was forced, despite the denial of officials that there is any forced labor in the soviet union. Likewise, it was evident that this forced labor was anything but efficient.

Although Verblud had 12,000 people, 23 combines and 125 tractors and plenty of other farm implements, the harvest had not yet been taken in and consequently a large percentage was lost. The excuse given was that summer rains ruined the wheat. We know very well that it was due to the usual Russian carelessness.

With the German concession Drusag, another sort of large scale farming enterprise, in mind for the evening, we drove away from Verblud. By 6 p. m. we still did not know whether Drusag was before Kavkaskaya or after. One inquiry would bring the reply, "pyat versts," or five miles; the next, "sixty versts." At last we reached the town of Kavkaskaya and tried to locate the hotel, as it seemed impossible to find Drusag that night.

A Lucky Break.

We drove backwards and forwards until 10 o'clock and at last located it. There were no beds to be had for that night, and not until later did we hear of our good fortune in being turned away from the most notoriously filthy hotel in the whole area.

Our then reliable friends, the G. P. U., advised us to go on to Drusag. It was almost midnight when we reached it. The night watchman awakened a couple of engineers who greeted us, pajama clad. We were shown into their rooms, given ham and omelettes and real honest-to-goodness coffee. They prevailed upon us to take their beds for the night, as it was too late to waken Herr Dittloff, the director.

After staying with our good German friends for a couple of days we started on to Mineralaye Vody [Mineral Waters]. Just as we were entering the town we had to cross through a stream which looked to be hardly more than six inches deep, but, unfortunately, proved to be about two feet deep.

Beckie Breaks a Piston.

Consequently Beckie, the flivver, suffered a broken piston. With the aid of six horses we were pulled out and managed to struggle up to the sanatorium, where we spent the evening. We had learned that sanatoriums usually provide the cleanest beds and the best food. Therefore we always tried to find one.

The night was spent in answering questions such as these: "Has Henry Ford closed all his shops and is he out of business?" "When are the capitalistic countries going to start their war of intervention against soviet Russia?" "Don't our Russian newspapers, Pravda and Izvestia, always tell the truth about your capitalist countries?" When we answered truthfully we were considered counter-revolutionists.

We spent four days in Mineralaye Vody trying to get a piston. On the fifth morning the G. P. U. had found one and we started on our way in a pouring rain. It was impossible to drive over the slippery roads through the mountains, so we returned to the town, visited the G. P. U. and asked them to give us a flat car to be attached to the passenger express train to Vladikavkas.

About an hour's ride from our destination, as luck would have it, our flat car developed a hot-box. We were detached from the passenger train. In the excitement of the moment the Russians thrust watermelon rinds into the flames, while others stuffed in cloths soaked with grease. We did arrive in Vladikavkas that night, however.

Beckie Has More Trouble.

As we were unloading Beckie, a G. P. U. soldier who was assisting us insisted that we drive over the side of the flat car to the platform, six inches away. The weight of the flivver broke the side of the flat car and Beckie fell through between the flat car and the platform. Poor Beckie was injured to the extent of a broken front spring.

We stayed in Vladikavkas only over night to have a nice hot bath. Unfortunately we didn't hit the hot water day. Hot water is only served in Russian hotels about once a week, if that often.

In a heavy downpour of rain we started out over the famed Georgian military highway to Tiflis. The scenery was beautiful, but the road was very poor. As we were crossing over the highest pass in the Caucausus we saw the rain turn into snow. It was the middle of September and bitter cold.

We arrived in Tiflis at night, and went directly to the Orient hotel, where for the first time we encountered a nice manager of Intourist. We were put up in a nice room, had a delicious supper and went to bed.

The whole of the next morning was spent in the interesting bazaar of Tiflis, bartering for rugs and old Caucasian art objects and struggling to retain our cameras, which fascinated the crowds.

Back in the hotel, we sat down to lunch with Rhea Clyman, the Canadian correspondent who had been assigned to accompany us as interpreter. In the middle of the meal the manager came in to say that Miss Clyman was wanted in her room. She went. I followed a little later, knocked on the door and was told to enter.

Rhea Under Arrest.

There stood the commander of the Tiflis G. P. U. with two of his men. They were guarding Rhea.

"I am under arrest," she said, "for an article written five months ago, entitled 'Is Russia Going Capitalist?' I have been ordered to leave the country in twenty-four hours, but have refused."

For two days Miss Clyman remained in Tiflis, dashing back and forth to one of the consulates there asking their advice. She had wired to the British embassy at Moscow for its assistance. The reply came telling her to ask for permission to be sent to Moscow. As she was not allowed to leave the hotel the last day she was with us, we carried her messages to the consul. It seemed very stupid that it had taken the G. P. U. five months to find her article and to decide to expel her from the country, but we did not blame them, as she was quite unpleasant. She was finally sent back to Moscow and then expelled in 24 hours.

We remained in Tiflis two more days when we decided to go to Armenia. Our baggage was packed and we were waiting for the car to arrive. While we were sitting in the dining room at breakfast a note came from Commander Stansky, head of the G. P. U., saying we were forbidden to leave for Armenia.

As we knew of no reason other than having allowed Miss Clyman to accompany us, we could not understand why we should not be allowed to travel wherever we wanted. We called upon Commander Stansky to ask for reasons. His excuses were feeble, saying that the roads were bad, that there were many bandits, and that in case of trouble we should not get help, but that if were willing to take the chance we could do it.

See Army Maneuvers.

Just as we started for Armenia that day we learned that the trans-Caucasian army was conducting its war maneuvers in the territory through which we would travel. That was more than likely the reason Stansky did not wish us to take the trip.

We drove for two days through the maneuvers and concluded that the 500,000 standing army that Russia claims to possess means that each republic of Russia has its own army of 500,000, bringing the total up to something over 1,500,000.

The roads over which we traveled were in marvelous condition. They far surpassed the Georgian military highway, both in scenery and road engineering.

Erivan, the capital of Russian Armenia, was being ruined by the horrible modern soviet structures, and by the inevitable water system being laid. A banquet was given for us in the gardens of the czarist palace by the members of the agricultural school. The gardens now belong to a wine sovhoz.

At the dinner we were served three courses of deliciously prepared meat and entirely too much food. On the tables were 32 brands of wine with three bottles for each person. For dessert beautiful luscious peaches, pears, grapes, apples, and figs were served. It was obvious that the new aristocrats of soviet Russia could have all the food they needed, whereas the poor people doing the hard labor were fortunate if they received a little black bread. We didn't enjoy the dinner, knowing that so many millions of people were starving.

Attend Church Services.

We left Erivan for Echmiadzin, where we had our last view of Mount Ararat. In Echmiadzin we spent a couple of hours in the cathedral. It was the feast day of St. George, the popular saint of Armenia, and all the people, young and old, were assembled around the cathedral for devotions and revelry.

Within the church, by the light of hundreds of votive lamps, we watched the earnest, pious faces of these good people as they bent down to kiss an icon or a cross.

Outside the door of the church clusters of peasant women, some dressed in the barbaric costume of still nomadic mountain tribes, gossiped among themselves. Others would fall on their knees in extreme devotion and kiss the tombstone of some long dead but still revered bishop.

A few yards from the entrance to the church several Armenian bagpipers and drummers were making music for the people to dance. The dancers jumped up and down, first on one foot then on the other, with a grave, preoccupied determination matched only by the insistent, desperate rhythm of the music. It was a form of religious dance. Not even the religion of Lenin, with Stalin in Moscow as his chief disciple, has banished all ideas of true worship from these people.

Leaving Echmiadzin we drove past many of the ancient Armenian burial places with their coffin-like tombstones scarcely distinguishable from the boulders among which they rested, over the excellent roads and through the magnificent mountains and back through the maneuver zone into the gaiety of Tiflis.

'LIE DETECTOR' INVENTOR WINS CIVIC AWARD

Leonarde Keeler to Get Commerce Medal.

Leonarde Keeler, 29 year old inventor of the "lie detector," was announced yesterday as the winner of the medal awarded annually by the Junior Association of Commerce to the man between 21 and 35 years of age who has made the "most outstanding civic contribution to Chicago" in the previous year.

The medal, which last year was awarded to Samuel Insull Jr., will be presented to Keeler at a banquet in the Hotel La Salle tonight.

The announcement of the award said that it came after more than three weeks of study of possible candidates among the younger business and professional men. Keeler, the announcement said, was given the award because of his aid in the solution of 37 criminal cases in Chicago and nearby cities. He is credited with getting 54 direct confessions and eight others following trial out of 627 tests of crime suspects.

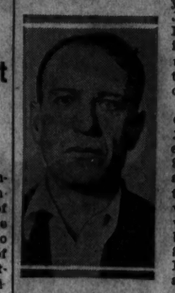
Presentation of the award will be made by Lucius Teter, banker, who was one of the five judges who decided on the award. The jury was headed by George W. Rossetter, president of the Association of Commerce. The other members of the committee were Silas H. Strawn, attorney, the Rev. John Timothy Stone and Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university. The scientific crime detection laboratory of which Keeler is a member is affiliated with the university.

Chief of Detectives William Shoemaker laughed when asked his opinion of the "lie detector." "I don't know anything about the lie detector," he said. "I guess they did have it down here a time or two several years ago. It cannot be used in court and can you imagine what would happen if we tried to tie it up to some of our best known hoodlums like "Three Fingered Jack" White or Murray Humphreys?"

"I have never had any experience with it nor have I ever seen it work," said Commissioner Allman. "But I am inclined to believe that in theory it is all right."

The Keeler machine has attached to it a rubber tube which is fastened to the person being questioned. This tube carries the impulses of the blood pressure to a needle, which records on a paper roll the intensity of the pressure. While the suspect is telling the truth the needle is presumed to remain stationary. But if he tells a lie the needle makes a jagged line on the roll, according to the inventor.

STEALS A $7 BIBLE AND GETS 7 MONTH TERM IN BRIDEWELL



HARRY WALKER.

Harry Walker, 46 years old, 3343 Cottage Grove avenue, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Frank M. Padden for stealing a Bible valued at $7 from the book section of a loop store.

"It was for my old mother, judge," Walker explained. "She's 97. She wrote me a letter and said that her Bible was destroyed when her home burned down. She asked me if I could get her another."

His mother lives at 3343 Truce street, Kansas City, Walker said. He could not produce her letter. Judge Padden turned to Policeman John Noonan, who made the arrest.

"Do they have Bibles at the Bridewell?" he asked. The policeman nodded.

"Then I sentence you to seven months there and fine you $100 and costs," the judge told Walker. "You'll have time to read the Bible several times. And bear down on that seventh commandment."

ROOKIE COP WHO OWNED A STILL IS HELD BY U. S.

WILLIAM KOLB.

William Kolb, a rookie policeman, who confessed to owning an interest in a still which he helped operate in his spare time, was held in bonds of $2,500 yesterday when he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Walker on charges of prohibition law violation. Kolb's hearing was set for Jan. 31.

Before Kolb was arraigned Deputy Chief of Detectives Blaul stripped him of his star and revolver. According to the police Kolb admitted that he guarded deliveries of alcohol from the still. Harold Oakley, son of the owner of a bungalow at 3339 West 66th place, where the still was found, was held in bonds of $1,000, which he was allowed to sign himself. Also released when he signed a bond of $1,000 was Hugh Downs, who was arrested when he called for a five gallon can of alcohol at the bungalow. He said he was a customer.

William L. Connors, a prohibition agent, was shot and slightly wounded Tuesday night when a gang of hijackers attempted to seize the still after the raid. Kolb, who went to the aid of the agents and aided in the capture of one of the hoodlums, was pictured as a hero at the time.

'MOIST THROAT' ENDED HIS COUGH!

"I had coughs all winter, till I learned about 'moist throat,'" writes R. G., of New York City.

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny "bottles" continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these pores clog. Phlegm collects — dangerous germs find a breeding place. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when you increase the flow of your throat's natural moisture, loosening the phlegm so it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely "deaden" the nerves . . . but don't get at the real root of the trouble!

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of throat moisture and brings quick relief naturally.

If your throat's the least bit raw or dry, take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN now. It's absolutely safe, even for children. At all drug stores, 60¢.

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain How to Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any Walgreen Drug Store some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder form—never liquid or milk) is harmless, inexpensive, and is a fine remedy for acid stomach. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no fear of indigestion.

SENATORS HEAR CHICAGO'S PLEA ON SCHOOL LOAN

20 Million Needed, Says Principal.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Hasn't a schoolboy as much right as a banker to a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, challenged a group of Chicago educators, met around one side of a senatorial committee table this morning.

Yes, but is the financing of the local school a proper job for Uncle Sam, countered several senators on the other side of the table.

In between, in the witness chair, former Senator Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, mused:

"The Chicago school teachers have behaved splendidly, but if the corporation has new burdens put upon it, our funds will be exhausted in six months; don't forget that."

Authority Is Considered.

And the debate was on. It was the debate before the senate banking and currency sub-committee considering the amendment to the Reconstruction Finance corporation act, proposed by Senator George [Dem., Ga.], which would permit the corporation to loan to school boards, or, where they are not fiscally independent, to loan to communities, for school maintenance.

"We need at least 20 million dollars," said Charles B. Stillman, principal of the Burr school and president of the joint conference of Chicago teachers and principals.

"We had a 21 million deficit the first year. Another 20 million is needed for the pay roll from January to June," declared Harry L. Tate, principal of the Whitney school, spokesman, he said, for 4,000 teachers. "Something must be done within 30 days."

Called False Economy.

"It's false economy," argued Mrs. Florence Curtis Hanson, secretary of the American Federation of Teachers "to cut the cost of schools and have to raise the cost of jails."

"I urge you to take immediate steps to prevent suffering," was the admonition Mayor A. J. Cermak gave to Senator Lewis [Dem., Ill.]; Senator Elect Dieterich [Dem., Ill.], and Majority Floor Leader of the House Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, in telegrams sent them today. He urged that legislation be passed to enable a loan to pay Chicago policemen and firemen as well.

Opposition to Senator George's amendment, and to a somewhat similar amendment introduced in the house by Senator Elect Dieterich, now congressman at large, for granting R. F. C. loans for school maintenance, was gathered up in the argument of Senator Gore [Dem., Okla]., who insisted that once such a loan was made to any community, say Chicago, congressmen would seek to have it extended, and finally canceled.

Called Emergency Measure.

"But this is an emergency measure," protested Mr. Stillman. "There is no danger that the government would have to keep on with the financing. As soon as the banks got over this obsession for liquidity, when the depression is over, they would see the gilt edged six per cent obligations, and they would fight to have them."

Mr. Pomerene suggested an alternative to the federal loan. Why not, he offered, set up local organizations in the local communities, and let county authorities turn the tax liens over to these organizations who, in turn, would borrow on the liens. If the money was not forthcoming from the banks, then, he pointed out, congress might authorize loans from the finance corporation.

Educators from other parts of the country appeared to urge the bill. Mr. Dieterich hopes to get immediate action on his bill in the house banking and currency committee, and Mr Rainey today pledged "all the support I can give" to Mr. Dieterich's proposal if it gets to a hearing.

Volcano of Krakatao Erupts Again

Krakatao volcano on island of same name in Sunda strait as it appeared in action in 1928.

Spouts Lava

SERANG, Java., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The volcano Krakatao, which was active for a time last February, has burst into full eruption, throwing lava to enormous heights. The uninterrupted flow sometimes shoots 3,000 to 4,500 feet in the air.

Krakatao rises from the island of the same name which is in Sunda strait between Java and Sumatra. There was a terrific eruption in 1883 followed by a tidal wave which swept 30,000 to death in the villages of the Dutch East Indies. The waves traveled across the Atlantic and were observed in South America. Ashes shot 20 miles into the air and were swept to all parts of the globe, causing brilliant sunrises and sunsets for months.

At the time of that eruption Krakatao had been dormant for 200 years.

MORTON SCHOOL BOARD NAMED IN NEW CHARGES

Charges of mismanagement of the cafeteria at the J. Sterling Morton High school in Cicero were made against the board of education last night by Miss Evelyn Olston, who was discharged as manager of the dining room last June. They were contained in a report made by Miss Olston to Chester H. Bragg, chairman of the civic relations committee by the Morton Parent-Teachers' association.

MISS EVELYN OLSTON.

The discharged manager said the gross income of the cafeteria during her three and a half years of service was $391,500, and that there was a loss of $2,284. This loss would have been smaller, she added, if she had not been hampered by the board.

"I was compelled to buy from firms recommended by the board of education," she asserted, "although I could have bought much cheaper elsewhere. I was compelled also to keep 40 to 45 employés when 25 would have been ample. I had to discharge efficient employés to take on friends of board members."

BANKER SENT TO PRISON; CAUSED FALL OF CABINET

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Albert Oustric, the banker, whose affairs have been under investigation since the failure of his private bank in 1930, was sentenced today to one year in prison for irregularities in conducting the bank's affairs.

The failure of the Oustric bank in November, 1930, resulted in a scandal which involved half a dozen prominent bankers and brokers and was indirectly responsible a month later for the downfall of the government headed by Andre Tardieu.

PREDICTS SCHOOL SALARY CUTS TO BALANCE BUDGET

Appropriations Still to Be Pared $3,000,000.

Salary cuts for teachers and other school employés appeared nearer yesterday afternoon when school department heads ended an all day struggle to hammer down the 1933 budget appropriations to meet the revised resources of $69,442,424. Although trims of $1,406,766 were decided upon, the school budget is still more than $3,000,000 off balance.

Howard P. Savage, business manager of the school system, said a reduction in the salaries was the only recourse left open by which $3,000,000 could be pared from the budget. "The cut will probably amount to an average of between 12 and 15 per cent of the 1931 salaries," he explained.

"I don't see how we can escape cutting the salaries of employés," said Lewis E. Myers, president of the board, who attended the conference. Members of the board will hold a closed meeting on the budget this afternoon in Mr. Myers' private office in the Civic Opera building. Reporters as well as the public will be barred.

Basis for Budget Figures.

According to a tentative agreement between the board and representatives of the citizens' committee on public expenditures, the revised resources against which appropriations may be made are: surplus, representing uncollected taxes above expenditures, $8,234,508; miscellaneous revenue, such as rents and the state distributive fund, $5,223,472, and 1933 tax levies, $55,984,444.

In 1932 the school board reduced the pay roll appropriations by special devices, such as cutting out bonuses and shortening the school term by two weeks. This economy is reflected by a reduction of about 9 per cent in pay roll appropriations included in the 1933 tentative budget. It is estimated that an additional reduction of 5 per cent or more is needed to balance this year's budget.

A majority of the school trustees, among them President Myers, have gone on record as in favor of pay cuts if needed to balance the budget.

Cut More Than Million.

School Auditor Harry Brackett announced at the conclusion of the department heads' conference that $1,274,566 had been trimmed from the educational fund and $132,200 from the building fund.

The largest single item of reduction was $700,000 cut from the pay roll appropriations for teachers. Supt. William J. Bogan agreed to the reduction, explaining that savings would be made in the salaries of teachers who die or leave the system, where the places would be left open or filled with lower salaried instructors.

Other trims included a decrease of $250,000 in the educational fund and $100,000 in the building fund for interest on temporary loans, and $150,000 cut from an appropriation of $300,000 asked by Supt. Bogan for new high school teachers.

DILL CALLS FOR CUT IN U. S. COST, NO TAX INCREASE

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Sufficient reductions in federal expenditures to offset the need for additional taxes were advocated tonight by Senator C. C. Dill of Washington, addressing members of the Wholesale Dry Goods institute at their annual dinner at the Hotel Governor Clinton.

At the same time he warned that some steps in the direction of the more progressive and sound proposals now before congress must be taken to stem the "tremendous sentiment" for inflation sweeping the country. He defended the senate filibuster against the Glass bill on the ground that the branch banking provision was unsound.

Arthur Hestwood of St. Joseph, Mo., was elected president of the institute for the current year and F. H. Scott of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., Chicago, was named first vice president.

SEIZE BEER FLAT OPERATOR.

Daniel Dipillo, alleged keeper of a beer flat at 2124 Indiana avenue, was arrested late night when police raided the place and found beer, moonshine, and wine.

DENY DANGER OF CLOSING

The reported statement of Harry L. Tate, a Chicago school principal, before a senate subcommittee in Washington that the schools are in danger of closing in thirty days unless federal financial aid is obtained was termed "unfounded and unauthorized" last night by President Lewis E. Myers of the school board and Supt. William J. Bogan.

Mr. Tate's declaration was made to the senate banking and currency subcommittee in connection with testimony on a proposed amendment to the Reconstruction Finance corporation act to permit loans to school boards.

"I don't know what Mr. Tate means by saying the schools will close within thirty days," said Mr. Bogan.

"Mr. Tate was not authorized by the board to make such an assertion," Mr. Myers said.

School Pupils Get Rhythm in Junior High Art Class

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The scene is one of several art rooms in the Parker Junior High school, 68th street and Stewart avenue. Paintings in the extreme modern manner, executed by pupils, hang on the walls. Book ends of metal, book covers, charcoal drawings, paper batiques, and other products of the pupils are about the room.

"That's fine rhythm you have there!" Principal R. O. Witcraft exclaims to the instructor.

"Isn't it lovely rhythm?" the art instructor, Miss Bessie Webber, replies. "They got it from music."

How They Get Rhythm.

She explained "getting it from music" to a reporter. A record is played on the Victrola in the front of the room and the children are told to put it into rhythm in a drawing.

"Is that three-quarters time, a waltz?" Principal Witcraft asks, studying the colored drawings.

"No," the instructor said with an arch smile, "that's a little jazz number."

"What do the drawings mean?" Miss Webber was asked.

"We don't know," she said brightly. "The children don't know, of course. They are exploring in a new experience."

"Do you teach them any certain technique?" she was asked.

"Of course not," she replied. "They discover their own. Look at this design. We try never to have them make designs just to be making designs—they should apply them to something, a waste basket, a book cover, a bowl, bookends. This boy applied his to a book cover. He first put down his rhythm, and then he picked an elephant out of it. In his first sketch here you can't see the elephant. But he found it. And now see what he's done with the elephant in this design.

A Dog in the Rhythm.

"Here's a girl who found a dog in her rhythm. Isn't it just too fascinating? It is such a rich experience for them."

The phrase "rich experience" is heard from every side in a visit to a junior high school in Chicago. Principal Witcraft was explaining that one of the prime objectives of the junior high school was to provide "rich experience" for the pupils when he led the way into a general science course room.

"We're learning about the heating and ventilating system here in our building," the science instructor said. "This is primarily a cultural course," said Principal Witcraft. "A definition of culture is intelligently understanding one's environment. The heating and ventilating system are part of our environment."

On a blackboard was an instructor's diagram headed "How to Launder Clothes."

Soaking the Clothes.

Under the headings were topics A, B, and C. One of them put the question: "Should clothes be soaked before laundering?"

Both the art and the science courses are required courses in the junior high schools, for both boys and girls. There are three years of art study.

In a large room containing 16 cooking units, including porcelain sinks, metal topped tables, with cupboards underneath, and stoves, about a dozen girls were listening to an instructor. The instructor explained that this was her smallest class. The 16 cooking units provide sink, table, stove and cupboard space for 32. There are two of these rooms.

Principal Witcraft, explaining that the compulsory course in shopwork for boys was "a broadening and finding course," displayed the four shops in the school, a wood working shop, a sheet metal shop, an electric shop and a printing shop.

In the wood working shop boys had completed tie holders, oil can shelves, whiskbroom holders, ink stands, coat hangers and stationery cases. In the sheet metal shop they were making tin dust pans and cookie cutters.

Appreciate the Product.

"There is the angle of consumer consciousness to be considered," Principal Witcraft said. "When these boys now see a printed page, buy a motor car or a table, they will appreciate the product, the labor that went into it and the quality of it."

"What will they learn to appreciate besides dust pans in the sheet metal course?" he was asked.

"That shop may be taken out and another substituted," he replied. "Some persons feel that it does not provide so universal an experience as the other courses."

Principal Witcraft pointed out a girls' gymnasium, where girls in short green gingham romper suits were having "squad practice," and a natatorium, where girls were swimming.

A physical education instructor explained that the girls kept a health chart at home which they submitted to her, keeping a record of how many times a day they brush their teeth, how many baths they take, their hours of sleep, whether they eat a balanced diet and whether they eat between meals.

No Repressed Children.

"Equality of opportunity for every child is our aim," said Mr. Witcraft. "We don't want any repressed children, and I don't think ours are repressed. You see, they have no order in the way they walk down the corridors from class to class. They talk and walk as they please.

"So far as possible we incorporate the true spirit of progressive education. A real progressive school—and it has been said Parker Junior High is more like a good progressive private school than a public school—holds that if a child doesn't want to study arithmetic today he can study something else and put off arithmetic."

"How far would you go in having the state take over all responsibility for the child by means of the public schools?" he was asked.

"We are responsible for the child's morals and his character," he said. "We're responsible for making him happy and making him a good citizen.

"Wealth has obligations to the poor. There's interdependence everywhere. It is up to the schools to keep children off the street until they're grown, to keep them out of crime. The state saves money by letting us do so.

"But then," he added, "I am an idealist. I am more interested in children than in money."

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Among the 116 students of the Inns of Court admitted to the bar today were six women, one of whom is Mildred Dunbar Miles, a graduate of Wellesley college and daughter of H. D. Miles of Buffalo, N. Y. She was a student of the Middle Temple. Another one of the women is the English wife of Sir Atell Chatterjee, former Indian high commissioner in London. About 50 per cent of this year's candidates failed in the examinations.

PERSONALTY TAX VALUES—OLD AND NEW—COMPARED

Jacobs Gives Out Figures on Large Concerns.

Tables comparing the 1930 assessed valuations on personal property assessments of the larger loop banks, utility companies, department stores, mail order houses and packing companies, with the 1931 assessed valuations for the same concerns, were made public yesterday by Assessor J. L. Jacobs.

The tables represent a cross section of the work done in making the first personal property assessment since the abolition of the old taxing machinery by the state legislature last April. In many cases enormous increases in assessed values have been made. In others there have been decreases.

The assessed valuation of personal property in Cook county for 1930 totaled $769,842,262 after it has been revised by the old board of review. The 1931 assessed valuation fixed by the assessor amounted to $1,044,467,879. This has been reduced to $1,031,209,376 by the board of tax appeals in hearing country town complaints. Objections against the valuations in the city towns still are being heard.

Full Value Used for 1930.

In fixing the 1930 assessed valuations the old board of assessors used no equalization factor. Property as reported to the board's office—presumably at its full value—was placed on the assessment books without a change.

Assessor Jacobs said yesterday, however, that many business concerns in 1930 had reported only a fraction of the actual full value of their personalty. Thus there are individual cases where the 1930 and the 1931 assessments are the same or nearly the same, since for 1931 the concerns reported their full value and the equalization factor of 37 per cent was applied by the assessor, thus reducing the assessed value to 37 per cent of the full value.

In none of the subjoined tables has the appeals board revision for 1931 been taken into account since this work is not completed for the city. The 1930 assessed valuations listed are those fixed by the old board of review.

The tabulations made public by Assessor Jacobs, comparing the assessed valuations for 1930 and 1931, follow:

Aviation Notes

The organization of Chinese Commercial Aviation company with headquarters in Chicago, which is to raise money from Chinese people in North and South America to found an aviation school in China was announced yesterday by C. S. Jon, the executive secretary of the Peping company at 53 West Jackson boulevard. The organization is headed by Deer Sing Pon, owner of the Chinese Merchandise mart.

The company's plans are to employ Americans to teach flying in China, to build an airplane factory in China, to establish a commercial passenger air line in China and to allow the Chinese government to use the equipment of the school in time of war or public necessity.

Record flights were recorded by passenger, mail and express planes of United Air Lines yesterday, with a wind of 75 miles an hour at 6,000 feet altitude. # SAYS INFANTILE PARALYSIS DOES NOT HURT BRAIN

Effects Limited to Body, Dr. Lorenz Asserts.

[Copyright: 1933: By the Associated Press.]

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—An infantile paralysis victim is not disqualified "to be king, emperor, president, executive—he is only unable to become the run champion," said Dr. Adolf Lorenz, noted Viennese bloodless surgeon, on his arrival here today from Europe.

The disease, he said, instead of incapacitating the brain at all, may even leave the patient with a keener sense of optimism.

Groping now and then for precise English phrases, he discussed infantile paralysis as one topic in answer to the question:

"What in modern medicine interests you most?" The other two were cancer and tuberculosis.

At Present Incurable.

"Infantile paralysis," he said, "is at present incurable and all attempts to cure by serology therapy have failed. We can do nothing but correct the patient's deformity by some kind of surgery, bloodless or open.

"But this disease does not in the least affect mental qualities. It has absolutely nothing to do with a brain. A person stricken may get crooked limbs, but will never get a crooked brain. That means that his mental faculties will not be influenced at all."

"On what scientific grounds," he was asked, "do you base these conclusions?"

"Because," he exclaimed, "I've seen thousands of them myself. For 52 years I have seen them. Never one was mentally affected, never was there any symptom that had anything to do with incapacitating the brain.

"When the disease is over the virus which causes it is gone from the system, absorbed or eliminated. Some parts of the body may remain paralyzed, but the whole system otherwise is in absolute health so far as this disease is concerned.

They Become Optimists.

"On the contrary they tend to be mostly hilarious characters——". Dr. Lorenz paused to think of a more exact phrase—"that is, more optimistic. They bear their misfortunes with great philosophy.

"The person who has had infantile paralysis could never be your run champion. But he could be king, emperor, president, executive, or whatever else needs like qualifications.

"Finding a cure for infantile paralysis is not yet hopeless."

asked us to take over her apartment. She was going to Norway.

"My wife's mother and I did sublet the apartment and Miss Haug stayed with us until she sailed."

Rochefort said he first became suspicious while his wife was in Havana, where Stillman also was vacationing.

Tells of Finding Letters.

"I found some letters in the house and that's how I knew it was Stillman. I never met the man. I wouldn't have known anything about it but for those letters."

Concerning the charge that after Stillman began calling at the Astoria, Long Island, apartment, he demanded money of his wife, Rochefort said:

"They claim I was broke at the time, when the truth is I had a splendid job. I was working for the Reynolds Metal company. They were interested in my umbrella idea and thought they could make it of tinfoil.

"Well, no, it didn't work, but I've got a new idea for it now. Oil paper."

Intends to Press Suit.

"Do you intend to go on with the suit?" he was asked.

"I shall push it," said Rochefort, "until I get satisfaction."

When he gets his satisfaction, he added, he plans to sue his wife for divorce. She is the former Marjorie Nye, whom he met in Boston in 1914 and married after a whirlwind courtship.

"I gave her every luxury she craved," Rochefort said. "When the market crashed in 1929 I couldn't keep on, of course."

"You were badly hit?"

"O, yes," he said. "I lost more than $1,000,000."

Jury in Berwyn Bank Robbery Case Locked Up

A jury in the case of four men charged with robbing the American National bank of Berwyn of $11,409 last March, had failed to reach a verdict at 11:15 o'clock last night and was ordered locked up by Judge Philip Sullivan. The case had been given to them at 7 p. m. The defendants are Edward Lambert, 43, Tony Digirolamo, 20, Frank Eulo, 26, and Edward Kerbeck, 33 years old. All were identified by employes and customers of the bank.

HUNT CANOE THIEF IN JANUARY.

TITLE AND TRUST CO. IS ASSAILED IN FORECLOSURE

Lawyer Charges Receiver with Improper Actions.

Attorney Charles M. Thomson charged yesterday before Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher that the Chicago Title and Trust company, holder of a $25,000 mortgage on an apartment building at 4861 Kenmore avenue, had instituted foreclosure proceedings against the property, gained the appointment of Chester Davis, vice president of the company, as receiver, and ultimately assumed title to the land and building when the redemption period expired after buying them at the foreclosure sale.

Thomson also charged that Davis, while acting as receiver, had spent money which he collected from the rents in improving the property instead of paying off a portion of the indebtedness. The receiver has submitted his final accounting and a petition for fees to Judge Fisher, and Thomson also objected to the fees requested. He is representing William C. Wines, who was holder of the equity in the property.

Attorney Assails Receiver.

"It is highly improper," Thomson asserted, "for a receiver to be an official of the concern which is the mortgage holder. It is even more improper for the receiver's concern to bid in on a property at the master's foreclosure sale.

"I charge here that the items included in the master's report as expenditures under the head 'maintenance,' actually were not that at all. I charge that those funds were spent in improving the property and thus should have been classed as 'betterment.'

"It is my understanding of the law that a receiver is expected to collect funds and use them only for the purpose of reducing the indebtedness of the property in his charge. He is not expected to put money back into the property in an attempt to improve it.

Opposes Allowance of Fees.

"In asking that no allowances be made for fees I call to the attention of the court that fees in this circumstance would in effect be allowing funds to the owner of a property for operating it. I also charge that the receiver collected enough money to pay off the deficiency judgment of $1,000 left after the foreclosure sale, if the money had been kept for the equity holder."

Judge Fisher continued the hearing of the case until Jan. 24, saying that he wished to hear the defense of the title and trust company.

WINNIE R. JUDD CRAZY, DEFENSE FOR HALLORAN

Judge Will Rule Later on Motion.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Superior Judge J. C. Niles, sitting as a committing magistrate in the preliminary hearing of John J. (Happy Jack) Halloran on a charge of accessory to murder, today held in abeyance his decision on a motion that the testimony of Winnie Ruth Judd be stricken from the record.

The defense argued that Mrs. Judd is insane and not a competent witness. The arguments of Defense Attorney Frank O. Smith were made over the constant objection of the state that the hearing should not be turned into a sanity test of the star witness.

Mrs. Judd Blocks Questioner.

Mrs. Judd temporarily blocked the hearing today when she announced that she would stand on her constitutional rights and refuse to testify on cross-examination. The questions were to cover her story of the packing of the bodies of her two dead friends into trunks at her apartment.

She declared that the testimony would incriminate her in a second charge of murder still pending against her in connection with the death of Hedvig Samuelson.

Convicted of the murder of Agnes Leroi and sentenced to death on Feb. 17, Mrs. Judd was never tried on the second charge. The state case would collapse, it was pointed out, in the event of a favorable ruling for the Halloran defense. If the judge denies the motion, Mrs. Judd would have difficulty in obtaining an insanity hearing before her execution date.

Smith's Tactics Surprise.

The motion of Attorney Smith was a surprise move when he reached an impasse in the questioning of Mrs. Judd. The motion charged that Mrs. Judd is of "unsound mind—is physically and mentally diseased—did not understand the oath she took nor the nature of the proceedings." Smith argued that she is wilfully concealing material facts and repeatedly committed perjury. He held that she is not a voluntary witness, but appeared under duress without having been advised of her rights.

The motion came after a dramatic declaration by the defense attorney. His eyes filled with tears, Smith told the court that he had decided that he was unintentionally depriving Mrs. Judd of her rights.

The spectators in the courtroom had listened, amazed, as Smith had subjected Mrs. Judd to cross-examination during the last two days. The attorney explained that he had assumed that Mrs. Judd had appeared of her own volition. The record showed, he said, that she had been subpœnaed to testify before the grand jury. Her testimony there resulted in the charge against the wealthy lumberman.

Throughout Smith's statement, in which Mrs. Judd was pictured as a woman under sentence of death who was forced to testify, the convicted murderess sat quietly on the witness stand.

Cringes at Sight of Gun.

Previously she had cringed at the sight of the automatic pistol used in the slaying of Agnes Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson. Attorney Smith had walked to the witness stand, tossing the gun from one hand to the other.

"When you finally got the gun on the night of the murder in which hand did you hold it?" he queried in attempting to bring out the self-defense story of Mrs. Judd.

"My left hand was shot," Mrs. Judd answered. "It had to be in the right hand."

Afraid to Touch Pistol.

"Will you take the gun in your right hand?" the attorney asked.

"I don't want to," Mrs. Judd said, her voice rising to a shriek. "Why do you want me to do this?"

In his later argument Smith held that if Mrs. Judd's story of self-defense were true that there could be no crime and no charge against Halloran. He charged that the story of Mrs. Judd sounded as though it had been memorized.

Father Attacks Prosecution.

Mrs. Judd's father, the Rev. H. J. McKinnell, today sent a letter to the Arizona state board of pardons and paroles charging that his daughter had been convicted "to make her talk." "Ruth did not have a fair trial," the letter said, "and she did not have a legal trial. The jury was prejudiced and disqualified."

"A bargain was made in the jury room," Mr. McKinnell told reporters, "to give her death to make her talk and then have her sentence commuted to life imprisonment." He contended that the commutation to life imprisonment was to be arranged through a "pull one of the jurors had with the board of pardons and paroles."

A gray haired woman about 50 years old, aided by a man, last night took $60 in a robbery of the Gay-Time Frock shop, 4009 West Madison street. Miss Nanette Zlatkop, manager, told police the woman described as motherly in appearance, picked out a dress a week ago and said that she would return for it. When she reappeared the man ordered Miss Zlatkop to hold up her hands while the woman went behind the counter and took the money.

EDWARD FITZSIMMONS.

Edward Fitzsimmons, 32 years old, who was found slain yesterday beside the Michigan City road, near Calumet City in the Shabbona forest preserve, was engaged in the liquor racket, according to the police, who recorded his murder as another gang "ride" killing. Fitzsimmons lived with his wife, Mabel, at 4854 Blackstone avenue. He was a son of Policeman Michael Fitzsimmons, who died about ten months ago.

The widow told police she did not know her husband had been associated with south side gangsters in the booze racket. She said she had warned him not to go to Calumet City when she last saw him Wednesday noon. "I gave him a dollar and told him to go to a show instead," she said. Mrs. Fitzsimmons is employed in a restaurant at 4203 Cottage Grove avenue.

Fitzsimmons was well dressed and appeared prosperous. He had been shot from behind, the bullet passing into the back of his neck and into his head. He was a cable splicer, but was jobless.

NEGRO EX-MATE OF SHIRLEY KUB SUES FOR $60,000

Ned Ragland, a Negro and ex-husband of Shirley Kub, former police stool pigeon who was discharged as an investigator for the Secret Six last Tuesday, filed the præcipe of a suit for $60,000 in the Circuit court yesterday against former State's Attorney Swanson, Charles Mueller, and Charles Lounsbury, former assistant state's attorneys, and two former state's attorney's policemen, Michael Ahern and John Scherping.

According to Attorney F. L. Barnett, who filed the suit, Ragland charges false arrest. Two months ago Ragland filed suit asking that the marriage annulment granted his wife in Aurora be set aside on grounds of fraud.

325 POUND WIFE WANTS ALIMONY BY THE OUNCE

Cites Need for Special Food and Clothes.

Mrs. Mable Hewlett, 34 years old, 313 South Francisco avenue, who weighs 325 pounds, appeared yesterday before Superior Judge Joseph Sabath and demanded alimony computed by the ounce. She has a separate maintenance suit pending against David M. Hewlett, a city fireman.

"I suppose," remarked Judge Sabath, "that this lady will want alimony proportionate to her weight."

"Surprisingly, that is what we do want," answered Attorney Clarence Shaver, the woman's attorney. "This lady is handicapped by her weight. She cannot ride on street cars. She was forced to employ a cab to bring her to this hearing. She is on a diet her food must be specially prepared. And, I might add, she must have more food than consumed by the ordinary person. Her clothing, her shoes—everything she buys—must be specially made. I would like your honor to keep these facts in mind."

Asks Alimony Estimate.

Attorney David Hartigan, representthe husband, held that the earning capacity of his client, who has not been paid for more than four months, was the only issue before the court. Judge Sabath directed Mrs. Hewlett to estimate the amount of alimony that she considered necessary and continued the case indefinitely.

Mrs. Mae Kaspar, 27 years old, 2646 South Millard avenue, refused the offer of her husband, William J. Kaspar, to turn over his florist shop at 3914 West 29th street in lieu of alimony in another case before Judge Sabbath. Mrs. Kaspar, who has a separate maintenance suit pending, was given $12 a week temporary alimony. She asked $50 a week and said that her husband's earnings averaged $6,000 a year.

"My earnings have decreased," Kaspar told his wife, "but you can have the shop."

Stephen Boor, 2119 South Halsted street, obtained a reduction from $18 to $16.50 a week in his support payments to his divorced wife, Anna, and their five children. He told Judge Sabbath that his wife is earning $90 a month as a ticket agent for the Chicago and North Western railroad. He also charged that at the time of their separation his wife appropriated their joint bank account of $700.

Promises Further Help.

Judge Sabbath promised to reduce the payments further when two of the children, 18 and 21 years old, obtain work and are able to contribute to the support of their mother. Boor, a truck driver, appeared in court on the complaint of his wife that he was $200 in arrears in his support payments.

Theodore Weiss, owner of the Lagoon café at Kenosha, Wis., was ordered yesterday by Superior Judge James J. Kelly to show cause on Feb. 9 why he should not be held in contempt of court for failure to pay $400 in alimony to his estranged wife, Mrs. Sophie Weiss, 2016 West Erie street, who has a suit for separate maintenance pending, had been awarded $50 a week temporary alimony.

Evelyn Cushing, who was "Miss Illinois" in 1932, was named corespondent in the suit. Attorney Leo G. Hana, representing Mrs. Weiss, charged yesterday that Weiss had refused to pay the temporary alimony. On Jan. 6, the attorney said, Weiss prevailed on his wife to visit him at the Fullerton hotel. There, Attorney Hana said, Weiss attempted to make love to Mrs. Weiss and struck her when she repulsed him.

Victor Ambrose, 32 years old, 1755 West 47th street, was arraigned yesterday in the Court of Domestic Relations on a charge of nonsupport. His estranged wife, Victoria, told Judge Edward S. Scheffler that Ambrose was three weeks behind in payments of $7 a week for the support of herself and two sons.

"Your honor," Ambrose pleaded, "will you give me about six months in the county jail? Most of my friends are there." He explained that he had once served thirty days in the county jail and wept when they made him leave. Sentenced to thirty days in the House of Correction, Ambrose burst into tears.

"I'd just as leave be free," he said.

ENTRIES PILE UP IN CONTEST FOR QUEEN OF FAIR

Names of Foreign Girls Already Received.

Photographs of the prettiest girls in the country and the world are pouring by the basketful into THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE contest department these days, but the one who will win fame and fortune and rule over a court of fifty as the Century of Progress Exposition throws wide its doors this June is all unaware as yet of her exciting destiny. Nobody knows—not yet.

It is just as possible that the girl whose picture will be singled out for the grand prize of $5,000 and the title queen has not yet learned of the competition as it is that her photograph is already being passed around with admiring comments among the contest staff members. For those who have not as yet heard the Cinderella tale, here are principal facts.

Contest Is World-Wide.

THE TRIBUNE and its Paris edition, in coöperation with fourteen other newspapers whose combined circulation is nation-wide, have received the official approval of A Century of Progress to sponsor a search for the most charming girl, of any country or city, to reign over the inaugural ceremonies of the exposition in June. All that is necessary to enter the contest is to submit a photograph. That is all.

All the affiliated newspapers are now engaged in selecting and rejecting from the constant stream of entries. The other papers include the Herald-Traveler, Boston; Public Ledger, Philadelphia; Post, Washington, D. C.; News-Leader, Richmond, Va.; Courier-Journal and Times, Louisville, Ky.; Journal, Atlanta, Ga.; Item-Tribune, New Orleans; Arkansas Democrat, Little Rock; Journal-Post, Kansas City-Oklahoman, Oklahoma City; Express, San Antonio; Chronicle, San Francisco; Journal, Portland, Ore.

No Professional Beauties.

Only unmarried girls or widows will be permitted to enter the contest and no professional beauties, such as actresses, artists' models, etc., will be considered. It is emphasized that this is to be a contest conducted under rules which will keep it above the rating of the usual tawdry bathing beauty competition.

Two Chicago women have already submitted photographs of girls from abroad. One is a handsome dark haired girl from Germany. Another is an attractive girl whose home is in Poland.

Fifty-one winners will be picked. The first prize will be $5,000, second prize $3,000, and third prize, $2,000. In addition, $10,000 more will be paid out at the rate of $1,000 a week for the ten photographs to be printed in the Sunday rotogravure sections, one of which may eventually be selected for the Queen of the Fair.

Entry coupons for the contest are printed daily.

PICCARD SPENDS TWO MINUTES WITH MAYOR OF NEW YORK CITY

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Prof. Auguste Piccard, who explored the stratosphere, spent two minutes in the office of Mayor John P. O'Brien at the city hall today.

In accordance with the rule laid down by the mayor, there was no flurry over the visit. The photographers were barred when the eminent scientist was ushered into the mayor's office.

Five minutes after he had arrived at the hall the Swiss balloonist was whisked away from the plaza in a closed car. He was accompanied by his brother, Jean Piccard.

AURORA WOMAN DEMOCRAT HELD IN ROBBERY CASE

Residents of Aurora were surprised yesterday when they learned that Mrs. Ruby Chioles, 35 years old, who incorporated the Kane County Women's Democratic club last fall, is held in the Aurora jail as an alleged member of a bandit gang.

Mrs. Chioles, her husband, Chris, and Charles Ilbones, 820 Oakwood boulevard, Chicago, are to have a hearing on a robbery charge Jan. 27. Their bonds have been fixed at $4,000 each.

The complainant is Ernest Herndon, owner of an Aurora restaurant, who charges that on Jan. 3 Ilbones entered his place and robbed him. Mrs. Chioles, ostensibly a customer, was in the restaurant, and when Herndon seized his own pistol and started to pursue the robber she seized his arm and begged him not to "go out and be shot."

Ilbones was arrested in Chicago on Sunday while trying to hold up the restaurant of James Donnell, 2958 Diversey avenue. The Chioleses were in this restaurant also and the similarity of circumstances caused Herndon to go to the Chicago detective bureau, identify the trio, and swear out warrants. Mrs. Chioles called his charges "absurd."

PLAN HOSPITAL FOR FRATERNAL ORDER MEMBERS

A certificate of incorporation for a hospital which will give free medical service to members of the "Masons, the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Loyal Order of Moose, Eagles, Elks, Knights of Columbus, Sisters of the Eastern Star, and all other regularly constituted fraternal organizations and their recognized affiliate bodies," was filed with County Recorder Clayton F. Smith yesterday.

The following directors were listed: James F. Kenner, 3002 Jackson boulevard; John I. McDonald, 6432 Kimbark avenue; Freeland J. Sipp, 6432 Kimbark avenue; Dr. William H. Kenner, 716 Wellington avenue, and Attorney Andrew J. O'Donnell, 2612 North Clark street.

"Medical authorities have not been consulted concerning the hospital, nor have complete plans for financing the project been worked out yet," O'Donnell said last evening.

1933 RADIO REVUE SEATS REPORTED SELLING RAPIDLY

Seats for the Radio Revue of 1933, which is to be given at the Chicago Stadium next Monday night, are selling rapidly, it was reported yesterday from the headquarters of the Emergency Welfare fund. The receipts will be given to the fund which is attempting to raise $7,500,000 for the city's private charities.

Tickets are on sale at the loop and suburban stores of Marshall Field & Co., the Stadium grill and the loop ticket office of the Stadium, 65 West Madison street. Stars of radio as well as dance orchestra leaders and others will appear in the revue.

Gifts to the Welfare fund yesterday included $5,994 from the employes of the Prudential Insurance company, and $1,650 from the staff of the Great American Insurance company. The grand total of receipts is not much above the $4,500,000 mark reported at the beginning of solicitation this week.

On Monday campaign workers and group chairmen will gather at the Hotel La Salle for one of their last meetings.

WAR DEBTS LEFT OUT OF WORLD PARLEY AGENDA

Economists Blaze Trail "Back to Prosperity."

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Economists preparing a program for the projected world economic conference today excluded from their recommended agenda any discussion of war debts, but they acknowledged the importance of this problem with the assertion that until it is settled economic reconstruction will be extremely difficult.

The program which they drew up after two months' work and published this evening recommends discussions of six paramount matters.

Form of Agenda.

The detailed form of the agenda follows:

FIRST, monetary and credit policy—The conditions under which restoration of the gold standard would be possible; currency policy prior to that restoration; the functioning of the gold standard; silver.

SECOND, prices—The disequilibrium between prices and costs; measures for restoring equilibrium.

THIRD—Resumption of the movement of capital and the abolition of foreign exchange restrictions; existing indebtedness; the movement of capital.

FOURTH, restrictions on international trade—Economic causes and effects; exchange controls, clearing agreements, etc.; indirect protectionism; the possibility of the abolition of restrictions.

FIFTH, tariff and treaty policy—Cessation of tariff increases; reduction of tariffs; special aspects of the tariff problem; method of procedure; most favored nation clause, including permanent exceptions and temporary exceptions.

SIXTH, organization of production and trade—Economic agreements; wheat and other products; transport.

"Debts Barrier to Recovery."

Such a program as this, the authors declare, should make the projected conference successful and blaze the trail back toward prosperity.

Intergovernmental debts, which, of course, include the "war debts," were excluded from the recommended program because the committee considered that problem outside its terms of reference.

"Until there is a settlement of the debts issue, or definite prospect for such a settlement, these debts will remain an insuperable barrier to economic and financial reconstruction," the committee said. "We therefore attach the greatest importance to the early resumption and successful conclusion of negotiations with respect to this problem."

The committee, on which the United States is represented by Prof. Edmund E. Day, Prof. John H. Williams, and Leon Fraser, vice president of the World bank, followed a selective method of eliminating questions which might possibly be considered secondary and concentrated on the six which the experts regarded as paramount.

Business Restraints Denounced.

In an introduction to the published agenda the economists denounced the development during the last three years of "a network of restraints upon the normal conduct of business, and the throttling of business enterprise and individual initiative, measures which have developed into a virtual state of economic warfare."

If recovery is to be realized, this prevailing conflict of national economies must be ended, the report said.

"In its essence, the necessary program is one of economic disarmament," it declares. "In the movement toward economic reconciliation an armistice was signed at Lausanne. The London conference must draft the treaty of peace."

The organizing committee meets Jan. 26 to fix a date for the conference, which, it is believed here, will not be before June.

The American delegates, who feel like the others that an excellent job has been done, are leaving here tonight expecting to sail for home on the Leviathan.

15 PIRATES LOOT CHINESE SHIP; ROB 400 PASSENGERS

SHANGHAI, China, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A tale of how fifteen Chinese pirates plundered the Chinese coastal steamer Tahua almost within sight of Shanghai Tuesday night was received here today by vernacular newspapers from Ningpo, where the vessel, which does not have a wireless, arrived.

The reports were that 400 Chinese passengers were robbed of money, jewelry and clothing, the ship's safe was looted of 200,000 Mexican dollars [about $6,000 in gold] and the captain was forced to steer his ship to a nearby island where the buccaneers escaped. All this was accomplished without the firing of a single shot, it was said.

According to the vernacular newspapers, the captain of the Tahua said that the pirates boarded the ship at Shanghai Tuesday as passengers and that when the ship was outside Woosung they herded the passengers and the crew into the hold of the ship, methodically searching them and the staterooms, taking money, then jewelry and finally their clothing.

COLBY ATTACKS ALLIES' EFFORTS TO CANCEL DEBTS

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Asserting that repudiation of war debts is "unthinkable and cancellation or revision impossible" Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state, tonight urged that Americans attack the problem from new salients.

He spoke before the annual banquet of the National Retail Dry Goods association.

"There is every evidence," he said, "that the allies have a growing intention not to repay us the money we have loaned them. . . . No request is made for help or forbearance which a creditor might naturally be asked to extend a debtor."

WOMAN'S HOME LOOTED.

As Mrs. Roger Starnes, 5433 Winthrop avenue, entered her second floor apartment early yesterday, a burglar fled through the rear door, taking with him jewelry valued at $200.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Monroe Owsley, handsome young actor who played the man who "jilted" Clara Bow in Clara's recent picture, today was sued for $75,000 and accused of jilting Miss Catherine Allen of Hollywood, in real life. Miss Allen, who is small and blonde, and is not in the movies, accused Owsley of promising to marry her in October and refusing to wed her in January.

CHICAGOANS TIE FOR THIRD BRIDGE TOURNEY PRIZE

Miami, Fla., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Robert W. Halpin and Louis J. Hadad of Chicago, who won the first of a series of annual winter championship bridge tournaments at the Miami Biltmore Country club Monday evening, tied for third place in the "table of our bridge championship," played last night with partners S. Landhl and Maj. J. J. O'Hare, Havana, Cuba, champions. Their score was 19 out of a possible 32 match points. They were tied by Ernest Seibert and Samuel Katz of New York and Mrs. Vincent F. Boland and George Schryver of Cleveland.

Miamians won the "stable of four championship," ending play at 4 a. m. today with 22 out of a possible 32 match points.

Winners were Dr. J. S. Stewart Jr., John Hardesty, L. M. Hadley, and Horace Loomis. Three teams tied for second place with 20 points. They were Mrs. Olive Peterson and Milton C. Work, Philadelphia; C. Drummond Jony and I. B. Goldman, St. Louis, first team; H. O. Jorne, James Sloan, Ridgeway Bishop and A. S. Terry, Miami, second team, and Vincent F. Boland, Cleveland, Dick Sooy, Miami, Mrs. A. S. Terry, Miami, and Mrs. J. H. Bartlett, Oshkosh, Wis., third team.

All teams scored 20 points.

VOTE PRESIDENT POWER TO STOP ARMS EXPORTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—President Hoover's request for authority to declare an embargo, in cooperation with other countries, on arms shipments to troubled areas of the world was granted today by the senate and prompt house indorsement was predicted.

The legislation, sought by the executive after Secretary Stimson had urged it in view of international complications in Latin America and the far east, was in the form of a resolution offered by Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee.

It was called up by the Idahoan just before adjournment and approved without debate or roll call.

Although he had not sounded out sentiment for it in the house, Representative Rainey of Illinois, the majority leader, said he saw no reason why it should not be passed quickly.

Mr. Hoover sought the authority in a special message to congress Jan. 10 in which he asserted this additional authority should be granted or the 1925 Geneva arms suppression convention ratified. Mr. Hoover realized there was slight hope for the latter.

GERMAN 'VEST POCKET' CRUISER GETS FIRST TEST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—Unarmed and still flying the flag of the German merchant marine, Germany's trim vest pocket cruiser the Deutschland went through its paces today in its first trials in Kiel bay. It surpassed expectations by covering more than the 26 miles an hour contracted for.

The crew of 350 spent the day learning the ropes and wires of one of the world's most efficient warships. Though elated over the Deutschland, German navy men say that the cruiser cannot be called the equal of the superdreadnaughts of other navies, which are much bigger.

The cruiser, a 10,000 ton mineproof affair, was launched on May 19, 1931. It has six 11 inch guns and the biggest Diesel power plant ever installed in a vessel. The tonnages of all German warships is limited to 10,000 by the Versailles treaty.

Lame Duck Amendment Is Ratified by 31st State

Olympia, Wash., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Washington became the thirty-first state to ratify the "lame duck" amendment to the federal constitution today when the house of the Washington legislature passed a senate resolution favoring the amendment. Iowa and Delaware had ratified it earlier in the day.

Hoover and Roosevelt to Confer Today.

tion of the President elect. He invited me, and it will be for him to do the talking."

Stimson Met by Davis.

Mr. Stimson, leaving the Roosevelt suite, was taken in tow by Mr. Davis, who had accompanied the President elect to Washington, and by Prof. Raymond Moley, Mr. Roosevelt's expert on public affairs, who is to participate in the White House conference tomorrow.

In that conference the President will be assisted by Secretary Stimson and Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills. The treasury head is a leading sponsor of the theory that settlement of the war debt question is essential to the success of the economic conference. Mr. Mills contends that so long as foreign nations are held to debt payments on the present basis they will erect tariff barriers against American goods.

Arguing that tariffs will come down with war debts, Mills declared that the present foreign tariffs are not retaliatory to the Smoot-Hawley act but are erected to create favorable trade balances out of which war debt payments can be made and the foreign nations' currency protected from outside drains.

To illustrate ways in which he believes the present situation would be helped Mills declares that each new tariff forces back into the world market surpluses an additional amount of goods. Thus increased, the surpluses forced downward commodity prices.

Told of Legislative Situation.

In talks with Vice President Elect John N. Garner and other Democratic leaders which continued till midnight, Mr. Roosevelt learned that there is little prospect of any legislation in the remaining days of this congress except the passage of appropriation bills. The balancing of the budget, farm relief, repeal of prohibition and probably the legalizing of beer will all go over to the extraordinary session of the new congress to be called in the spring, Mr. Roosevelt was told.

Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah] called to urge Gov. Dern of Utah for secretary of the interior, to argue against recognition of Russia, and to speak a solicitous word for silver. Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] and Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.] got the President elect's ear. Representative Louis Ludlow [Dem., Ind.] led in a Hoosier; Representative John H. Moorehead [Dem., Neb.], a Nebraska delegation. As dinner guests Mr. Roosevelt had Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.] and Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Rad. Dem., Mont.].

In the midnight conference there were Senator Cordell Hull [Dem., Tenn.], James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], and Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], and Profs. Raymond Moley and Rexford G. Tugwell, Roosevelt experts on government.

At a press conference Mr. Roosevelt dodged questions about his talks with Mr. Stimson and the Democratic leaders. As to a special session of the new congress he said he would decide nothing till he sees what this congress does in the remaining six weeks. Asked how many candidates for the cabinet there were, the President elect said he had seen letters mentioning about six hundred and one of his secretaries said Mr. Roosevelt had seen only about half of them. Regarding the senate prohibition repeal bill which smacks of Republican doctrine, the President elect said he still stands by the Democratic platform.

DR. VINER URGES CANCELLATION OF WAR DEBTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Cancellation or reduction of war debts was advocated by Dr. Jacob Viner of the University of Chicago and opposed by Dr. Jacob H. Hollander of Johns Hopkins today at the conference on the cause and cure of war called by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

Dr. Viner argued that, while cancellation would not alone be sufficient to turn the economic tide, nevertheless a "generous settlement with our debtors" would be one important contribution toward making recovery possible.

Prof. Hollander, on the contrary, strongly opposed cancellation or even reduction except in the manner provided by the funding arrangements. He denounced as a "social menace" the cancellationist policy "urged by the debtors abroad and by a domiciled 'foreign legion' at home on moral, economic, and international grounds."

Partisan Day Spent Beating Hoover Reorganization Plan

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The house devoted its time today to filling the Congressional Record with political maledictions—at $40 a page—in order to "achieve economy" by disapproving President Hoover's recommendations for government reorganization.

With the pledged support of every Democrat, the passage of the Cochran resolution of disapproval, forecast as a certainty, was realized by the strictly party vote of 203 to 176.

But the issue, so clearly drawn, presented too inviting an opportunity for party war horses on both sides, and the Democratic leadership shelved the pending war department appropriation bill for the political free-for-all.

Snell Speaks for G. O. P.

Republican leader Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.] sounded the war cry for his party when he condemned the Democrats for trying to save jobs for patronage seekers after March 4.

"Has Mr. Roosevelt any special qualifications that will enable him to do a better job than President Hoover?" asked the New York Republican. "If Mr. Roosevelt in all his term as governor of New York ever severed one single deserving Democrat from the pay roll I'd certainly like to know who it was."

Democratic Leader Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.] answered with the assertion that President Hoover is striving to build up two great bureaus—the commerce and interior departments—as a nucleus for his reelection.

Rainey Leads Democrats.

"The department of commerce," said Mr. Rainey, "is a Hoover organization loaded from top to bottom with Hoover men. The interior department is a Wilbur organization loaded from top to bottom with Hoover men. The Damon and Pythias friendship existing between these two gentlemen has been interesting and pathetic.

"By this consolidation, adding more than half the number of changes to these two departments, Mr. Hoover builds up an organization of 40 to 50 highly paid bureau chiefs, with hundreds of employés, to become Hoover departments. Talk about a man who is going to leave Washington, who has no further aspirations. He is going to stay here, having built up in the national capital at least two departments, if this thing goes through, as the nucleus of a campaign for reelection."

Chinese Deportation Heavy in California; Use Up Fund

San Pedro, Cal., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The budget for immigration department work here is so short as a result of the American government's transshipping back to the Orient the Chinese subjects whom Mexico deported across the border, that immigration department employés at this port are working a seven day week on a five day salary. There were 2,300 Chinese driven out of Northern Mexico.

JUDGES SHOULD BE APPOINTED, ASSERTS LOESCH

Civic Leader Again Heads Crime Commission.

Recommendations that judges and the state's attorney be made appointive instead of elected officers were urged yesterday by Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission, at the annual meeting of the organization. He asserted that years of study had convinced him there could be no permanent, consistent policy of law enforcement in Chicago until this change is made.

The meeting opened the fifteenth year of the crime commission. Mr. Loesch, for the sixth consecutive time, was elected president. Others elected were Gerhardt F. Meyne, Bertram J. Cahn, and Charles W. Bergquist, vice presidents; Charles R. Napier, secretary; Nathaniel Leverone, assistant secretary; Melvin A. Traylor, treasurer, and George W. Rossetter, assistant treasurer.

Permanent Police Chief.

Another recommendation by Mr. Loesch in his address was a permanent commissioner of police. Once appointed, he said, the commissioner should be free from all political domination and should be removable only after trial for misfeasance or malfeasance.

"The election of our judges has been reduced not to election by the people, not even to nomination by the people," said the veteran fighter against crime, "but to selection by the politicians who control the majority of the ward committeemen of the respective political parties."

He recalled that the stamp of approval given certain candidates for Municipal judgeships by the Chicago Bar association had carried little weight with the electorate and that fitness of those chosen was often less than that of defeated candidates.

Bargain for Reelection.

Electiv judges, he said, were not independent, that their terms were short and that they often had to bargain for reelection with ward committeemen, "who are the most voracious office seekers and patronage mongers on earth." The judges should have life terms, and like the state's attorney, be appointees of the governor. He suggested a twenty-year term for the state's attorney.

Mr. Loesch added that he believed Mayor Cermak meant what he said when he pledged himself to end the careers of outstanding criminals. The "dignity and ability" of Chief Justice Prystalski and the six associate judges of the Criminal court were commended by the speaker, who said that trial has been speeded up and costs of prosecutions lessened.

Henry Barrett Chamberlin, managing director of the commission, also commended the mayor, Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court, and Chief Justice Prystalski for their work in combatting crime. Attention was called to the fact that the crime commission has aided in the drive against automobile thieves and is preparing a new certificate of title law, which is designed to make it more difficult for thieves to retain possession of stolen cars.

SHE GETS BARGAINS

HUGE DOLLAR DAY SALES GLADDEN STORE OWNERS

Traffic to Shopping Area Boosted 50%.

Every train, bus, and trolley car arriving yesterday morning in the loop let loose another horde of the greatest throng of bargain hunters ever seen in Chicago's downtown business district. Last night, wearier than they have been in months and happier than they have been in years, members of the State Street council voted the first unified Dollar day the most tremendous selling event they have ever sponsored.

Many Extra Workers Busy.

Surveying the upheaval of stocks on their counters and the filled cash registers left in the wake of the day's activities merchants in the huge department stores and in the small shops alike agreed that the day had been a winner. For the thousands of shoppers didn't stop buying when they found the dollar articles that had drawn them to the loop from a radius of many miles. They invaded the ready to wear and the shoe departments, the beauty shops and the bookstores, exchanging hard cash for everything from bakery goods to furniture in the wave of enthusiasm for purchasing.

"It just goes to prove," summed up one merchant, "how far some real stimulation goes in helping to bring business back to normal. It's been a privilege to be working among these vast throngs today. Every store has had scores of extra salespeople—there are 800 extra clerks in our basement alone, making 1,300 in all on duty there—and they haven't been able to wait on the customers."

One store employé stationed at one of the stairways leading into the same vast basement reported that at 9:30 o'clock in the morning that entrance was so choked with patrons that scores were compelled to wait their turn at the top of the steps. The mechanical clocking of the crowd at this point showed that 416 persons were descending the stairs each minute. There are more than a dozen such entrances.

50 Pct. More Passengers.

Elevated lines carried 50 per cent more than their average load into the loop during the day, officials reported last evening. The same average was cited by the surface lines and the bus companies. Each of the transportation agencies found that their peak loads had extended from the usual morning rush hours up to and beyond 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

"As nearly as we can estimate the volume of business offhand, our customers are spending 70 per cent of their money for Dollar day values, and 30 per cent for regular stocks at regular prices," was the statement from one of the larger stores. "We have sold hundreds of $3.95 jackets, for one thing. And we were surprised to find that at the silk counters the two yards for a dollar silks sold better than the cheaper quality at three yards for a dollar. Our dress departments report an excellent trade. That's the way it's going—and are we happy!"

She did not ask alimony. The couple were married on July 20, 1927, and separated last July 5.

CHUM TESTIFIES AGAINST CORRY IN MURDER TRIAL

Tells of Gun Toting by Boy Slayer.

CRIMINAL COURT.

John Buford, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory; Claude Lenon, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Ora Robinson, assault to murder, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge John Prystalski.

Joseph Adamek, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Varner Corry, 17 years old, on trial before Judge Thomas J. Lynch in the Criminal court charged with the murder of Policeman Edward Smith in the John Marshall High school on Memorial day, 1931, heard his former pal, Schuyler Pierson, 18 years old, give testimony against him late yesterday.

Young Pierson, with Corry and the latter's younger brother, Earl, broke into the high school two weeks before Memorial day, the witness said, and Varner stole a .22 caliber revolver from the desk of the gymnasium instructor. When they returned on Memorial day Varner had the gun with him.

"I asked him what he had it along for," said Pierson, "and he said, 'To scare anybody who tries to bother us.'"

MRS. MAE CRABTREE.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Policeman Gives Testimony.

Pierson was followed on the stand by Policeman Garret Fleming of the Fillmore street station, who questioned Corry after his arrest. The policeman said Corry had told him he was carrying the revolver "to shoot his way out, if he got into trouble."

Defense Attorney James M. Burke objected to this statement on the ground that Corry had not put such a remark in writing.

Widow of Victim Heard.

After brief opening statements by Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller and Mr. Burke, the state called the policeman's widow, Mrs. Helen Smith, as the first witness. She established a corpus delicti. Before the trial opened she told reporters: "This boy ruined my life. I think he should be punished severely. I believe the death penalty too severe, but he should be sent to prison."

Mrs. Mae Crabtree, janitress at the school building, told of discovering the boys in the swimming pool. She summoned Policeman Smith and later heard shots fired.

At Corry's first trial, heard without a jury before Judge Joseph Sabath, the youthful slayer was sentenced to eighteen years in prison. This decision was later reversed by the state Supreme court.

EXPECT RULING TODAY IN DENEEN DETECTIVE SUIT

Case Recalls Stormy Election of 1928.

An echo of the stormy primary battle of April, 1928, was heard yesterday in the Municipal court of Judge John J. Rooney. Evidence was completed in a $15,000 suit brought by the James H. McQueeny Investigating agency, 123 West Madison street, against former United States Senator Charles S. Deneen. A decision is expected following arguments of attorneys today.

The suit seeks payment for expenses of the agency in protecting the former senator and John A. Swanson, then a candidate for the Republican nomination for state's attorney, and also for men assigned to guard against fraud at polling places. The agency was hired by the Deneen Republican organization.

Homes of Leaders Bombed.

The 1928 primary campaign was marked by violence, and shortly before primary day the homes of Deneen and Swanson were bombed.

McQueeny asked $649 for his own services and those of two men. In addition, he testified, 84 men were hired, at a cost of $1,908, to investigate precincts where ballots were not counted, or were late in making returns. He further asked $3,600 for 38 polling guards in Cicero and 212 in Chicago and $9,240 for men assigned to guard the ballots in the election commissioners' office and $1,575 for guards in country towns.

Deneen Sole Defendant.

In an original action McQueeny named Jacob D. Allen, manager of the Deneen campaign organization, and Harry E. Hoff, his assistant, as co-defendants. Later the bill was amended excluding them, and an amended bill was filed naming Deneen as the sole defendant on the ground he was the head of the organization.

Of the total original bill of approximately $16,000 only $4,000 was paid to the agency, attorneys said. The action was brought for the $12,000 balance, with interest.

Former Senator Deneen testified that he did not authorize the hiring of the agency and that he was not responsible for the actions of the organization. Among Republicans who testified in his behalf were Edward R. Litsinger, and Anthony Czarnecki.

ILLINOIS LAGS IN FOREST CARE, EXPERT ASSERTS

J.T. Auten Warns Farmers at Urbana Session.

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Forestry development, it was said today, would mean hundreds of millions to Illinois landowners, industries, taxpayers, and wage earners. That was the assertion of J. T. Auten, of the central states forest experiment station, Columbus, O. He spoke today at the University of Illinois annual farm and home week.

Illinois, he pointed out, still imports nearly 98 per cent of all its lumber and 80 per cent of all its saw wood at a cost not far from a hundred million dollars every year, in spite of the fact that the state has more than 11,000,000 acres of idle and waste land available for growing timber.

Says Others Lead Illinois.

Other states have forged ahead while Illinois up to the present time has acquired only 3,300 acres for state forest, Auten reported. Furthermore, Illinois provides only a limited supply of nursery stock for tree planters, and adequate protection is not provided against forest fires, he added. Forestry was an essential part of the entire land problem, he declared, adding:

"New York has more than 2,000,000 acres of state owned forest lands and recently the voters approved a $200,000,000 bond issue to acquire and reforest submarginal agricultural lands. Pennsylvania has more than 1,500,000 acres of state forests which some day will help it regain the front rank of timber producing states.

Ohio, Indiana Active.

"Ohio has more than 60,000 acres of state forests, and Indiana has set up a definite program of land acquisitions with about 25,000 acres already purchased."

Auten declared Illinois' original forested area of approximately 15 million acres of fine hardwoods has shrunk to 3 million acres of inferior second growth suffering from depletion, abuse and neglect, while poor soil has been "cleared" for farming and erosion has impoverished large areas of better land.

CHANGES FRONT ON BIRTH CONTROL; NOW FOR LARGER FAMILIES

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The American Birth Control league went on record as in favor of larger families at its thirteenth annual convention at the Hotel Gotham today.

The league adopted two broad guiding principles for its future work. One was for making means of birth control as readily accessible to the ill, the poor, and the unemployed as it is now to the more privileged.

The other was the declaration in favor of larger families, which said:

"The numbers as well as the qualities of the gifted, capable, and socially minded members of society must be kept up or increased. Moral, social, and economic readjustments must provide opportunity and encouragement for the birth of children in sufficient numbers to families with good hereditary and environmental endowment."

Dr. Eric M. Matsner, medical director of the league, brought a rare word out of obscurity when he defended the league as having eugenic rather than dysgenic ideals.

"The birth control movement has been handicapped by opposition due to the misunderstanding of doctors and organized medicine and hampering state and federal laws," he said. "We are accused of fostering a movement which is distinctively dysgenic.

"The doctor of tomorrow must think in terms of preventive medicine and positive health, rather than the cure of disease. Particularly will preventive medicine of the future deal with basic factors, with eugenics and heredity, and as a result we shall have birth selection of human stock."

EDUCATOR URGES IDLE TO STUDY FOR BETTER JOBS

A man out of a job today is not necessarily out of employment, according to William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette college, Easton, Pa., who addressed the Chicago Kiwanis club at the Hamilton club yesterday.

He illustrated this by the story of the man who invented the player piano. It was during a time of depression and this man got permission to use the workshop of a pipe organ factory, which was idle. In six months he had perfected the idea of the automatic player.

"Men over thirty, out of jobs, are being given special courses free at Lafayette," said Mr. Lewis. "They are being taught mechanics and other things, and, what is more important, being lifted out of mental depression.

"We must show youth a new way out. We must make them able to tackle the problems of a new day.

"Now is the time for a rebirth of this country of ours. Optimism, not pessimism, should prevail. This country is not going under, but we need an altruistic, intelligent leadership. We must have confidence that it will come back through men whose hearts are with other men."

David H. Jackson presided at the luncheon.

HAVANA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Bail of $1,000 deposited on Monday by Adolph B. Spreckles of San Francisco, charged with bringing prohibited cigarets into the country, was declared forfeited today and an order for his arrest was issued. Spreckles, after depositing bail, returned to the United States.

"Flu" Spreads in Britain; 1,722 Die in Two Weeks

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Deaths from influenza in England and Wales totaled 1,041 last week, compared with 681 the previous week. As a result of the spreading of the disease all schools in Swansea will be closed tomorrow. Similar action already has been taken in other towns.

182 ACRE GIFT FROM U. S. PLEA OF LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Los Angeles county's request that the United States government make it a present of the 182 acres of Ross balloon school, Arcadia, this county, has received favorable action in Washington, according to a telegram from Congressman Elect John Hoeppel [Dem.] to county officials. Hoeppel said a committee had approved the return of Ross field to the county and approval of the full committee was expected.

The land, originally part of the Clara Baldwin Stocker ranch, was acquired by the government during the war for a balloon training school, but has not been used since. The government paid $55,655 to acquire the land originally, but failed to turn it back, despite repeated requests from representatives of this area, because southern California was not offering to repay the $55,655. Los Angeles county put up $93,000 toward the original purchase price.

Name Pershing Inaugural Parade Grand Marshal

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Gen. John J. Pershing, who has led numerous famous marchers down Pennsylvania avenue, today was appointed grand marshal of the inaugural parade of Franklin D. Roosevelt. The appointment was made by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, head of the inaugural committee. He selected Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the army, as alternate grand marshal and Brig. Gen. Perry L. Miles, commander of the Sixteenth infantry brigade, as chief of staff under the grand marshal.

IDENTIFY BODY OF WOMAN, 79.

The body of a woman found yesterday in the north branch of the river at Division street was identified at the county morgue last night as that of Mrs. Bertha Lemm, 79 years old, 4020 North Sawyer avenue. She had been missing three days.

"BABY REYNOLDS" LISTED; AWAITS HIS FULL NAME

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The birth certificate of the nine-days-old son of Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds was filed today with the city bureau of vital statistics.

Though the child's mother was quoted as saying several weeks ago it would be named "Smith Reynolds," whether boy or girl, the child was registered merely as "Baby Reynolds."

Mrs. Reynolds, the former Broadway singer, is the widow of Smith Reynolds, an heir to the Reynolds tobacco millions. He was found shot at his Winston-Salem, N. C., home. Later, when Mrs. Reynolds decides what name will be given her baby, it may be filed on a supplemental blank.

Dr. Norris W. Vaux, who is attending Mrs. Reynolds, said today that both Mrs. Reynolds and her son are "doing fine."

Your dentist knows that life itself may depend on the care of your teeth.

NO wonder he is so vigilant, skillful, concerned. Your teeth may be steadfast guardians of your health, or vigorous agents of disease. Just which they are is up to you.

Teeth kept healthy do their work properly. Unhealthy, neglected teeth may free virulent poisons, causing many systemic conditions.

That's why you should see your dentist frequently and regularly—at least once every six months, three is better. Follow his advice to the letter; you will never regret it.

And, when pain occurs, use a Poloris Dental Poultice and see your dentist as soon as possible. Poloris has been prescribed by dentists all over the world for 19 years.

Mr W E Donahue Advertising Manager
The Chicago Tribune
Chicago Illinois

Dear Mr Donahue

I know you'll be glad to know that our Dollar Day was a sell-out.

As you know, we never favored Dollar Day as we usually feature merchandise of the finer sort - but on your suggestion we cooperated and bought large quantities of very strong features - perhaps the strongest we ever put out.

It's now 4:30 and I'm glad to tell you that already 80% of our Dollar Day items are gone.

We did not use any other newspaper or any other publicity for this big selling event - The Tribune did the job alone.

Respectfully yours,

Maurice L Rothschild

MAURICE L ROTHSCHILD'S advertising for Downtown Dollar Day, yesterday's loop-wide selling event, appeared in the Tribune exclusively. Here, in Mr. Rothschild's own words, is the story of what happened.

"I know you'll be glad to know that our Dollar Day was a sell-out.

"We did not use any other newspaper or any other publicity for this big selling event—the Tribune did the job alone."

For years Maurice L Rothschild has been concentrating the bulk of his advertising in the Chicago Tribune. During 1931 Maurice L Rothschild placed 512,166 lines of advertising in the Tribune, or 58.6% of the store's lineage in all Chicago newspapers. Last year this store increased its lineage in the Tribune to 538,862, or 63.6% of the total Chicago lineage.

January of this year shows a still further increase. Up to and including yesterday the Tribune's proportion of Maurice L Rothschild lineage was 81.8%—while every other paper showed a loss.

And for Dollar Day the Tribune's proportion was 100%!

STATE MAY HELP CITIES' IDLE GET BACK TO FARMS

New Board Drafting Plan for Gov. Horner.

Gov. Horner's new commission on unemployment, of which Harry A. Wheeler is chairman, held a meeting yesterday to receive reports and draw up a plan for the state to aid in a movement to get idle men on unused lands, or on land that is burdened with mortgages, or in the hands of the counties for tax sales. A plan will be formulated in line with other relief measures and forwarded to the governor.

F. D. Loomis, secretary of the Emergency Relief fund, said yesterday that this was one of the important things that must be done in Illinois. It would cover garden plots as well as subsistence farming on a larger scale.

Plenty of Land Available.

"There is a lot of good land available where these men could produce some of their own food," said Mr. Loomis. "They might also get work in the neighborhood to help. The capital expenditure for each family would not be over $500 and five to ten acre plots would be sufficient."

The movement of the idle from the cities to farms has been going on for two years to such an extent that it is now estimated that it has stemmed the tide of decline in the rural population, which had been under way during the preceding ten years. The farm remains the proverbial place where a family can get enough to eat in hard times. The gain in farm populations during the last two years is estimated at 648,000.

Many of those who have already gone back to the soil have done so with their own resources, or with the help of friends. It now remains for federal and state governments to cooperate in an aided movement to this end, in the opinion of experts.

Start Community Farm.

Estimates for New York state are that the migrants to the farms balance those driven away by labor saving devices. In Pennsylvania there has been an increase in the percentage of families engaged in agriculture. At Newtown Square, Pennsylvania, Representative E. L. Stokes, with the aid of a bank, started a community farm with men taken out of a relief shelter. At first there were only six men in the group, living in tents. At last reports the men had built a house and had a cellar stored with apple butter, beans, potatoes, turnips, cabbages, peaches and jam, ham and bacon.

In Arkansas a survey shows that farm families have increased over 8,000. Lake county, Indiana, has made the farm and garden movement a part of its relief work.

Texas Plan Gains Favor.

John H. Shary of Mission, Tex., regional director of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and active in agriculture, has started a plan which is receiving the indorsement of many Texans. The idea here is that idle families in cities be settled on land that is now being cultivated but upon which debts rest.

The government would lend the money to buy the land and the money, when repaid, would be used in retiring the mortgage, or part of it. The loan would be repaid to the government over a long period of years.

32 STORY FEDERAL BLDG. CONTRACT FOR NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Construction of the new 32 story Federal court house, to front on Foley square between the Municipal building and the County court house, was awarded today to James Stewart & Co. of New York. Built of granite, it will cost $5,996,000 and is to be completed in 720 days.

There had been a long controversy over whether granite or limestone was to be used after excavation was begun last July.

The new court house will consist of a main portico seven stories in height, surmounted by a tower rising 570 feet above the sidewalk. In keeping with the architectural style of the civic center, the building will be in the classic style.

The offices of the United States marshal will be on the ground floor and the second, third and fourth floors will be taken over by the federal district attorney's office, grand jury rooms, clerks' offices and record rooms.

Three large criminal court rooms will occupy the larger wing and a commissioner's court room the smaller. Other court rooms will be in the tower and above each of these will be the judges' chambers and library.

Gets $200 to Go to War; 48 Heirs to Share $2,200

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 19.—(AP)—During the civil war, August Frei got $200 to take another man's place as a soldier. He put the money in a savings bank, went to battle, and was killed. The $200 has grown to $2,200 now and a judge has ruled that it be distributed among forty-eight heirs.

PILES

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

If you think a surgical operation is the only way to get rid of Piles, it's because you haven't heard of the harmless internal medicine discovered by a prominent western physician.

After years of study, Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the cause of Piles to be internal—congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the hemorrhoidal veins flabby; the bowel walls weak; the parts almost dead. Right away the doctor set to work to find a real internal remedy. He succeeded, and after prescribing it for 1,600 patients, with success in over 900 cases, he named his prescription HEM-ROID.

The doctor wants every Pile sufferer to benefit by his discovery, and so there will be no doubting or delay, Walgreen's everywhere are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if it does not end Piles in any form.

So why waste time on external treatments or think of an operation when HEM-ROID tablets are guaranteed.

Nazi Mob Hurls Gas and Stench Bombs at 500 Women

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN, Germany, Jan. 19.—A mob of Adolf Hitler's National Socialists, hurling tear gas and stench bombs, today attacked a meeting of 500 women held here under the auspices of the International League for Peace and Freedom.

In the ensuing panic scores were injured, while many others suffered inflamed eyes. The onslaught against the women continued in the street and police were forced to rush reserves to the scene to restore order.

The meeting was called to discuss the question of "national conscription and protection against air raids." As a Hamburg woman representative arose, a man jumped up and read a resolution addressed to President Paul von Hindenburg demanding the death sentence for all persons objecting to war. When he had finished Nazis hidden in the gallery launched their stench and gas attack.

Prepare for Military Training.

MAGDEBURG, Germany, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Military training will be incorporated into the schedule of the republican Reichsbanner, it was announced today at the opening of a model training camp. The Reichsbanner, it was said, will cooperate with the government which is establishing military training camps for young men.

Discuss Junker Subsidies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—How Princess Hermine, wife of the former kaiser, and the latter's friends, the east Prussian Junkers, made the government of the republic pay them subsidy after subsidy was the subject of heated discussions by the budget committee of the reichstag today.

The discussions strengthened the belief that approximately one billion dollars has been spent by the government on disgruntled farmers, with the junkers managing to get the lion's share.

Baron von Braun, minister of agriculture, said Herr Oldenburg-Januschau, one of the kaiser's henchmen and a neighbor of President von Hindenburg at Neudeck, was given credit for $150,000 on his estate, two-thirds of which already has been paid to him in cash.

Farmers' National Bank at Taylorville Closes Its Doors

Taylorville, Ill., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The Farmers' National bank, which stood the storm that closed the three other banks in October, 1929, failed to open for business this morning. It was a $1,600,000 institution with deposits of $1,397,885.11 as of Dec. 31, 1932. It was closed by the board of directors for examination and readjustment. There have been quiet withdrawals since the publication of the last statement. The only remaining bank here is the First Trust and Savings, headed by Ernest Hoover and backed by the Peabody Coal company.

HORNER RESUMES EFFORT TO END MINE STRIFE

Meets Leaders of Both Factions Today.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—With the legislators off his hands until next Tuesday, Gov. Henry Horner today resumed his efforts to bring about peace between the United Mine Workers and the Progressive Mine Workers, between whom he arranged a truce a week ago.

The joint conference of six representatives, three from each of the unions, reported to him orally this morning, and after their departure the governor said the only announcement he could make was that they will meet him again tomorrow afternoon. He declined to picture the outlook for peace as either rosy or dark.

5,000 Women to March on City.

Meanwhile, it was learned that 5,000 white clad women of Progressive miners' auxiliary and 50 clad in black from Mowesqua, where 54 miners died in a mine explosion Dec. 24, plan to march to Springfield next Thursday to present a threefold program to the governor and legislature.

They have been granted permission to parade through the streets of Springfield.

Fifty-four mining towns will be represented in the procession.

Their program to be presented to the governor and legislature asks idle insurance at the expense of industry and the state, instead of the workers; increased state aid for the idle and assurance of civil liberty, the right of free speech and assemblage, which it is charged, has been denied both in Christian and Franklin counties.

Thursday night the women will attend a benefit dance given at the State Arsenal.

Lindheimer Spurns State Post.

It became known today that Gov. Horner's efforts to persuade B. F. Lindheimer, one of his advisers and close friends, to accept a state appointment either as chairman of the commerce commission or elsewhere had been futile. Lindheimer is said to feel that he already has sacrificed a great deal for the public service and there are strong home ties binding him to Chicago.

The latest rumor concerning the directorship of finance is that Joseph J. Rice, Chicago financial expert, has taken under consideration for a few days the plea that he accept the post, despite the sacrifice it will involve. His answer is expected early next week.

Officers Are Elected by City Employes' Society

The following officers were reelected by the Municipal Employés' society at its annual meeting in the Bismarck hotel last night: Charles L. Bennett, president; Howard C. Brodman, first vice president; Jacob G. Bennema, second vice president; Frank J. Flanagan, secretary-treasurer, and Louise Chandler, assistant secretary-treasurer.

WANTS ROOKIE POLICE TO HELP CUT AUTO THEFTS

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

A plan to strengthen the stolen auto division of the police department was announced by Lieut. Phil Parodi, head of the division, last night after a conference with Mayor Cermak. Surveying the probationary policemen at the Fillmore station, Lieut. Parodi found that 48 have had experience as mechanics and chauffeurs and he urged them to make use of this experience.

Lieut. Parodi suggested that the rookie policemen spend their spare time investigating automobiles that arouse suspicion, with a view to qualifying for places in the automobile division upon finishing the police school.

Testifying previously before the grand jury, which is investigating auto stealing and stripping, Lieut. Parodi said the greatest need of the division is more men. There are now 93 in addition to the two working out of each of the 40 district stations.

Gilday's Second Trial for Shooting Is Set for Feb. 10

The second trial of Daniel L. Gilday, dry reformer, who is charged with shooting Herman Knol, 18 years old, was set yesterday for Feb. 10.

LAKE CO. TO BAR GANGMEN DRIVEN OUT OF CHICAGO

Four law enforcing officials in Lake county yesterday took action to prevent hoodlums who are being forced out of Chicago by Mayor Cermak's cleanup drive from transferring their activities across the county line to the north shore territory.

The officials were State's Attorney Charles E. Mason and Sheriff Lester T. Tiffany of Lake county, Police Chief Edwin Ahlstrom of Waukegan and Police Chief Edward Carroll of North Chicago.

They pledged themselves to hold the county against an invasion of syndicate beer, gambling houses, and vice establishments. Sheriff Tiffany had been informed that the gangsters had decided to make Lake county the playground for visitors to the fair, providing all the privileges which Mayor Cermak is curtailing here. State's Attorney Mason promised to get injunctions against all places named as undesirable by the sheriff and the police chiefs.

George [Bugs] Moran and Leo Mongoven were two of the hoodlums mentioned at the conference, as well as the leaders of the old Capone syndicate.

Few Washington University Students Name 48 States

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Fewer than 25 per cent of the students in the University of Washington could name the 48 states in ten minutes. The faculty rated little better. Among "states" listed by the students were Southern California, New Orleans, and District of Columbia. States omitted most frequently were Utah, Arkansas, Nebraska, Mississippi, and Iowa.

LABOR MEETING VOTES FOR SLASH IN WORK HOURS

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Workers' organizations represented at the international labor conference scored what their leaders regarded as a distinct advance today in obtaining adoption by the conference of a resolution indorsing a reduction of working hours as a measure which would contribute to reducing idleness.

The resolution, presented by the principal government delegations except that of Great Britain, and supported solidly by the workers' delegates, also favors maintenance of the workers' standard of living but avoids mention of wages.

The conference next began discussion of the question as to whether agriculture should be included in the proposed agreement on reduction of hours.

ETHERIZED GIRL floats in Air

ILLUSION:

This very old illusion was invented by Indian fakirs. The secret was unearthed in 1849 by the great magician, Robert-Houdin. At that time, ether had just been discovered, and little was known about it. Houdin claimed that he had discovered that this new anesthetic could make people light as air. To prove it, he caused the subject to rise into the air and float apparently suspended. He passed a hoop around the body to show there were no wires or supports.

EXPLANATION:

There are many, many explanations for this old trick. One is that the girl wears a concealed harness, which ends in a socket between her shoulder blades. This is attached to a piston below the stage. The piston is pushed up from below, causing her to rise in the air. The piston is invisible, because it is covered with mirrors which reflect surrounding draperies, similar to the background. The magician can pass the hoop over her body because it is cut in one place. It can be pulled apart for a second when it passes the piston.

Another "magic show" is cigarette advertising.

One of its greatest tricks is the illusion that cigarettes can be made miraculously "MILD" through manufacturing methods.

THE EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes today are made in modern sanitary factories with up-to-date machinery. All are heat treated—some more intensively than others, because raw, inferior tobaccos require more intensive treatment than choice, ripe tobaccos.

The real difference comes in the tobaccos that are used. The better the tobacco, the milder it is.

THE KEY POSTS OF THE CABINET.

The country awaits with special interest and concern the selection of the new cabinet. Two appointments overshadow the others—namely: that of secretary of state and that of secretary of the treasury. The choice of two strong men for these key posts and its announcement would do more than anything else in public affairs to hearten the nation.

For secretary of state the American people, who, apart from a very small minority, are not impressed with high flown experiments in international altruism, will hope for the appointment of a stalwart American, such a man as former Senator Reed of Missouri. With such an adviser in foreign relations we might expect a policy oriented from the point of view of American independence and security. We might expect that the doctrine adopted by Woodrow Wilson and largely followed since—namely: that the United States shall never profit from any international negotiation—would be repealed and a policy of just and reasonable protection of American interests substituted for it.

Such a policy is entirely compatible with wise cooperation in international affairs. The other is not, as our recent intermeddling has abundantly demonstrated. The recent victory of the Democratic party was won on domestic issues, or rather on domestic conditions, and in no sense can it be interpreted by the President elect as an indorsement of the official Democratic position on the league of nations or the league court, which were not an issue in the campaign or seriously presented to the people. On the contrary, as we believe Mr. Roosevelt is aware, in spite of the organized internationalist claque, the American people are profoundly opposed to commitments involving us in foreign politics and will react powerfully against a policy tending to entanglement as soon as it is forcefully challenged, as it certainly will be. The appointment of a strong defender of American interests will avoid that result, which would be injurious not only to the nation but to Mr. Roosevelt and his party.

Not less important, but more immediately so, is the selection of a strong chief of the treasury. The history of Democratic policy in recent years respecting public finance is not reassuring to the constructive forces of the country, and the conduct of the house of representatives under Democratic organization has justifiably alarmed them. It is no indorsement of Republican efforts to point out this fact. Patriotic policy, even farsighted party policy, will rise above partisanism, though party tactics thus far have conspicuously failed to do so. But if there is to be resolute and effectual dealing with our acute problems, upon the right solution of which recovery depends, there must be in the Roosevelt administration strength and clear headed devotion to the nation's interest in sound fiscal policy. To this the selection of a strong and sound man for secretary of the treasury is virtually essential. The announcement of such a selection would do more than almost anything else to stimulate confidence, hope and renewed initiative throughout the nation.

We may add that this presents to such a man an opportunity for service to his country that comes only in times of great trial, like the present, and it involves a duty which few other claims, if any, can counterbalance.

THE NEW SECESSION.

A resolution recommending the secession of 39 states of the Union has been introduced in the senate of North Dakota. The nine states to be deserted are the New England states, New York and New Jersey. The departing sisters, says the proponent of secession, will "carry with us the Star Spangled Banner, leaving with them [the deserted] the stripes which they so richly deserve."

The dispatch does not disclose the errors for which the eastern sisterhood is to be abandoned. In our darkness we crave light upon one question. North Dakota in 1931 contributed to the federal revenue less than 750 thousand dollars and received in federal aid about 2 million 283 thousand, a neat profit, it would seem. One of the abandoned states alone, New York, contributes nearly a third of the revenue from which federal aid is poured forth. New York paid toward this revenue over a billion and a quarter dollars and received in federal aid nine million. The rest of the abandoned sisterhood all contribute far more than they receive, and, with some few other states, notably Illinois, create the fund from which North Dakota and other western and southern states draw their handsome balances. We are wondering, therefore, if secession will upon consideration greatly appeal to North Dakota.

It is true, Illinois, a fat producer, is invited to go along, and other states which turn in a comfortable balance from which North Dakota could continue to draw her profits. But at best the fund would be sadly reduced by the loss of New York, by far the best contributor; New Jersey and the New England states, all incorrigibly solvent thus far at least. There is also for the secessionists to ponder the possibility, not to say certainty, that Illinois and other invited states will hesitate to assume, without the help of the abandoned states, the privilege of paying North Dakota so liberally for her sisterly companionship.

In short, we could understand a secessionist impulse in any of the states which are being bled white largely for the profit of North Dakota and other beneficiaries of federal aid, and it may yet come to that if the process is not soon arrested. But why North Dakota?

THE SHERIFF AND CRIME.

Sheriff Meyering should make himself a more effective factor in the war on crime. He has powers and facilities for fighting criminals which are not being efficiently and energetically used. The highway police, for example, are the police arm of the sheriff's office. They waste too much time playing cards or chasing speeders and prosecuting minor offenses of motorists. Their service in the field of more serious lawbreaking is not what it can and should be.

We are not blaming the men altogether or even principally. We rather think most of them would like to do good work. The fault, we believe, is higher up. There is too much inertia in command and too much politics. This can be corrected promptly and thoroughly by Sheriff Meyering. Any one of his subordinates who is asleep on the job or who is playing favorites can and should be disciplined or fired. There can be no doubt that the sheriff can have as faithful and competent a highway police as he wishes. The morale of the force depends upon him. The efficiency of its use depends upon him.

Sheriff Meyering came out of the war with an honorable record. It was for that his candidacy for sheriff was supported by THE TRIBUNE and others. Patriotic service in the war deserved reward and promised patriotic service in peace. Sheriff Meyering owes the same duty as a civil official that he performed as a citizen soldier. The community is in a war against crime. Sheriff Meyering owes it to himself, his well wishers, and his fellow citizens to be as loyal and courageous a commander in this war as he was a soldier in the war in Europe. The same flag flies over his head.

VENGEANCE COMES HOME.

Leon Trotzky accuses Stalin of driving Trotzky's daughter, Mrs. Volkov, to suicide through "a senseless policy of vengeance." The soviet government refused to permit Mrs. Volkov's 10 year old child to leave Russia to join her mother, and the mother to enter Russia to join her child. Not contented with this, as Trotzky charges, soviet agents in Berlin prevailed upon the German authorities to threaten Mrs. Volkov with expulsion from Germany, thus driving her to desperation and suicide.

Truly a cruel and pusillanimous persecution, according to bourgeois standards. But how many victims of Trotzky, when he was in power, are smiling bitterly at his protest, wives and children separated from exiled husbands, men and women murdered, to use Trotzky's word, for their opinions, homes invaded and destroyed, families broken?

The grief that has come to Trotzky he brought to thousands and tens of thousands of anguished hearts. If he pleads that they were a necessary sacrifice to the revolution, the plea is ready for Stalin. The record in numbers of victims, indeed, is all on Stalin's side of the dark account.

THE BEST PEOPLE.

[The Groton School Quarterly.]

PART 1.

To teachers of the young that orgy of words, of self-justification and abuse of one's neighbor, of foolish promises, half truths and appeals to fear, of evident lust for power and willingness to do almost anything in order to win which descends upon the poor, tired, baffled, disgusted, and yet ever hopeful American people in the years of a presidential campaign must be profoundly discouraging. For the teachers of the young, if their eyes are open one-sixteenth of an inch, must be forced to realize, in contemplating what Samuel Insull calls the saturnalia of the elections, that men who are trying to win a gigantic prize are very little influenced by their early education. A vast collection of acquired characteristics, such as sportsmanship, fair-mindedness, intellectual integrity, moral balance, and ability to tell the truth, fall off as soon as the tree is properly shaken in the tempest of ambition—leaving, no matter whether the man in question learned his three R's in a little red schoolhouse or graduated [at vast expense to his parents] from a church boarding school, something rather naked and ugly. There is probably some difference between a man of good education and a man of small education in such matters as the use of "ain't," or cheating at cards, or not wearing a white tie with a black waistcoat; but when it comes to something really important, such as politics, they are apparently as like as two peas.

Enough names were mentioned, enough names were called in the late election for us not to care to go beyond the anonymity of generalization. Be it said, however, that there was visible, tossing upon the angry and dirty waves of the campaign, more than one head which, by virtue of the schooling thrust upon it in infancy and early manhood, should have been exempt from, or superior to, the baser political instincts of the human herd. Over and over again, for the last few years, have we heard the complaint—usually from Englishmen: "Why don't your best people go into politics?" The election supplies the answer—there is no particular advantage in our best people going into politics, since, when they do, they behave quite as badly as everybody else.

Discouraging corollary: The best education can produce people who look as if they were the best people only so long as there is no prize so large and juicy as to make them forget that they are the best people.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

HE WIGGLED HIS EARS.

A very wise professor in the University of Michigan tells his students it's nothing to brag about if they're able to wiggle their ears; merely a muscular trick inherited from their primitive ancestors. The professor can sneer all he wants to; wiggling the ears is a most desirable accomplishment and a distinct social advantage. One who can wiggle his ears is an artist just as much as though he painted pictures or played the fiddle, the clarinet, the slide trombone, or the bass drum.

We were in the eighth grade in school when we first witnessed the triumph of ear wiggling. Our hero before that had been Les Suggs. Les had six fingers on each hand, the extra finger being a sort of additional little finger. But Les was not one idly to accept attention and homage merely because he possessed twelve fingers. Lots of people might, but not Les. He developed and cultivated the rich gifts with which nature had endowed him.

Les would convulse the whole room by dipping his extra little fingers in the ink well and then wave them solemnly back and forth. Then when the teacher would say, "Everybody will please sit with folded hands," Les would have a terrible time pretending he couldn't get his extra fingers to fold in. Then he could whistle shrilly by putting his two additional little fingers between his teeth and he would use them for snapping paper wads around the room. Altogether we regarded Les as a sort of superman and our admiration for him was unbounded.

Then one day a new boy came to school and sat down in the front seat. He looked like a singed cat and seemed scared to death. Les made his two little fingers point at him and all the girls giggled. The new boy blushed and hung his head, but just then the teacher went to the blackboard to write out some great truth such as "A Penny Saved Is a Penny Earned" or "Our Todays and Yesterdays Are the Blocks with Which We Build." The new boy sat up and then right in front of everybody he wiggled his ears. An earthquake could not have produced a greater sensation. We looked at the new boy and we looked at each other. The teacher, aware that something unusual was going on, turned sternly around. The new boy slumped down in his seat and drooped like Cinderella when the clock struck the fatal hour.

After glaring at us for a while the teacher turned back to the blackboard and the excitement rose to fever heat. Had that boy really wiggled his ears? Did you see it? Can he do it again? The new boy calmly waited until we all felt that if something didn't happen to release the tension we would scream. Then with great dramatic emphasis he wiggled his ears. Les Suggs sat in front of me. His head drooped; he knew he was through. And so he was, for from that day the new boy was our hero.

And he remained the hero, although he eclipsed everybody. At our little parties, where before each one of us could win a moment's consideration and praise by doing his little parlor trick, whatever it was, playing the "Oxen Waltz" on the piano, chewing a string together after it had been cut in two, blowing smoke out of his ears, imitating a circus steam calliope or a pig under a gate or something like that, the new boy would now look on nonchalantly and wiggle his ears. At once all interest was centered upon him; the girls would shriek with joy and the old folks in the other room would rush in and beg the new boy to do it again so they might see. He was the most popular boy in school until he got caught one night in a blizzard and froze his ears so badly he seemed to lose muscular control of them and he never could wiggle them again.

His popularity was gone from that moment; nobody ever invited him to parties again, and from being the admired of one and all he became a slinking, disappointed nonentity and was finally sent to congress to get rid of him. So the University of Michigan professor is all wet. A man who can wiggle his ears has a right to brag, only he doesn't have to. If people look at him and wonder if he is smart or talented in any way he doesn't have to waste words telling them. He just wiggles his ears.

TO A REJECTED SUITOR.

Laurel I have never seen
Nor myrrh I ever smelled,
And cypress gives her weeping green
Where darkened lives have welled.

Laurel never wound a vine
About your tall young brow.
You've never sipped the myrrh's wine
Nor borne a cypress bough.

Why do I turn from you?—
For you are fair and strong—
But any other man would do
(For you are dull, and life is long).

If he had myrrh about his bed,
Or but one laurel leaf—
If he had seen the hollow dead
And tended cypress with his grief.

A FARMER up in Wisconsin took two fine calves to the butcher, who said he couldn't buy 'em at any price, but he would trade a ten cent cigar to the farmer for the calves. So the farmer traded and says he drove a good bargain. After those calves are turned into veal and other things we buy in the meat shop that farmer ought to come down to Chicago and go into a market and try to trade his ten cent cigar for a little piece of liver. He would be arrested and sent to the psychopathic ward for observation. And our butcher down in the country years ago used to give us liver for nothing. How times have changed!

THE JEFFERSONIAN SIMPLICITY proudly announced for the inauguration March 4 gets simpler and more Jeffersonianish every minute. It is now announced that Gen. John J. Pershing will be grand marshal. Wonder if they can't persuade King George to come over and ride in his state coach.

GARGLING AND TONSILLITIS.

ACUTE tonsillitis is not the same as a common cold, or coryza. It is in the nature of things for the infection of a common cold to appear at one spot and then to spread along the surface. It is very prone to start in the nose, to spread from there to the nasal sinuses, up the ears to the roof of the mouth and tongue, and down the larynx involving the vocal cord region and on down the tubes, causing acute bronchitis or even pneumonia.

In traveling this route the chances are more than four to one that the infection will jump across the tonsils, leaving those structures uninfected, or the cold may start in the larynx or trachea and travel up to the nose, jumping across the tonsils.

Another kind of an infection causes acute tonsillitis, which is a separate disorder. A man who is very subject to common colds may have no tendency to tonsillitis and vice versa.

Almost since time immemorial it has been customary to treat acute tonsillitis with gargles. Dr. J. F. O'Malley says that while a warm gargle feels comfortable, using it does more harm than good. The trend of opinion now is away from the use of washes on self-cleaning surfaces. The theory is that the secretions of these surfaces are better cleaning and bactericidal agents than anything that man has succeeded in devising. If these natural cleansers and germ killers are removed the invading bacteria are able to push through the breastworks.

He thinks a warm gargle may relieve and do some good if it is inefficiently gargled, that is, if it is used more as a mouth wash. A warm red flannel rag around the neck does some good provided it is kept reasonably clean. A hot water bottle to the neck helps, as does radiant heat shining on the neck.

In feeding a patient with acute tonsillitis, let him have some soft bread or crackers in warm milk, coffee and milk, or cocoa.

The sovereign internal remedy for this trouble is some form of salicylate. Most of the tonsillar infections are due to some form of streptococci, and streptococci disorders, whether acute rheumatism, acute heart disease, acute pleurisy, acute tonsillitis or shingles, are made more comfortable by the proper use of salicylates, of which there are many. Whenever a person has an acute tonsillitis it is advisable to watch closely the heart, the joints, the kidneys, and the tonsils themselves. For tonsillitis and rheumatism are twins born of the same parents, having some of the same vices, though speaking different languages. Likewise, tonsillitis and acute heart disease are close relations, almost as close as brothers. Acute Bright's is entitled to be called a frequent associate and close neighbor.

If the infection gets just outside the tonsil it causes a form of abscess or boil, which goes by the name of quinsy. In quinsy the abscess has some tendency to bore down the neck and into the chest or to bring about a dangerous condition in other ways.

TOO BUSY FOR AILMENTS.

S. J. writes: I am 39 years old and have six children. I was married ten years before I had any children. In that period I had head noises, heard music and other noises. Now my children keep me busy and I feel fine and happy. Several of them sucked their thumbs. I did not let that disturb me. I was patient and eventually we got the habit broken without upsetting the children or being upset myself.

NEVER HAD A HEADACHE.

F. I. writes: I am 37 years old and have never had a headache. A friend says that some day I will get a severe one. Is that so?

REPLY.

Maybe you will, but nothing points that way now. You are much less liable to a severe headache than are those who have the headache habit.

TRY, TRY AGAIN.

V. G. writes: I have small warts on my face and neck. The druggist gave me nitric acid. I use the acid, but they always scab and return.

REPLY.

You did not burn deeply enough. Try again.

TRUST FUNDS.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am trustee of an estate of $1,600 since 1920. 1. Does the law allow me a fee for administering this estate? If so, how much? 2. If I invested these funds in real estate and they have gone in default and I am broke, what can the law do with me? C. C.

1. Unless the instrument vesting trust provides otherwise you would be entitled to reasonable compensation. There is no fixed statutory fee.

2. If you used proper care in the selection of the investment you would not be liable.

DISTRIBUTION OF ESTATE.

Hammond, Ind., Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man died in Wisconsin, leaving no kin except nieces and nephews and his wife. No will could be found, although we thought he had made one. 1. Would all his property, real estate, personal and money in the bank, go to the widow? 2. At her death [which was only five weeks after his] would all the property go to her brothers and sisters? One brother, being appointed administrator, emptied the house of its furnishings, sold some and made use of the balance. The hearing on claims is to be next April. 3. Is it not necessary to have an attorney? The nieces and nephews think they should have a share. 4. If so, what share? And how should they go about collecting? 5. Would a niece, who was taken into the home when an infant, raised as their own child, given their name, and remained at the home until her marriage, but was not legally adopted, have a share equal to other nieces or [6] a larger share? J. B. C.

1. Yes.
2. Yes, if these are her closest relatives.
3. For whom to have an attorney? Ordinarily it is advisable to employ an attorney to probate the estate, but it is not necessary for the heirs to be represented separately.
4. See preceding answers.
5. Yes, in the sense that she would have no share.
6. No.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 20, 1917.

CHICAGO. — "Prince" Arthur Quinn, son of James A. Quinn, 21st ward Democratic leader, was arrested charged with participation in the "Gold Coast" burglaries. He is accused on seven charges of receiving stolen property. A watch valued at $750, the property of George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial National bank, led to the arrest of Quinn. The watch, with thousands of dollars of other jewelry stolen in burglaries of Lake Shore drive residences, was recovered in a loop jewelry shop.

BERLIN.—The British steamer Yarrowdale was brought into a German harbor on Dec. 31 as a prize by a crew of sixteen men, says an official statement. It carried 469 prisoners, the crews of steamers captured by a German auxiliary cruiser in the Atlantic ocean. The prisoners on the Yarrowdale were from one Norwegian and seven British vessels. The cargoes of the captured vessels, the statement adds, consisted principally of war material for the entente allies and foodstuffs. Three of the vessels sunk were armed British merchantmen.

PETROGRAD.—Last night in the region northwest of Baranovichi detachments of one of our regiments surprised two enemy field posts. The posts were both captured. The enemy bombarded with heavy artillery the narrow valley in the neighborhood of the village of Bubnov. In the region of Zborow [Galicia] the enemy, after having destroyed our barbed wire entanglements in places by his artillery, assumed the offensive against our detachments on the heights southwest of Zborow.

OTHER WAR NEWS.—Petrograd reports heavy bombardment by the Germans of Ocna and the rail line along the Moldavian southwest frontier in Rumania. Berlin reports heavy losses for the enemy during attacks near Marasti. The Germans seized the Dutch mail steamer Prins Hendrik with an American on board. London reports the loss of four more craft, all neutral. Intermittent artillery fire on both the French and British war fronts is chronicled, as well as on the Italian war front.

EL PASO, Tex.—Predictions that the American punitive expedition will begin its long march across the deserts of northwestern Chihuahua toward Columbus, N. M., within the next 72 hours were made here by army officers who are in close touch with the movements of the expeditionary forces. It was unofficially reported by army officers that actual withdrawal operations were under way at El Valle, the southern outpost of the expedition, and at San Joaquin between El Valle and the field headquarters at Colonia Dublan.

HOODLUM POST, NO. 1.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Members of Yarmo-De Vere post, No. 469, of the American Legion have read with resentment your editorial of Jan. 18 advocating revocation of their charter. Your editorial slurs a body of good, decent citizens.

The past commander of Yarmo-De Vere post, who was in charge of the firing squad, did not state to your representative that Ted Newberry was a member of the post. Regardless of Newberry's past record, under United States law he is entitled to military honors, and the government allows a fixed sum of money to cover the expense of a military funeral to every veteran. The men who served on the firing squad at Ted Newberry's funeral were men who are out of employment and the few dollars they earned meant a lot to them. The past commander's only thought in providing a firing squad for Ted Newberry was to provide employment for these men.

The members of the post, including the commander and executive board, were not previously informed that the colors of Yarmo-De Vere were to be used at Ted Newberry's funeral and did not know about it until they read about it in the newspapers. The colors were used without authority of the post.

There can be no reasonable objection to furnishing a firing squad for a deceased veteran, even though he be a hoodlum, for, after all, he served his country when he was needed most and was honorably discharged from the service. The only mistake made was in using the American Legion colors.

The matter was taken up at a meeting of the post the evening previous to the issuance of your editorial. What action is to be taken will be decided at the next meeting.

No hoodlum is, or ever has been, a member of Yarmo-De Vere post, and no hoodlum ever will be.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—I see that Mayor Cermak is in favor of buying only such articles as are made in America of American materials and by American labor. I have just begun a one-man "Vote American" movement. I propose to vote only for Americans born in America of American parents.

THE HENNING SERIES.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—The series of articles entitled "Grave Tasks Confront U. S. as 1933 Opens," by Arthur Sears Henning, have been very interesting and instructive. It is my hope that when Mr. Henning completes this series THE TRIBUNE will publish them complete in some pamphlet form.

TAXES IN ILLINOIS.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—How is it that the advocates of tax exemption for fallow land, new building construction, etc., and of distinctions in tax rates upon various kinds of property, such as residence and commercial, tangible and intangible personalty, etc., can so carelessly ignore the fact that none of these things is possible under the Illinois constitution? It may almost be said that our constitution puts an impenetrable barrier in front of any intelligent revenue legislation in this state.

The amendment of the constitution in this respect is obviously of vital importance, and it should be the outstanding issue in any election where it arises. Upon the last three or four times when the question has been submitted to vote, however, the civic agencies which attempted to give publicity and gain support for the measure received almost no help from the newspapers or organizations of business men and property owners who have the most to gain from revenue reforms. ARNOLD R. BAAR,
President, the City Club of Chicago.

GOOD POLICE WORK IN MILWAUKEE.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—On Dec. 25-26 we were visitors in the city of Milwaukee. At that time we parked our car in a public garage in the business district. Upon our arrival home we found that several packages left in the car had been opened, the contents removed, and the packages rewrapped so that they appeared untampered with. We wrote the garage, and, receiving no reply, on Jan. 4 we sent a communication to the chief of police of Milwaukee, giving the location of the garage and a description of the articles taken.

Our letter written on Jan. 4 must have been received on Jan. 5, and on Jan. 7 a personal reply was received from Chief J. G. Laubenheimer advising that the articles had been recovered and the culprit arrested—a lapse of time of only one day!

I am writing this to you so that should any of your readers have occasion to visit the city of Milwaukee they can positively be assured of the best police protection at all times. It is indeed a pleasure to broadcast this incident.

JAPAN ANGRY AT RUSSIA OVER TREATY "LEAK"

Summons Soviet Envoy; Demands Explanation.

TOKIO, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Confirming indications that publication in Moscow Jan. 17 of Russo-Japanese correspondence concerning a proposed nonaggression pact has gravely displeased the Japanese government, Hachiro Arita, vice minister of foreign affairs, today summoned soviet Ambassador Trovanovsky to the foreign office and asked an explanation.

Arita asked why the correspondence was published without Japan's consent, and it was understood that Trovanovsky replied he would ask the Moscow government.

Despite this friction, foreign office quarters intimated soviet Russia and Japan already have agreed "in principle" to form a tri-partite Russo-Japanese-Manchukuan commission to deal with questions arising on Manchukuo's northern frontier.

Said Time Was Not Ripe.

The soviet government published a declaration by the Japanese government that it did not believe "the time was ripe" for a nonaggression pact. The soviet government said Japan insisted that the differences between the countries must be settled before the pact can be consummated, and suggested the three power commission, with the state of Manchukuo, established by Japan last February, as the third "power."

"The Japanese government obviously considers it possible to conclude a guarantee agreement only between countries where there are no disputes," Ambassador Trovanovsky informed his government.

Meanwhile, the Japanese army has begun what is called preliminary clearing operations in southern Fengtien province on the Jehol border by concentrating a large force, mostly cavalrymen, at Chinhsi.

Brigade Moves North.

The cavalry brigade which occupied Chiumenkow—a pass in the Great Wall of China 14 miles north of Shanhaikwan—and nearby Yunganpao, has been going northward along the border since Jan. 15, dispersing irregular bands en route.

This brigade reached Chinhsi this evening and joined forces with a cavalry regiment from Chinchow and an infantry detachment from Lienshan, according to a dispatch from a Rengo (Japanese) News agency correspondent at Chinchow. Airplanes scouted for and covered the various units on the march to Chinhsi.

The Tokio war office said similar preliminary movements might be expected to continue for some time, but the main operation against Jehol probably was weeks distant. A war office spokesman reiterated that the Japanese army fully intends to occupy Jehol before summer, but has no intention of advancing south of the Great Wall of China, which forms Jehol's southern boundary.

Break with League Near.

GENEVA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—While league of nations authorities were waiting today for Tokio's response to their latest proposals for settling the Sino-Japanese conflict, some commentators in Geneva expressed the belief that a "break" between the league and Japan was imminent.

Japanese spokesmen denied published reports that Japan had offered to accept American and Russian members on the proposed conciliation commission provided the league dropped its policy opposing recognition of the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchukuo in Manchuria.

The latest proposal sent to Tokio involved dropping suggestions that the United States and Russia be asked to participate if, in return, the Japanese would waive their other objections to the league assembly's plan of procedure.

This would mean that the Japanese would cease to protest against the facts and findings of the report of the Lytton investigating commission, including declarations that Japan's military action in Manchuria is not legitimate self-defense and that Manchukuo was established by the Japanese rather than by the people of Manchuria themselves.

BRITISH CABINET STUDIES CRISIS IN MANCHURIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The British cabinet met this afternoon in its first session of the year. Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, flew to London from Geneva by plane in order to be present. He brought Japan's reply to the league of nations' committee of nineteen. Although the British foreign office is still represented at the league's meeting by Capt. R. Anthony Eden, Simon's undersecretary, Sir John is expected to return to Geneva tomorrow.

Besides the Manchurian situation, the British are vitally interested in next week's consideration of the Anglo-Persian oil dispute arising from Shah Riza Kahn's cancellation of the concession controlled by the British government. Disarmament and the world economic conference, which still is scheduled to convene in London, are other matters in which the government is concerned.

Simon will carry the British cabinet's conclusions on the Manchurian situation to Geneva and it is likely final instructions on the Anglo-Persian dispute as well.

Ex-"Miss Chicago" Wins Decree Over Golf Incident

Mrs. Marcella Nongard, 7141 Bennett avenue, who as Marcella Kinkade was "Miss Chicago" of 1919, was granted a divorce yesterday by Superior Judge James J. Kelly from Richard C. Nongard, a bond broker at 105 South La Salle street. Mrs. Nongard, who charged cruelty, testified she separated from her husband after a golf match at the Beverly Country club last June. "As my husband was about to putt," she told the court, "I spoke to a woman friend standing near the green. He missed, threw away his putter, and kicked me on the shins."

LAUNDRY DRIVER ROBBED.

John Schroeder, 3812 North Clark street, a laundry wagon driver, was robbed of $17 yesterday by a man and woman who persuaded him to go with them to a room at 550 Melrose street on the promise of giving him business.

MARKS BIRTHDAY

AUGUSTUS BINSWANGER.

Augustus Binswanger, who says he is the oldest alumnus of Yale university in Chicago, observed his 89th birthday yesterday by reading hundreds of telegrams of congratulations from friends all over the country.

In excellent health, Mr. Binswanger began his birthday with a walk and then returned to the Sherry hotel, 1725 East 53d street, where he lives with his daughter, Miss Ida Binswanger. He spent part of the day reading Sandburg's "Mary Lincoln, Wife and Widow." Mr. Binswanger met President Lincoln at the White House.

Mr. Binswanger was graduated from Yale in 1867. He came to Chicago in 1888 and began the practice of law. He has one son, Alvin, and two grandchildren.

RADIO LEADS HIM TO WIFE HE QUIT 20 YEARS AGO

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The radio, which has saved ships at sea, carried words and music from city to city and driven tenants from one apartment house to another, had a new rôle today in court. It returned to Frederick [Spider] Tillman Jr. the wife whom he deserted, according to his confession, 20 years ago.

When "Spider" Tillman arose in the Chinatown Rescue mission to declare that he had been "born again" he little knew that his words, carried by radio into an apartment where his wife sat at the side of the man she believed to be her husband, would lead to a rebirth of married life for him.

As Tillman spoke and revealed his identity his wife trembled and with difficulty concealed her emotions from John T. Mulholland, the father of her children.

Mulholland, suspicious, engaged detectives and discovered that the mother of his children, who had been told that her former husband was dead, was really Tillman's wife. Today Supreme Court Justice Riegelmann in Brooklyn granted an annulment to Mulholland.

17 POLICE SQUADS AND TEN STEERS STAGE "RODEO"

An impromptu and exciting "rodeo," in which the members of seventeen police squads took part, thrilled a crowd of several thousand persons yesterday in the neighborhood of 61st and South State streets. The cause of the excitement was the escape from a motor freight truck of ten steers following a collision between the truck and a street car.

The liberated animals ran in all directions. A frantic call for help from the truck driver, Wilbur Blanchard, 28 years old, of Hebron, Ind., brought the police squads to the scene. Scores of civilians and a group of professional cowboys, summoned from the stockyards, joined in the chase.

Policeman Marty Meehan of the Woodlawn station, a former Oklahoma cowboy, gave an exhibiton of "bulldogging," accompanied by his Oklahoma cowboy yells. After three hours it was reported all but two of the escaped steers had been recaptured.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels, and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.

Beware the Cough or Cold That Hangs On

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

To Have Operation

TITO SCHIPA.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Tito Schipa, operatic tenor, will undergo an operation on his throat tomorrow which may add two to four notes to his voice range, Dr. Edward Kellogg said today.

Dr. Kellogg, who has cared for the singer's throat for seven years, said enlarged tonsils will be removed and an adjustment will be made in the "epiglottal space" in Schipa's throat.

The physician hopes to increase the top range of Schipa's voice from its present B flat above high C to E flat above high C. The singer will be forced to rest between three and six weeks after the operation.

SHORT ON CASH, OHIO CITIES TURN TO SCRIP, BARTER

Homemade Money Idea Spreads Over State.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Ohio, feeling a need for a homemade method of dealing with the idle problem and having a shortage of ready cash, rapidly is turning to scrip and barter.

At least eight cities, with a combined population of more than 2,000,000 persons, are considering the advisability of issuing their own scrip to meet city pay rolls or to aid them in meeting the problems of relief.

Another, Yellow Springs, has operated a barter exchange for months. Everything from potatoes to radios has been disposed of in exchange for things their former owners needed more.

Yellow Springs Issues Scrip.

Yellow Springs, the home of Antioch college, has issued scrip for use at the exchange, and the homemade money has done its work so well that Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, president of Antioch college, has urged its adoption on a wide scale as a "shock absorber" in the transition period of the economic readjustment.

"In all these movements," he said, "groups of idle have promoted their self-respect, exchanging productive capacity. Today there are 500,000 to 1,000,000 persons supporting themselves by exchanges."

As Dr. Morgan was giving his views here news reports told of the spread of the scrip idea in Ohio. Toledo, Dayton, Springfield, Columbus, Cincinnati, Cleveland, and Dover all have movements under way looking toward adoption of a local scrip.

Dennison Approves Scheme.

Dennison's municipal council has approved a plan for issuance of one dollar certificates to which each week the holder would attach a three cent stamp until, after 35 weeks, the certificate could be redeemed for $1 in United States currency.

Mayor Simon Kappler of Dover favors a similar plan, while at Toledo business men and city officials have indorsed a proposal to meet the city's temporary financial difficulties by the issuance of similar scrip through the finance department.

Plan to Make Idle Earn Food.

At Cincinnati a proposal has been made to establish a municipal factory on a "make 'em work for their keep" basis. The factory would employ needy persons and pay them in scrip redeemable in food and clothing at the city welfare bureau. The city would sell the products.

At Columbus, Dayton, and Springfield committees of business men are working on the scrip idea. Fifteen Columbus business men and Ohio State university faculty members will meet behind closed doors tomorrow to discuss the situation.

At Dayton a committee appointed by the city commission, and including both business and professional men, is studying a proposal for a "Dayton trade dollar corporation" which would print, issue, and redeem the scrip.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Arnold Wall, 6 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Wall, died in a hospital today after swallowing a small red toy balloon.

PHILIPPINE 'DIET' SPURNS FREEDOM OFFER IN POLL

[Copyright, 1933: By the New York Times.]

MANILA, Jan. 19.—The Manila Bulletin polled the entire Philippine legislature today on acceptance or rejection of the independence measure passed by congress, with the following results:

SENATE.

| | |
|---|---|
| For acceptance | 2 |
| For rejection | 15 |
| Noncommittal | 2 |
| Members of mission now in United States | 3 |

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

| | |
|---|---|
| For acceptance | 2 |
| For rejection | 60 |
| For delay until return of mission | 9 |
| Noncommittal | 19 |
| Absent | 3 |
| Members of mission | 3 |

Sixty representatives are definitely committed in writing against the proposal, but actually the senate opposition is firmer and better organized by Manuel Quezon, president of the senate.

Sentiment May Change.

While this sentiment may change when the independence mission returns from the United States and the measure is discussed, there is no question that present legislative opinion is overwhelmingly opposed to the independence act. Recognizing this fact, Quezon today requested that further discussion in the legislature be postponed until the mission has presented its side of the case.

Popular feeling is uncertain. It is possible that if the issue were taken to the country acceptance might win, although the Hawes bill, a prior enactment, drew adverse comment from virtually every provincial organization in the islands.

The provincial governors probably are influenced in their firm stand by their president, Leon Guinto of Tayabas, who is opposed to the measure. Manila sentiment is somewhat divided. The municipal political organization strongly opposes the measure and the city council will adopt a resolution again tomorrow condemning it.

Business Opposes Act.

The T. V. T. newspaper syndicate defends the mission, but thus far is noncommittal on the measure. The Herald, nationalist afternoon paper, will oppose the proposal. The Bulletin, which is American owned, continues to assert that the entire principle is wrong and that this is no time to consider action.

The business community, American and Philippine alike, is overwhelmingly opposed to the terms of the measure, bitterly resenting the attitude of the senate in the debate and the obviously powerful influence of the sugar lobby.

TELLS OF 7 PHONE BOOTHS USED BY FACTOR'S AGENTS

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A witness at the trial of Harry Geen, who is charged with receiving $70,000 in association with John [Jake the Barber] Factor of Chicago, testified today that seven or eight telephone booths were installed for the use of share salesmen who were selling Vulcan Copper Mine shares to the public.

The prosecution contends that Geen, Factor, and others conspired in the sale of worthless stock. The prosecuting attorney asserted yesterday that Vulcan stock bought at 25 cents was resold at $2.50 and that after the sales had been completed the principals went to America.

Evidence concerning the telephone booths came from Frank West, a clerk.

ROB WEST SIDE CAFETERIA.

Two gunmen took $100 yesterday in a robbery of the La Salle cafteria, 531 Madison street, without drawing the attention of a dozen customers. John Carlson, 5533 Glenwood avenue, the cashier, was forced to hand over the money.

DEPUTIES THROW FRENCH BUDGET PLANS FOR LOSS

Committee to Consider Socialist Proposals.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 19.—With the national deficit piling up at the rate of $45,000 hourly, the finance committee of the chamber of deputies today threw the government's budget plans into confusion by voting to consider the Socialist counter bill along with the government's project.

Members of the committee found the bitter medicine of economies plus new taxes and minus borrowing, as prescribed by Finance Minister Henri Cheron, too tough. They will attempt to dilute it with the Socialist nostrum, which contains no new taxes, very little economy, a lot of disarmament and nationalization of private insurance companies.

May Save Government.

This course was considered as the only one likely to save the government from certain defeat. Cheron's budget, on the model which former Premier Raymond Poincare drew up to save the franc, was not even approved in moderate circles. Bankers thought the increased taxation obnoxious and would have preferred to see Cheron fill up the hole with cautious borrowing. As for the Socialists, they are solidly backing the civil servants, who have defied the government to touch their salaries.

Political circles believe that Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour and Cheron may be saved from defeat in the chamber if they allow their budget to be revised according to Socialist ideas, but predict refusal of the senate to accept such a fiscal scheme. That means a new era of confusion.

Gold Drain Large.

The weekly report of the Bank of France today revealed that a trifle over $12,000,000 in gold has been drained off since last Thursday, making the decrease of gold reserves for the last six weeks close to $50,000,000. At the same time coverage of the franc rose, because of diminished note circulation, but the franc was very weak on the exchange today and the market was unsettled.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengue (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

Be sure beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengue by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic baumes, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

RELIEF AT LAST! FROM PILES!

Yes, no more suffering! No more pain, strain or itching. No more torture at the stool. No mater what form of Piles you suffer from—genuine relief for you is at hand in Pazo Ointment.

Pazo stops the pain and itching at once. More, it actually tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole. For Pazo is threefold in effect. It is (1) soothing, (2) healing, (3) absorbing. Thus it not only allays the inflammation and repairs sore and torn tissue, but it actually reduces the swollen blood vessels which Piles are. Thousands say that Pazo is the only thing that ever gave them real relief from Piles. Thousands say that it saved them the need of a painful operation. The method of application (see picture below) makes Pazo doubly effective. Try Pazo yourself and see that it means the end of your suffering. All first class drug stores sell Pazo in Collapsible Tubes with Perforated Pile Pipe, complete for 75c.

Perforated Pile Pipe Attached to Collapsible Tube Makes Application Correct and Easy.

The PAZO Collapsible Tube and Perforated Pile Pipe make it very easy to apply the Ointment high up in the rectum where it can reach and thoroughly cover all the affected parts. Complete interior treatment in all cases of Piles is plainly important.

Lovely Quilts of Other Days Put on Display

Shops Stress Handicrafts This Season.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Some of the shopping sights around the town . . . a patch work quilt showing that one store is sponsoring.

There you will see quaint, colorful old things that have been treasured for years, quilts with romance, made of a thousand tiny scraps of material carefully hoarded by clever feminine fingers of long ago.

There you will see crazy quilts made of gay bits of pieces, assembled in a whirl that will cause you to wonder where they all came from and who had the supreme patience and unflagging zeal to complete such a kaleidoscopic pattern. You will see patch quilts with squares no larger than an inch . . . others with complicated stars made of countless triangles . . . others with full blown scarlet poppies expertly and realistically appliqued on the snowy white counterpane.

If you want to recapture the lavender scented romance of the past spend an hour or two looking at these authentic originals loaned by the appreciative descendants of the nimble fingered ladies who made and designed these interesting old things.

Then try and get out of the show without toying with the thought of making one of your own . . . for now you can buy patterns and patches and even acquire the gentle art of patch quilt making right in the sophisticated shops in town. Plenty of interested instructors are ready to tell you the tricks of this revived art and so many colorful designs are available for copy that you will have a grand time making a final decision.

Another store will show you how to start and finish a bit of petit point, petit point for a handbag, a fireside screen, a seat cover, or a wall tapestry or cushion top. Printed color patterns with every soft color you will need in matching yarns are available. It's no trick at all to become an expert, for instruction is free if you buy the patterns and yarns in the same department.

And you should listen to the click and almost clamor of the busy knitters this winter . . . practically everybody is knitting, from the gay young gadabouts to the grandmothers who can knit anything in record time and without any fuss or fretting. This winter is the time to knit yourself a couple of lovely fuzzy angora sweaters and after they are completed it doesn't take very much courage to tackle the intricacies of a two piece or one piece suit of bouclé yarn. You can't go wrong, for instructors will gladly tell you all the mystifying stitches and guide and encourage any one who buys the proper equipment in the yarn department.

The afghan makers are legion . . . for you can either knit or crochet these suddenly fashionable comforts. You can reproduce the color combinations of grandma's day or you can go modern and knit or crochet some gorgeous modernistic designs that will fit in anywhere.

Indefatigable knitters will cheer loudly and almost lose a couple of stitches over the new huge five pound amber yarn balls, the large balls that seem endless to an amateur, but such a grand invention to the gal who knits and knits and knits.

This large ball being a most decorative ball of color, goes on forever without the necessity of splicing and knotting . . . which is something very special indeed; ask any busy stitch counter!

Report Greta Garbo Plans Trip to U. S. by End of Month

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Greta Garbo is planning to leave Sweden quietly about the end of this month for America, confidential sources revealed today.

The movie actress is experiencing no difficulty in arranging her reëntry into the United States, it was said. She appears in better health as a result of her vacation. Lately she has been leading a more active life, including theater going, horseback riding, and shopping.

Miss Garbo returned to her native Sweden last August. Subsequently, using a disguise of a black wig and horn rimmed spectacles, she toured European capitals, but the disguise was not successful. Movie fans sought her out and when she returned to Sweden she said her life had been made a "misery."

New Symphony by Russian Is Heard in City

'May Day' Piece Achieves Restlessness.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

In accordance with the duty of keeping his audiences in touch with new musical matters, Mr. Stock conducted the first Chicago performance last night of the third symphony, subcaptioned "May Day," by Dimitri Szostakowicz, one of the notables of the present day Leningrad composers.

Presenting new music, like other details of duty, is frequently its own reward. It is the only way to uncover hidden masterpieces, but it is sometimes a slow process. Szostakowicz by his own words feels a moral urge to write music. He believes that good music heartens and lightens people for work and effort. It is unfortunate, therefore, that he would seem to have the further belief that writing music in a different manner means writing it well. But, then, others have shared this belief, and will continue to do so.

This symphony is not the May day of buds and flowers, but the May day of the proletariat, a quite different affair. Szostakowicz's manner is never to develop a phrase, never to repeat it if possible, but always to pass on to something else. He achieves restlessness, it is true, and if the general impression is less that of the fiery ray of revolution than just bad musical grammar, this is the misfortune of the manner. At that, the experience of hearing the piece is by no means unpleasant, even though it has little incitement to smash the existing order.

The evening was one of symphonies, Haydn's "Oxford" preceding "May Day" and Brahms' second following it. All three will be repeated this afternoon.

Dr. Preston Bradley will address the weekly meeting of the Chicago Friends of Music at Orchestra hall this afternoon immediately after the Symphony concert. His subject will be "A Challenge to Those Who Love Law" and will show how the psychological importance of the new Temple of Music is greater than its being merely a place to hear good music. A chorus of thirty children of Polish descent from the Pulaski school will sing.

Chicago's stores have joined the campaign for 100,000 memberships to build the Temple of Music. Yesterday, Dollar day, many department stores provided booths for the sale of memberships. The Misses Narcissa and Lydia Swift, Jane Willett, Mrs. John Root, Mrs. William A. Yager, Mrs. Paul Noyes, and Miss Imogene Bucklin acted as saleswomen.

Tomorrow Mrs. Waller Borden will attend the cooking school of the Boston store to speak on the campaign. Memberships will be placed on sale at the close of the cooking school.

In celebration of its fiftieth anniversary, the Presbyterian hospital will sponsor two performances of "Tosca" to be presented at the Auditorium on Feb. 22 and 24. Maria Jeritza will make her first operatic appearance in Chicago in the title rôle of the work and John Charles Thomas will appear as Scarpia.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT? BY H. A. RIDLEY

(Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.)

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

CASE NO. 305.

On the night of May 21, 1930, Prof. Fordney sat before the fireplace in his summer cottage enjoying a last pipeful of tobacco before retiring.

His reverie was suddenly broken by a thud on the porch. Cautiously opening the door he was startled to find a body lying on his door step.

"My wife . . . she's been . . . killed!" gasped the man. "Thank God, I made it . . . had to crawl the last 100 yards. She's in the car half mile down the road!" Then the man collapsed.

Under Fordney's ministrations he quickly revived and accompanied the professor to the scene. On the way he explained: His name was Jim Tully. They'd been held up by two men. His wife had been beaten to death after refusing to hand over her jewels. Trying to protect her he had been knocked unconscious.

Ten minutes later, in the glare of his spotlight, Fordney was examining Mrs. Tully's body in the back seat of the sedan. The top of her skull had been battered and her clothes were torn and covered with blood. On the right running board he discovered a wedding ring which he replaced on the dead woman's hand.

Fifteen minutes later he and Tully drove back to the cottage. Tully, the coat to his well tailored and immaculate trousers missing, his white monogramed shirt torn and opened at the throat, sat staring at the fire. His bruised face bore a cut over the right eye.

With a quizzical glance at the man, Fordney went to the telephone and, while waiting for his connection, said, "If you didn't murder your wife, why are you lying?"

WHY WAS FORDNEY SUSPICIOUS OF TULLY?

Donald Day, Former Rotary Head, Will Direct Church Work

Men's work in the Congregational Christian United church throughout the country will be directed by Donald Day of New Haven, Conn., former president of Rotary International. This was announced last night by the annual executive conference of that church in session at the First Congregational church, Evanston.

Mr. Day was elected yesterday by the conference with the title of executive secretary of the national laymen's advisory board. He will leave his career in insurance and devote his entire time to church work. For 17 years Mr. Day was lecturer on business law at Yale university.

Dr. Raymond A. McConnell, pastor of Old South church, Boston, told the conference yesterday that the churches must greet the new day in social and economic fields. He asserted that unless such matters as just race relations, international peace, and economic justice are embodied in the church missions program there will be fewer and fewer pastors who will interest themselves in the church's missionary projects.

Role of France in Early U. S. Told at Party

Alliance Views Historical Society Relics.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Three juniors of the Alliance Française quietly congratulated themselves yesterday afternoon that they didn't have to chart a course across the Atlantic in the days of Marquette and Joliet.

Attending the tea of the alliance at the new home of the Chicago Historical society in Lincoln park, they studied with interest the rare old 17th century maps that decorate the walls of the French explorers' room, trying to figure out how any adventurer of that day knew whether he was on his way to the West Indies or the north pole. In fact, Miss Phyllis Walsh, who spoke in fluent French of the exhibits in this alcove and the New Republic room, found difficulty in diverting the attention of these three young women to the quaint French engravings that hang nearby.

More than a hundred debutantes, young matrons, and members of the senior alliance, came yesterday to hear Miss Walsh, a member of the junior society and a daughter of the John J. Walshes of Winnetka. During her talk, formally titled "The Early Years of French Influence in America," she revealed that she is taking her position as assistant curator of the historical society quite as seriously as her study of French.

Both of the French rooms bear witness to the powerful influence of France upon the United States in their infant days, as Miss Walsh pointed out. In the explorers' room handsome portraits of Louis XIV., Louis XV., Frontenac, La Salle, and Bienville frown down upon a black urn filled with bits of charred wood from the long lost burial casket of Father Marquette. And then, in the heart of the room, an exhibit case is crowded with all sorts of valuable relics, from the compass that helped Cartier discover the St. Lawrence waterway to a letter written by that French general, Montcalm, who fell against Wolfe in his defense of Quebec.

One of the members of the senior alliance admitted yesterday that she came for the express purpose of seeing the death mask of Napoleon made by the famous general's attending physician, Antomarchi. There are only three of these on this continent and the other two she had already seen. One is in a museum in New Orleans, the other in Mexico City.

The mask the Chicago Historical society owns has a dominant position in the New Republic room, a room with an architectural finish delicately reminiscent of French spirit. Here are also many reminders of Gen. Lafayette.

Miss Paula Wilms, soon to become Mrs. Malcom Hendersen, stopped especially to look at the handsome pale green brocade dressing gown Gen. Lafayette brought with him in 1824. The gown was recently given to the Historical society by Mrs. H. W. Elmer, whose grandfather, Gen. Robert Patterson, entertained the famous Frenchman in Philadelphia.

After Miss Walsh's talk and the tour of the gallery, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, looking particularly attractive in black with a bouquet of green orchids, entertained all the guests at tea in the current exhibit room where some interesting old prints of Washington are now hanging. Mrs. Dewey is president of the administrative council of the senior alliance.

The tea table, done by Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, carried out the theme of the afternoon's program, spread as it was with a cloth made in this country at the time of Lafayette's visit and decorated with bas-reliefs of an Indian and La Salle by Keneys, the sculptor famous for the lions at the entrance to the Art institute. During the tea hour Mrs. Dewey presented Rene Weiller, French consul, with a picture of the tea service that Lafayette gave to Gov. Derbigny of Louisiana.

Among those observed at the tea yesterday were Mrs. Ralph T. Winston, who said that the senior alliance is planning a series of causeries on Thursday afternoons, the first to be held next week, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, Mrs. John A. Chapman, Mrs. Eames McVeagh, Miss Geraldine Swift, Miss Constance Hasler, Miss Barbara Wendell, who has a position at the Historical society, and the Misses Louise Dewey, Mary Senior, Marjorie Goodman, Lucy Miller, Eleanor Litsinger, Marguerite Foster, and Peggy Wiley.

Brewster Art Collection to Be Open Today

Critic Describes Tour of Lovely House.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Today, tomorrow and Sunday, from 11 to 6 o'clock, the Walter S. Brewster residence, 2704 Lake View avenue, will be open to the public. It is a rare opportunity to see one of the loveliest houses and one of the most interesting collections of modern art in Chicago. The house was designed by David Adler, one of Chicago's leading architects.

It is in some ways a curious house. One enters a large hall and faces a staircase. To right and left of the stairs are dressing rooms. That for the men is decorated with a paper made up of old cartoons and pictures from Punch; the ladies' is done in Japanese wallpaper and Japanese prints. The prints are sophisticated nursery rhymes in Japanese; the accompanying pictures are delicate in color and amusing in theme.

One walks up the stairs on either side of which hang etchings and drawings. At the top is a spacious drawing room or music room, a piano gives that note. Here three large and striking paintings of nudes, women beautifully drawn, give one pause. From them the eye travels to smaller canvases, a little Rousseau, for example, a charming and quaint painting of a village street and landscape. On an occasional table are several exquisite pieces of jade, the gift to Mrs. Brewster of Mrs. L. L. Coburn, whose magnificent French moderns are still on view at the Art institute. On another table are fine bronzes.

Going into the dining room one finds a stunning portrait of Mr. Brewster over the mantel, and on the other walls various paintings of fruit and flowers. The superb Van Gogh is there and a Braque and Derain. Walking back through the drawing room one passes through a tiny den where the walls are close hung with tiny gems, a Fujita, for instance, and two attractive, formal Swedish paintings. The librar yis a large room, and one finds in it other jades and bronzes and paintings. Here, too, are several delightful Whistler wash drawings and a Muirhead Bone.

The house and collection are to be savored slowly. A visit should be a leisurely affair or you may miss something precious. The tickets of admission are $1.50 and the money is to go to the Chicago Public School Art society, an organization of infinite benefit to Cook county's children. Mrs. Brewster is president of the group.

One hundred members of the First district American Legion auxiliary attended a reception for Mrs. Melville J. Mucklestone, department of Illinois president, and other state and county officers, at the Hotel La Salle last night. The guests besides Mrs. Mucklestone were Mrs. Willoughby Floyd, Cook county president; Mrs. Maria Raber, county finance chairman; Mrs. Marie Southers, department finance chairman, and Mrs. Ella Edwards, chairman of the Edward Hines Jr. hospital committee. Mrs. Mary Hastings, first district president, was chairman.

Founder Tells Health Work in Mountains

Mrs. Breckinridge Speaks to Chicago Aids.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MOST of the lunchers that crowded the Drake dining rooms yesterday were talking wistfully about the joys of a West Indian cruise and wondering if they couldn't afford the price of a reservation on the Belgenland, which sails from New York on Feb. 25 for a 15 day trip.

The person responsible for this widespread urge for travel was that supersaleswoman, Mrs. Mary Breckinridge, who, at the annual meeting of the Chicago committee of the Frontier Nursing service, told her listeners how they could help the service by giving themselves a winter holiday on this delightful trip.

The meeting was held before luncheon in the Drake ballroom. In the large audience there were many who had not heard Mrs. Breckinridge before, and it would be surprising if these newcomers were not all converted to the cause of the Nursing service by the magnetic and appealing speaker.

The latter part of Mrs. Breckinridge's talk was a vivid description, with accompanying illustrations, of the Belgenland cruise. The Mercantile Marine is giving the boat to the service at cost, and if the trip is as successful as a similar one made last year the proceeds will cover the deficit in the budget of the service for this year.

Reservations Being Made.

Reservations already have been made by prominent friends of the service in Detroit, Pittsburgh, New York, Washington, and Baltimore, and Mrs. Breckinridge announced yesterday that Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, chairman of the Chicago committee, and Mrs. Charles S. Frost and Miss Virginia Frost of Lake Forest have decided to go. Mrs. Breckinridge herself is going, and will be a sort of hostess for the entire party. Mrs. Joseph Carter of Woodford county, Kentucky, a well known and charming member of the Blue Grass aristocracy, has promised to be a volunteer chaperon for debutantes and young men.

WAY WE PREPARE FOOD IS INDEX TO NATIONALITY

Many Dishes Alike Except for Method.

BY ANGELA PETESCH.

It isn't what foods you eat but how you prepare them that tells the nutritionist whether you're of Italian, Polish, southern Negro, or Mexican descent. At least such are the conclusions of an interesting study made recently by the Infant Welfare society of Chicago in which dietaries of certain foreign groups were compared with plain American meals.

The results show that the amounts of fruit, vegetables, cereal products, milk and cheese, meat and fish and legumes eaten by these people correspond quite closely to the quantities eaten by American families. In fact, many of the foods themselves are identical with ours and take on the foreign accent simply through the way they're prepared.

For instance, beets are a common American vegetable, but they seem to be much less familiar when made into soup with meat stock and sour cream.

Spaghetti Popular in U. S.

Macaroni and spaghetti are familiar to every American but the daily inclusion of macaroni in the diet and the use of a great variety of kinds of macaroni put an emphasis on it that is not familiar to Americans.

Navy beans are used by Americans in much the same way as pinto beans are used by Mexicans, lentils by Italians, and split peas by Poles and southern Negroes.

Large quantities of greens are eaten by both southern Negroes and Italians; escarolle and endive are served by Italians; and cabbage sprouts, mustard, and turnip greens are used by Negroes. Greens in the Italian and Negro diet enjoy a position that cannot be claimed by spinach in the American diet.

Menus and recipes recorded by families during this study are most interesting. For example:

When analyzed by nutritionists these dietaries reveal two interesting facts: First, that the diets of other races living in Chicago are as good, if not better, a foundation on which to build adequate nourishment as the diet of Americans; and second, that on the food allowance provided by the unemployment relief service it is for the most part possible for housewives to supply the food that meets the nutritional needs of their families and at the same time to prepare them in the ways most popular with their individual nationalities.

Red cabbage usually loses its original attractive color in cooking and takes on a purplish tinge. Experiments have shown that a little lemon juice or vinegar added just before serving restores the more attractive crimson tinge.

SUNDAY DINNER MAY BE PERFECT 100% AMERICAN

Native Foods Were Long Unknown to Europe.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a new Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented weekly by Miss Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 9:45 tomorrow for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

The next time you sit down to a Sunday dinner or holiday feast of chilly tomato juice cocktail, roast turkey with black walnut dressing, cranberry jelly, fluffy white or luscious sweet potatoes, baked squash, avocado or pineapple salad, hot corn muffins and, to crown it all, pumpkin pie, take time out to be sorry for the homemakers of the thirteenth century. For if the lord of the house had ordered up such a meal in that day he'd have gone hungry, with nary a thing on the table. And the only way he could have filled up the aching void would have been to get the jump on Columbus and come to America.

For tomatoes, turkey, black walnuts, cranberries, white and sweet potatoes, squashes, avocados, pineapple, corn and pumpkins were unknown pleasures to Europe, Asia, and the rest of the world before they and a wide variety of other taste teasers were introduced from the new world. Of course nowadays many of these foods have become so well liked and largely produced on the continent that we may find ourselves eating imported delicacies whose great-grandparents were once native Americans. But still it gives one rather a patriotic throb to know that if we wish, our Sunday dinner may be 100 per cent "buy American."

But these are not all the all-American foods we can call our own. In addition to that Sunday menu of ours, we may claim cassava or mandioca, the tropical dasheen or eddoes, Jerusalem artichokes, kidney beans, lima beans, fox grape [parent of the concords and catawba], cacao "bean" [from which comes chocolate], vanilla, paw paws, papaya, maple sugar, wild rice, hickory nuts, pecans, persimmons, tuna fruit, bell peppers or pimento, cone pepper, and sunflower seeds. An interesting display of these American plant foods has recently been set up at the Field Museum of Natural History, so if you don't recognize some of these brother Americans by name, you may have a chance of getting acquainted with them first hand.

Or if you would prefer to become a more versatile cook with the American products which beckon from every vegetable counter, may I offer these suggestions:

LIMA BEAN LUNCHEON LOAF.

2½ cups mashed lima beans
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup cracker crumbs
¾ tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
1-3 tsp. poultry seasoning
½ tsp. onion juice.

Blend all the ingredients and turn into a greased bread pan, packing the loaf down well. Bake in a moderately hot oven [375 degrees F.] for half an hour. Turn out into a deep hot platter, pour a spicy tomato sauce around and garnish with minced parsley.

CELERY STUFFED WITH AVOCADO.

Here's something new and alluringly flavorsome for the Sunday night buffet supper. Select celery which furnishes quite large grooves. Select an avocado with flesh which just gives gently to the pressure of the hands, and mash the flesh till smooth and fluffy. Season with salt and pepper and a few drops of lemon juice and blend with it one-third the quantity of anchovy paste or mashed, spicy sardines. Fill the celery stalks and spangle each filling with small diamonds of pimiento. Serve the stalks in a bed of crisp lettuce or endive.

Savory Porterhouse Steak Named by Charles Dickens

To the growing list of definitions and explanations concerning the romance and development of the food supply and food habits of Americans, has been added the story of how porterhouse steak received its name. Charles Dickens is credited with establishing the term after a visit in 1847 to a small hotel in Sandusky, Ohio, where he dined at what was known as the Porter House.

ONION SOUFFLE! NOW THERE IS A REAL DELICACY

It's the Pride of Every Chef's Menu.

BY IRENE STYSKAL.

Sensative historians have sought to surround its Indian derivation with a more esthetic perfumery than that of wild onions, but forever about the name Chicago will cling that homely, wholesome "big smell" which greeted the appreciative French noses of Pere Marquette and Louis Joliet on the banks of the river Checagou some two hundred and sixty years ago.

Though the city has accumulated little in the way of odes and sonnets in praise of the vegetable from which, according to early lore, its name sprung, paeans of praise from the epicures have not been wanting. The following onion recipes are worthy of a place in every Chicago housewife's onionia.

ONION SOUP.

4 large onions
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Parmesan cheese, grated.
6 cups broth
Toasted French bread
Salt and pepper to taste

Slice the onions and saute them in the butter in a large stew pan. For the broth you may use beef cubes and water. Add the broth to the onion, season and boil ten minutes. Then add parsley. Pour the soup into a casserole, cover it with the toast, sprinkle generously with cheese and brown in a hot oven.

"Add a Little Onion."

Many a culinary masterpiece owes its excellence to the flavor contributed by the juice of onion. In using it, however, moderation should be the watchword. A suggestion of onion flavor in a cream cheese filling will bring the enthusiastic response which is the hostess' assurance that she has achieved something above the commonplace in sandwich making.

An oldfashioned, but always pleasing accompaniment to fish is the relish made of onion and mint leaves, both finely chopped and in equal proportion, and sufficient sweetened vinegar to cover the mixture.

A delectable salad can be arranged on a crisp lettuce with slices of orange interspersed with silvery slices of the mild, sweet Bermuda onion.

Saratoga onions, to be served as a border with roasts, fish or steak, are made by cutting onions in one-fourth inch slices crosswise. These are separated into rings, dipped in milk and drained, then dredged with flour and fried until crisp, in deep fat.

Onion Souffle! O Boy!

But the pride of the extensive family of onion dishes is onion souffle. The following recipe is recommended by Mary Meade:

ONION SOUFFLE.

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of paprika
1 cup of milk
2 eggs
½ cup stale bread crumbs
1 cup cold boiled onions, finely chopped
1 teaspoon chopped parsley

Melt the butter in a saucepan and add flour, salt, and paprika. When these are mixed smoothly, gradually add milk. When the sauce boils—after the milk has been added—add the bread crumbs. Add chopped parsley, onions, and well beaten yolks of eggs. Cool slightly. Beat the egg whites until they are stiff, and fold into the onion mixture. Bake in a buttered baking dish, which is set in a pan of water in a moderate oven [350 degrees Fahrenheit] for 15 or 20 minutes. Serve at once with a white or tomato sauce.

SEVERAL NATIONS STUDYING CAFFEINE CONTENT OF COFFEE

A variation in the caffeine content of coffee, from which it obtains the stimulating effect that so "cheers" the consumer, is being studied by representatives of several governments in whose countries coffee is produced on a large scale.

The variation runs all the way from coffee without caffeine found in a native variety of coffee trees in the Grand Comoro island off the coast of South Africa to a content of 2.2 per cent caffeine in the Botucatu coffee from Brazil.

Other characteristics in coffees which lend them to blending by importers and roasters include the variation in content of oils, acids and other substances associated with flavor; variations in size, form and color of the coffee bean; variations in bean structure and in the hardiness and size of shrubs or trees yielding the precious beans.

Prices Low on Pot Roast of Beef Over Week-End

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states:

"Pot roast of beef is recommended to the housewife of Chicago as the most economical meat buy over the coming week end. All cuts of pork are also selling at unusually low prices in Chicago retail stores at the present time."

DON'T LET COMMON CONSTIPATION DULL THE JOY OF LIVING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation takes the sunshine out of your days. It may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, sallow skins, pimples. If neglected, it can seriously impair health.

Fortunately, you can avoid this condition by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than dosing yourself with patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

CITRUS FRUITS ARE HAILED AS AID TO HEALTH

Three States Furnish 150,000 Carloads.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

The citrus fruit industry with its accompaniment of fruits and vegetables from the west and the southland during months when similar fresh vegetables and fruits are out of season was described as a guardian of the nation's health during the annual convention of the American Fruit and Vegetable Shippers' association which closes today at the Palmer house.

Two thousand representatives of various departments of the industry presented data to indicate the growth of the use of citrus fruits, deciduous fruits and fresh vegetables 12 months of the year. Through combination of foods, proper diets have lessened the effects of epidemics, have made a game of reducing and have pleased the palate with greater variety.

Three States Chief Producers.

From three states alone the annual shipments of oranges, grapefruit, tangerines and lemons total approximately 150,000 carlots of several hundred boxes each. Retail stores are selling these fruits for more than $300,000,000 annually.

The latest figures available for the citrus industry on shipments for an entire year are those for 1931 when 156,224 carloads were sent to market from the three most important states. The industry divides this total in the following manner:

| Commodity— | Florida. | Calif. |
|---|---|---|
| Oranges | 27,404 | 64,853 |
| *Grapefruit | 24,746 | 1,237 |
| Tangerines | 2,823 | ..... |
| Lemons | ..... | 18,229 |
| Mixed fruit | 12,657 | 1,626 |

*Texas sent 2,622 carloads of grapefruit.

Americans have been told that protective foods have an important place in year round health. A dietitian attending the convention of the fruit and vegetable shippers' association explained that the average baby born in present times is well born and that there is knowledge enough on right living to expand the life span to a century.

Diet Teaching Needed.

The "eat what you need and then eat what you like" theory has been told little enough, because our palates have not the sense to direct us to a sufficiency of the proper foods, according to those at the convention meetings.

For those whose limited means require careful marketing, there are certain foods which make the most economical protective commodities. Cabbage heads the list, according to one study conducted in the east. Turnips, collards, potatoes and sweet potatoes are included.

Tomatoes, canned or fresh, rank with leafy green vegetables. The four principal citrus fruits, in this study indicated they were rich sources of vitamins. Thus oranges, tangerines, grapefruit and lemons were placed with another list including raisins, prunes and dried apricots, the latter for their iron content.

IOWA WOMAN USES SULPHUR IN CURING HER APPLE SLICES

A process of sulphuring that cures apples but does not leave any taste or odor on the product is being used this year by Mrs. J. O. Smith, farm housewife in Hardin county, Iowa. She finds the process much better than drying.

First the apples are peeled and cored and sliced as for pie. A market basketful of them then is hung in a barrel and a dish containing two small tablespoons of sulphur is placed in the bottom of the barrel and lighted. The barrel is then covered with a robe or carpet for four or five hours. Occasional inspections are made to be sure the sulphur is burning.

After curing, the apples are rinsed two or three times, Mrs. Smith says, and then put away in a clean stone jar. A receptacle that has contained lard will taint the apples, she has found. The sulphured apples are more moist than dried slices and may be used in any way that the fresh fruit can be used.

POTATO MUFFINS EASILY MADE AND QUITE DIFFERENT

Potato muffins, ten of them, can be made from eight ingredients to provide that "something different." The muffins include one and one-half cups of flour, two tablespoons sugar, three teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one egg well beaten, one-half cup mashed potato, five-eighths cup milk, and three tablespoons shortening.

The dry ingredients are sifted. The liquids are mixed and beaten thoroughly and then turned into the dry ingredients, stirring just enough to combine.

Pour into greased muffin tin to fill it two-thirds and bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees Fahrenheit. The baking requires about 35 minutes.

VEGETABLE SHOP TEACHES LESSON IN GEOGRAPHY

States Parade Products in Windows.

BY FLORA MARTIN.

If a housewife in doing her daily shopping for vegetables and fruits should stop and inquire into the source of each article, she'd soon learn as thorough a geography lesson as was taught her back in her school days. A veritable parade of states crosses the shop windows of vegetable and fruit dealers from one year to the next.

The two favorite winter resort states, Florida and California, are leaders in supplying the Chicago markets at the present time with out of season fruit and vegetable perishables. Florida sends her green beans, radishes, eggplant, lima beans, peppers, squash, and cucumbers to represent her in the vegetable bins. Tangerines, strawberries, oranges, and grapefruit are among her offerings to the fruit market. California, too, has a hand in supplying oranges for Chicago shoppers as well as artichokes, avocados, brussels sprouts, chicory, garlic, parsley, and emperor grapes.

Mexico Is Present, Too.

Texas is represented in the markets by her beets, broccoli, parsley, turnips, grapefruit, and new cabbage and Louisiana by escarole, parsley, shallots, and turnips. In another six weeks Louisiana also will be contributing her strawberry crop. And getting a little outside of the bounds of the states we find that Mexico is sending her peppers, both the red and green varieties, and Cuba a goodly supply of cucumbers and pineapples.

Virginia contributes both collards and kale to our markets; Massachusetts, cranberries; Minnesota, rhubarb and rutabagas, and Ohio, hot house tomatoes.

And last, but far from least, are Illinois and its nearby states, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana. These contribute more produce to the Chicago markets throughout the year than all of the other states combined because of the volume of their home grown vegetables and fruits in season. Among the representatives from this area on the market at present are cucumbers and rhubarb, cabbage, cranberries, rutabagas, beets, carrots, horseradish, lettuce, leek, radishes, squash, and turnips.

Potatoes Are King.

As humble and homely as they may be, potatoes reign as king of our markets. We receive more carlots of them than any other food shipped into the city. Wisconsin, Minnesota, Idaho, and Michigan are the chief sources of this important member of the vegetable kingdom.

Character Is Built Into the Fiber of Child

Parent, Environment Are Determining Factors.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

When I was a little girl, then not so little, then quite big and some well known man was invited to speak to the school, it used to seem to me that I was perfectly sure what he would talk about. I knew that he would discourse to us upon Character—always with a capital C.

Often when arithmetic and geography and marks had been the focal point of ours and the teacher's endeavors or struggles for days and years we would be told from the platform that these were as naught compared with character! And it got so after a while that character seemed to me like a separate structure, like an obelisk rising stark and stony above the everyday things of life.

And I know now from my experience with parents, from questions that are asked me, that character to many grown people is as much as that a thing apart. This is shown by such queries as, "Can you suggest a book on character training?" or "I think it is time for me to begin to build up my child's character."

You can't decide when to begin to build your child's character, because you're building it up in spite of yourself all along the way and you began to build it up at the beginning by every act that concerned your child. Character is not a separate structure. I was going to say it is like the mortar between the bricks of a building, but it is not even that separate. It is part of the very bricks themselves.

Character is built in, not up. It is a comprehensive, penetrating, permeating thing. It is part of every act—in the texture of every activity.

Character is not evidenced only in peaks of conduct. It is not concerned just with heroism and unselfishness—with chastity and truthfulness. Character does not mean morality, though it later includes it. It is a much bigger, a much more fundamental thing than that.

Its development is tied up with the ordinary, humble, habitual acts that make up our everyday life. It is in these acts that the sound work of character building goes on. It is in these that our preparation lies for what we call the big or important moments—though sometimes even they are big or important only in the sense that they are more noticeable to us or perhaps take place in public.

What your child's character will be is determined by two things—by his heredity and by you. That is, by what he begins with and by what you do for him in the way of management, love and environment.

Shall Escort Be Invited In After a Party?

"Ruth's" Boy Friend Answers "Yes."

BY DORIS BLAKE.

How about inviting the boy into the house after an evening out together?

"Ruth's" B. F. argues that a girl should invite her escort in. "Ruth" doesn't think it right and proper when the arrival home is timed at 12 or 1. She's willing to call it an evening—at the door.

The rightness and propriety would depend upon several features: "Ruth's" parents' willingness for one; "Ruth's" hour to rise for another. And the apartment conveniences, let's say. If the quarters were small and the suitor's entry would mean disturbance to the sleeping family, it would be better to observe the front door parting.

Ordinarily there would be no question of impropriety in permitting the escort to come in. Even serving a cup of coffee might be done with pleasing grace, mother permitting the informal "snack." We're assuming that "Ruth" is family surrounded.

Did she live alone or share an apartment with another girl we'd argue against the midnight invasion, although here again it would depend on the girl's character. Girls who live alone or are coupled up in an apartment have to be careful about this sort of thing. Not so much for what the neighbors may say as for the sustaining at a respectful level of the degree in which said girl is held.

There's something just a little unconventional still in men's eyes about this form of living. The freedom of it invites certain familiarities that may lead to an unwanted turn in the progress of the romance. The girl who can manage to sustain the right degree of decorum under unconventional circumstances is in no danger of losing caste, of course, but it's keeping the situation at that level that is a bit difficult.

It's nice, however, where there is a close family devotion and Mother and Dad sanction the bringing in of the boy friend, serving a bite—all done with an eye to the conventions—and a heart for an early rising hour.

First Spring Coats from Paris Salons Designed on Slim and Straight Lines

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The first spring coats that are constructed by Paris dressmakers are designed to make you look slim as slim. The couturiers have taken off the big sleeves and the bulky capelets and have narrowed the skirt line down to secure this result.

Most of these coats are nipped in a little bit at the waistline to take a belt without bulk, but otherwise they give a straight line effect, as you can see by consulting the accompanying sketch.

This is the practical coat par excellence, offered by Paris for spring. Lyolene makes it of a heavy brown and white mixed woolen. The raglan sleeves give it a smooth, rounded shoulder line and the simple tailored collar helps it to look trim. It has a belt made of two bias folds of the material joined at the center and attached by Lyolene's new three copper disk buckle. The disks can be folded together to look like one.

Personality and character are given to this coat by the pockets and their flaps. There are two pockets set into the sides of the front, several inches above the waistline, and two set in hip pockets. Flaps that are joined button up on the upper pockets and down on the lower, or may both be buttoned down around the belt and on the hip pockets, as shown on the right side.

Deep Breathing Burns Up the Unwanted Fat

Clear Ozone Also Blows Troubles Away.

The complete set of Antoinette Donnelly's stretching exercises will be published in booklet form soon, the date to be announced later in THE TRIBUNE.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Some one has said that "whatever you want out of life, deep breathing will help you get."

I wouldn't say that if you wanted a million it would ride into your ken on waves of oxygen. BUT—

I would say you'd be in a better way to enjoy your million did you breathe as if ozone were a tonic to be taken in good sized doses daily. And the chances of making a million would be better with the better health.

Come to think of it, most of the worth while accomplishments are done by people who aren't averse to letting a little air into their lungs. But telling people, I find, to breathe in good air is like telling them to drink water. There's too much of both elixirs to be had free to be appreciated.

Maybe the idea can be sold on another campaign talk. If I tell you women, for instance, that that clear ozone recommended for your nostrils and lungs daily burns up fat, I'll bet you'll listen more eagerly than if I tell you it's merely good for your health. If I tell you, too, that with all the cigarets you're smoking you'd better do more airing of your lungs. I'll wager you'll give me an ear.

Again, if I tell you that that puffy diaphragm would come down with good breathing work, you wouldn't turn your nose up about fresh air. Again, if I tell you that you can get those current worries out of your system with clean, fresh air, you'd listen, wouldn't you?

The back rent, the waiting store accounts, the present and future needs are met without melancholia if you take on fresh air as a pal. They don't blow away exactly, but you are better fortified to meet them.

So, get this habit: Stand erect, hands at sides, feet together. Now, on count one raise your arms out and up, inhaling through the nostrils. On count two lower the arms to position, exhaling forcibly through the mouth. Get this trick of practicing before your open window, so that when you go out walking you'll do it without any obvious effort.

Movies Take to Biographies of Living Great

Film About Garbo Starts a New Cycle.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 19.—A new trend in films is going to give you biographical and autobiographical pictures based on the lives of living celebrities. The cycle started with "Greta the Great," to be produced by an independent company, based on Garbo's career. Yesterday the Rev. Aimee McPherson-Hutton announced she would return to Los Angeles from a trip around the world to star as herself in a film about her own life and she has pledged $50,000 to go through with the film deal.

Today Fox's announces that Will Rogers will star next in "Arizona to Broadway," which is a story written around incidents in Rogers' life by William Conselman.

Radio-RKO is planning to make a film which, like "Grand Hotel," will be all about a building. Its story, as yet untitled, will have New York's new Radio City for its theme. It's the idea of Harry N. Swanson.

The most popular movies with the combined United States fleet now all based at Los Angeles are Mickey Mouse cartoons. The warships show pictures several nights every week and they leave the choice of what they want to see to the bluejackets.

Miriam Hopkins flew to New York today. She is on vacation. Irene Dunne retired to Palm Springs, Cal., likewise on a vacation, while William Rankin finishes writing her next vehicle at Radio-RKO. Warner Baxter sails to Havana Sunday—vacation. Mrs. Clive Brook has suffered a nervous breakdown and has gone to a sanitarium.

Lulu McConnell, old time vaudeville star, has been signed to share featured parts with Joe Cawthorn in an RKO comedy.

Janet Gaynor's next starring rôle will be that of a princess royal who woos and wins a solider of the guard [Henry Garat]. The story is called "Adorable."

All the assistance a talented wife could give a husband who was in a jam was given Frank Fay by Barbara Stanwyck a night or two ago when all the lights went out in the Hollywood theater playing Fay's revue, "Tattle Tales." Fay and Barbara forestalled a walkout by their audience when Fay rushed to one of the boxes, focused a flashlight on himself and proceeded to recite, wisecrack, sing, poke jokes at the audience, and with the aid of beautiful Barbara as an improvised "straightman," managed to keep the cash customers sitting around, crackling and waiting until electricians mended the light plant, almost an hour later.

Katharine Hepburn made a rainy day less depressing on the Radio lot by showing up with a contraption that looked like an extra swollen fountain pen. She pressed a trigger and the fountain pen extended itself and expanded until, lo, it was a full size umbrella. She got awfully wet closing it up to show countless inquirers just how it shut and opened.

Dean Spencer, sound technician at Warner's, who used to be a stunt man, astonished the "Man from Monterey" company at a ranch location site yesterday when he dropped in on them. He dropped in with a parachute from a plane which he had engaged at Grand Central airport in Burbank, Cal., when he got up late for work. "Nothing at all," Spencer said. "It's the seventieth successful jump I have made." Buddy Smith piloted the open cockpit plane he jumped out of. The film is a John Wayne-Ruth Hall romance about a Yankee adventurer who attracts a daughter of one of the early California dons.

Milton Cohen, attorney for Eleanor Boardman, and Ralph Blum, attorney for King Vidor, both issued denials their clients are going to be reconciled. The occasions which caused the separated pair to be seen together during the last ten days are a result of a joint desire to arrange a jointly agreeable division of property, the lawyers said.

"The Sign of the Cross"

Looks like the million dollars it cost . . . Everything about the filming of Wilson Barrett's play is done on the grand scale. Costumes are gorgeous and glittering; the pomp of the fabulous days of Nero's reign is shown in every detail. As a spectacle, 'The Sign of the Cross' is a remarkable achievement."

Carol Frink, Herald and Examiner.

"Without doubt this cunning piece of portraiture (Charles Laughton as Nero) is the photoplay's cream. Miss Colbert's portrayal of the Empress is very smooth, very effective. Elissa Landi and Fredric March are excellent in their respective roles of Christian virgin and Roman prefect. Their romance is a beautiful and inspiring one."—Mae Tinee, Chicago Tribune.

"The Sign of the Cross' runs true to DeMille form . . . it has a cast of 17 principals and 7,500 extras. It visualizes in enlightening detail the Emperor's Court and the 'wild party' as the Romans knew it."—Hazel Flynn, Evening American.

"A cool million dollars is a tidy sum in these days . . . but no one, after spending an evening with this attraction, will doubt that it was spent. Lavishly, sumptuously staged after the familiar DeMille manner."—Clark Rodenbach, Daily News.

"Cecil B. DeMille has created a symphonic blending of camera and microphone. Here is spectacle as thrilling as that of the "Ten Commandments" and "Ben Hur" caught in the sepia splendor of modern photography. Here is drama vividly in the vernacular, projected by brilliant performances."—Claudia Cassidy, Journal of Commerce.

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new made fortune, known as "Nosey Ingy," rows over to a town for a carpenter. A girl in a red canoe comes along and invites Bart over to her family's island, but her small brother says their mother would have a fit. Bart senses a family secret. Ingy sends help and taxies home. Mr. Davis, the carpenter, tells Bart the Bayleys have lived on the island fifteen years, but don't mix. The father travels. While the boat is being fixed Bart goes over to the island with the girl, Alice Bayley.

INSTALLMENT V.

YOUNG INNOCENCE.

Bart thought of Trevor Burgess, the vital, the magnificent. "My dad's been beating me at tennis."

"The first thing I can remember," she said, "was daddy lifting me over the side of our houseboat and teaching me how to swim like a frog. He says he's going to make a bayman out of me. You know what a bayman is?"

"I'm a Long Islander," laughed Bart. "Not a bad life."

"Hen Love's a bayman," she explained solemnly. "He's an eel fisherman. You don't know Hen Love?"

"Not yet——"

"Then you don't know anything. He's our fidus Achates."

"You know your Latin," said Bart.

"Why shouldn't I?" With a sudden cloud of discontent. "What is there for me to do but read?"

In this remark and the impatient gesture with which she said it, Bart saw a great many things about Alice Bayley. Coming to a dangerous age, not knowing what she wanted, held here, away from life—and why, in heaven's name? But now she was off again, romping with the big Belgian dog that fawned and barked with pleasure, at play with the girl he was put there to guard. She found a hole in a tree trunk and climbed to show Bart where the little owls would be hatching pretty soon.

Then they went back to loll on the rock. She was anxious to talk, but all her candor led to mystery. Such a picture she was of young innocence and book-learned philosophy. Speaking of her father again, she said of his homecoming: "It's the way the Egyptian god—Osiris, wasn't he?—made the flowers spring up wherever he walked." Then, with a brief melancholy "It gets awfully dull here when he's away."

"Don't you ever get away, too?" he asked.

"Once, when I was a little girl, daddy took me to New York. But mother didn't like it."

"Why not?"

"She says—I don't know—she just has notions."

He had told Alice his name and when he had mentioned Wyattville she had shown an excited curiosity. Now, seeing her loveliness and a little shocked that she should be wasted here, he blurted out, "A girl like you would make an awful hit in Wyattville."

"You think so?" Her breath caught sharply. She was all eagerness, her full lips apart as she leaned toward him. "What makes you think I would?"

"Well," he qualified, "it must be lots of fun here, hunting birds' nests and shooting and fishing with your father. This is a jolly little island. I wouldn't mind living here myself." Then, teasingly, "Suppose we make a swap. Will you give me Folly Island for Wyattville?"

"All right. That's a trade." She was laughing again, and again her cheeks were bright with pure young blood.

"Maybe it wouldn't be so much fun if you moved away," he said. This was fairly direct, but he had a curiosity to know how she'd take it. She lay idly on her side, her smooth chin resting on her palm.

"O, but we'd visit 'round a lot," she said. She was a little girl again, enjoying the game. "And you and daddy could shoot. You'd love him."

"I know I would." Somehow she had made him feel the man's fine personality. The man who shot birds, yet hated to hurt things. Whimsically he remembered a time when, as a little boy, he had helped his own father catch a young rabbit running up a steep terrace. Bart had held the panting creature in his hands until it escaped. "Poor little devil, he's scared," Trevor Burgess had said. Bart was going to tell this to Alice, but she spoke out suddenly:

"Tell me about Wyattville. What would I do there?"

"You'd ride a prize jumper at the horse show for one thing. You'd take nothing but prizes. You'd be a tennis champion, and the best dancer at the country club. You'd have so many proposals that you'd need a secretary to answer 'em all—in writing."

"I don't know." She was moody, picking at pine needles. "I can't do anything—but just read."

"You seem to be better educated than most of the girls I know." Then, with a glance at her fine body, "You could learn anything. We'd have you on horseback in no time."

"O, I should love to go to Wyattville!" With another little sigh. "Tell me some more."

It was like a bedtime story, his pouring into her ear the charms of a place she had never seen. Perhaps he overpainted the picture, forgetting to show her how he himself was sometimes bored. But she lay there, drinking it in. Wyattville, a fabled town where she could sport and play with the youth for which youth hungers. He was "selling" Wyattville to her. And Bart Burgess was an able salesman.

"Tell you what I'll do," he said, half in earnest. "I'll come over here sometime and coax your mother."

"Nobody ever coaxed mother. Even daddy can't do that."

"You prefer your daddy, don't you?"

"To mother?" Wide eyed at the idea. "I adore her!"

But why doesn't she let you do what you want?"

"She has some good reason. She always has."

"You're stubborn too, aren't you."

"I suppose I am. Aren't you?"

"The Burgess family are all stubborn, I guess. I mean when we take a notion we don't know how to drop it. Now look here, Alice——" he called her that unconsciously—"would your mother sic the dogs on me if I came sometime and convinced her about Wyattville?"

"O, our dogs don't need to be sicked. And if you came with Hen Love they'd be pleasant as pie." Her dimple showing, her gypsy teeth agleam.

"Then expect me on the beach one of these days."

"With a ticket to Wyattville in your pocket?"

"No, but I'm serious." He felt his heart churning. "I've studied law, you know, and I'm a wonderful arguer."

"O, really, would you try to convince mother?"

"Certainly, I'm going to."

She opened her mouth to speak, then sat up suddenly. Somewhere a whistle was blowing.

"It's noon," she said, scrambling to her feet. "That's the brick works over at Port England. I've got to take you back right away before mother——"

She didn't finish, but started running down the rocks toward Dog cove. As they were shoving the canoe across the yellow sand he found himself delightfully near to her, his cheek almost brushing her hair.

"Alice," he whispered, "do you really want me to come back?"

"Yes."

The meeting of their eyes was intoxicating as a kiss. Then they leaped into the canoe and went racing against the gentle breeze which, as the carpenter had predicted, was rising from the south.

Founder Tells Health Work in Mountains

Mrs. Breckinridge Speaks to Chicago Aids.

as Mrs. Breckinridge has decided to dispense with the boat's official chaperon for this trip.

The first part of Mrs. Breckinridge's talk was an illustrated lecture on the work of the Frontier Nursing service in Kentucky. Statistics of the service's work are convincing proof of its success and importance in giving health care in the remote mountainous regions of eastern Kentucky.

Among those present at the meeting were Mrs. George A. Ranney, Mrs. Joseph E. Otis, Mrs. A. Watson Armour, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, Mrs. W. Calhoun Smith, Mrs. Alfred T. Carton, Miss Adelaide Atkin, Miss Margaret Sinclair, Miss Dorothy Ranney, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Miss Leila Withers, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr., Mrs. James R. Offield, Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, Mrs. Nathaniel Owings, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, and Mrs. Americus F. Callahan.

Miss Florence Carr's Engagement to Be Known.

Robert F. Carr arrived at home yesterday from three weeks in Miami, loath to leave the Florida sunshine and warmth, he said, but having to for two reasons: First, that business demands his presence, and, second, that he is to be host at a most important dinner-dance tomorrow night.

It would spoil the surprise (not that any one who knows the lovely Florence and her "heavy" will be surprised) to tell now why the party is so important, but every one anticipates that the 150 friends of Miss Carr and her sister, Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins (Louise Carr), and the popular Mr. Carr will be told officially of the engagement of Miss Carr to Edgar Lewis Marston II.

The party will be at the Saddle and Cycle club, and among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Hunter S. Marston of New York, who will arrive in the morning. They are the parents of young Mr. Marston, who has been living here for the last two years.

There are several of the season's debutantes who are rumored to be about ready to have their mothers and fathers announce that they are engaged to be married. Hurry up, "gals"; now that the season of balls and dances is past it's perfectly safe to announce that you are out of the running! No girl likes to have her name associated with that of one beau during her first season out, for that spoils the whirl she might have and the stags let her pass by at the dances. Which will be the first of the debs to wear publicly a diamond on the third finger of her left hand, I wonder?

Kitchen Party for Mrs. Myers.

Mrs. Richard Myers, who, with her husband, has been the guest of the Howard Vincent O'Briens since Sunday, is an ideal guest, for not only is she bright and attractive and popular but she is a marvelous cook, and tonight she is going to demonstrate her skill at concocting French delicacies at a party the O'Briens are giving at their Winnetka residence. It is to be a kitchen party with Mrs. Myers as head chef and all the other guests as her assistants.

Mr. and Mrs. Myers, who used to live on the south side near the University of Chicago, have been entertained as much as the time they are here would allow, for they have many friends in Chicago. Last night the Charles Daniel Freys gave a cocktail party for them, after which Miss Harriet McLaughlin entertained them at dinner at the Casino. They have kept tomorrow free of social engagements so that they can spend the day with their host and hostess, who haven't had a chance to see them, hardly, so busy have them been. They leave Sunday for New York and will sail on Feb. 7 for their home in Paris.

Four Generations Go to Virginia.

Four generations of Richardsons traveled to Virginia the end of last week to spend the balance of the winter at the Ralph R. Richardsons' Rose Cottage at Gaylord. In the party were Mrs. Ralph Richardson and her husband's mother, Mrs. John D. Richardson, and Mrs. Walter W. Crawford [Frances Richardson] and her baby son and the former Bluford Richardson's [Mrs. Frederick L. Spencer] little son. Mrs. Spencer and the men of the family will try to run down to Gaylord some time before the travelers return.

Sartell Prentice Porter and his bride, the former Elinor Durbin, who were with her parents, the Fletcher M. Durbins of Astor street, when they first returned from their wedding trip aboard, have taken a furnished apartment at 237 East Delaware place and are busy getting their wedding presents unpacked.

John P. Porter and his bride, the former Mary Alexander Brumback, have an apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue and Henry H. Porter Jr. and his bride, formerly Mary Kinney, have returned to Manchester, Vt., where they have spent most of the time since they were married. The Prentice Porters and the John Porters plan to go to the country in the spring, but the Henry Porters' plans are not settled yet.

Mrs. Joseph H. Long's friends were a little sorry to hear from her when she was here recently for a few days that she is finding life in New York so intriguing, for her friends are afraid that may mean that she won't return to Chicago to live next autumn. When she went to New York this winter she said that it wasn't a permanent move and perhaps she might be back here in her charming Lake Shore drive apartment next fall.

Mrs. F. M. Alger to Have Operation.

Plans for the house party that Daggett Harvey had planned to give in Lake Forest next week-end for Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Alger Jr. [Suzette Dewey] have been canceled because Mrs. Alger has to have an appendectomy. She is to be operated on this morning by one of the Mayo brothers. It is not an emergency operation nor one that is apt to be at all serious.

Mrs. Alger's doctors warned her some time ago that her appendix might grow troublesome sooner or later, and because she and her husband are planning a trip to Yucatan in March she decided to have the operation at this time rather than take a chance on having to be rushed to a hospital while they are traveling.

Her mother, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, had thought of going to see her last night, but Mrs. Alger told her she would rather see her a few days after the operation when she will be well to visit with her.

The trip that the Algers are to take in March is to be glamorous and adventurous. They are to sail with a party of 16 and plan to hunt in the jungles and explore the ruins of Yucatan. It will be something of a scientific expedition, with archaeologists, explorers, and photographers as members of the group.

Mrs. Charles H. Morse is leaving the end of this week for Seattle to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Covington [Elizabeth Morse] and their three children. Mrs. Morse expects to be back home by the time her other daughter, Martha, and her brand new husband, Baron Wolfgang Beck von Peccoz, arrive in Chicago in about a month for a brief visit before leaving for their home in Vienna, which will be at Renata strasse 73, according to the "at home" cards enclosed with the wedding announcements received recently.

The newly married couple are honeymooning in the west, but Mrs. Morse does not expect to see them in Seattle, for they have left Washington and are in California now. They plan to take a boat there and go to New York via the Panama canal, but they will come to Chicago before sailing for Germany.

Caroline Veeder to Sail Feb. 11.

Miss Caroline Veeder, the subdeb daughter of Mrs. Albert H. Veeder of Winnetka, will sail on Feb. 11 from New York to enter the Casa Alta school in Florence, Italy. Miss Louise Wood, whose school in Italy is closed this year, is to chaperon Miss Veeder on the trip and they will spend two weeks cruising on the Mediterranean before going to Florence. Miss Wood has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Malcolm E. Shroyer of Barrington.

Mrs. Murdoch Wingfield and her daughter, Miss Jeanine Wingfield, who have been in Chicago since early December, are to leave next Tuesday for a visit with their relatives in San Francisco. They will be back early in March and will be permanent residents of Chicago after that. They have occupied Mrs. George W. Meeker's house during their stay here.

Mrs. Alfred T. Martin's many friends will be glad to hear—some of them already know, of course, from notes received from her recently—that she is to be here fairly soon. She and her sister, Mrs. Philip Hamill, and the latter's daughter, Miss Marjorie Hamill, have recently landed in New York from Paris, where they had been since early autumn, and Mrs. Martin is going to St. Louis for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Lynn Gratiot, after which she will be here at the Pearson hotel for a stay of several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bournique and their daughter, Miss Helen Bournique, have rented their house in Highland Park and are in town for the winter.

Mrs. Rufus Dawes will preside and present the setting for each scene at the Town Hall lecture at the Drake hotel tomorrow morning when Frances Homer will portray a number of women whose influence has led celebrated men to great heights or ultimate destruction. Miss Homer calls her entertainment "Ladies of Destiny" and among the characters she will portray are Cleopatra, Nell Gwynn, Isabella of Spain, Mary Fitton, Empress Josephine, and Lady Hamilton. Emerson house board members will usher.

Seats for Lecture by Mrs. Roosevelt.

Probably because the box committee for Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's lecture tomorrow night at Orchestra hall did such a good job of selling all the boxes in a hurry, the rumor has gone around that all of the tickets for the lecture have been sold. On the contrary, the League of Women Voters informs us that there are plenty of good seats still available.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who is said to be a brilliant and entertaining speaker by those who have heard her, is not accepting any remuneration for this lecture. She is doing it solely to help the Illinois League of Women Voters because she herself is an active member of the New York league and considers the work of the affiliated leagues one of the most important influences for women in this day of equal suffrage.

The Trade Woman's Union league and the Anchusa club, both of whom list Mrs. Roosevelt as one of their members, have taken blocks of seats for the lecture.

Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Mrs. George A. McKinlock, Mrs. Charles H. Morse, Mrs. Philip K. Wrigley and Mrs. Maurice L. Rothschild are a few of the well known women who are interested in the program for continuous flower shows in the horticultural building on Northly island at A Century of Progress.

There are to be social events, too, in connection with the opening of the shows, which will start June 1 with an exhibit of irises and flowers from private estates. There will be a change each week on Friday night with a new show beginning each Saturday. The exhibition is modeled after the British summer flower shows with cut flower exhibits under shelter and model gardens outdoors, a plan which never before has been attempted in this country.

INCOME TAX LAW AND DEMANDS ON YOU EXPLAINED

Below is the ninth of a series of ten concise articles on the income tax prepared for THE TRIBUNE. The articles explain provisions of the new income tax law, known as the revenue act of 1932, under which income tax returns are to be filed in March.

BY WILLIS NANCE.

Items Exempt from Tax.

The following items are exempt from federal income tax and should not be included in gross income:

1. Amounts received under a life insurance contract paid by reason of the death of the insured, whether in a single sum or in installments.

2. Amounts received under a life insurance endowment or annuity contract, but if such amounts exceed the aggregate premiums or consideration paid, then the excess shall be included in gross income.

3. Interest received upon obligations of a state, territory, or any political subdivision thereof.

4. Interest received upon securities issued under the provisions of the federal farm loan act or under such act as amended.

5. Interest received upon obligations of the United States or its possessions, except that in the case of obligations of the United States issued after Sept. 1, 1917, the interest on 4 per cent and 4¼ per cent Liberty bonds and treasury bonds owned in excess of $5,000 is subject to surtax if the net income of the taxpayer is over $6,000, and should be reported in his return.

6. The value of property acquired by gift or bequest, devise or inheritance. The income from such property must, however, be included in gross income.

7. The rental value of a home and appurtenances thereof furnished to a minister of the gospel as part of his compensation.

8. Compensation received from a state or political subdivision thereof by its officers or employés for services rendered in connection with the exercise of an essential governmental function.

10. Amounts received as earned income from sources without the United States by an individual citizen of the United States who is a bona fide nonresident for more than six months during the taxable year. However, amounts paid to such an individual by the United States, or any agency thereof, are not exempt from tax.

11. The income of foreign governments received from any source within the United States.

12. The income derived by any state, territory, or political subdivision thereof from any public utility or the exercise of any essential governmental function.

In addition to the above exempt items, amounts received by a taxpayer as alimony payments are not taxable, but such amounts are not deductible by the person making the payments.

Dividends received upon the stock of corporations must be reported on the return, but those dividends received upon stock of a domestic corporation subject to tax under the revenue act of 1932 are not subject to the normal tax, but only to the surtax, in the hands of an individual taxpayer.

WANT 6 MILLION A MONTH FOR IDLE IN NEW YORK

Relief Committee Gives Mayor O'Brien Figure.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Mayor John P. O'Brien was advised today that only a definite commitment by the city to provide $6,000,000 a month for the next three months would enable New York City to meet the minimum demands of its idle relief problem.

The new mayor's advisers were Harvey D. Gibson and Mrs. August Belmont, chairman and associate chairman, respectively, of the Emergency Relief committee, which Tuesday attained its goal in a three month campaign to raise $15,000,000 by private subscription for winter work and home relief.

Mr. Gibson, president of the Manufacturers Trust company, and Mrs. Belmont, who for two years has conducted the work of the women's division of Mr. Gibson's committee, conferred with Mr. O'Brien for an hour in the city hall, but left without commenting on their mission.

The two relief workers also urged that the city make provision for continuing the work of the school relief committee, which out of a fund made up of voluntary contributions from the employés of the public school system has been feeding and clothing thousands of children for two years.

FARM MORTGAGE MORATORIUM IS SOUGHT IN IOWA

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Gov. Clyde L. Herring announced this afternoon that he would issue a proclamation asking for a moratorium on farm mortgage foreclosures during the present emergency and until the legislature has had an opportunity to act.

The proclamation will seek temporarily to prevent sale of farm property to satisfy mortgages and issuance of deficiency judgments against farmers by courts to make up the difference between the amount of sales and the face of the mortgages.

The house passed the "lame duck" amendment to the federal constitution, making Iowa the twenty-ninth state to ratify the amendment.

Tax reduction began its march today with passage of the first bill by the senate. Enactment of the entire tax reduction program would save 25 million dollars annually, it is estimated. Without opposition or debate the senate passed, 40 to 0, the bill making future secondary road levies optional instead of mandatory.

Y. M. C. A. REVIEWS AID TO IDLE IN ANNUAL REPORT

Relief for idle young men of Chicago was an outstanding service of the Young Men's Christian association during 1932, according to the report of George B. McKibben, president, read yesterday at the annual meeting at 19 South La Salle street.

"Twelve hundred former members were given free memberships and nearly 1,000 given free temporary rent, while 900 were permitted to work in payment for membership privileges, board, room and tuition," Mr. McKibben said. "More than 500 men were reported carried in residences on a deferred payment plan, and four departments are providing special morning recreational programs."

Mr. McKibben was reelected president; William Francis, first vice president; Vernon R. Louks, Kenilworth, second vice president; C. T. B. Goodspeed, secretary, and John S. Brocksmit, Lake Forest, treasurer.

TWO $50 CHECKS SWELL FUND FOR HUNGRY PUPILS

Total of Gifts for Day Is $162.50.

Two checks for $50 each returned the day's total for the Hungry School Children's fund to the pre-Christmas level yesterday. In all, $162.50 was received from 18 contributors, bringing the grand total to $19,657.94.

The donors of the $50 checks were C. Newton and Samuel Howard, who in the past have been equally generous to the fund. The $100 received from them will provide 2,000 needy public school children with a nourishing hot meal.

Among the day's gifts was $7 from an Oak Park group which turned the money over the fund instead of giving it in prizes to the members. Another gift came from "A Mother" as a thank offering.

Through an error a $20 gift was acknowledged on Jan. 14 as being from an anonymous donor. The acknowledgement should have read: "In memory of Jessie Dear Kenyon." Yesterday's gifts follow:

$50—C. Newton, Samuel Howard.
$10—Sara N. Levison.
$7—The Bookhouse for Children, An Oak Park group.
$5—Marie Bahe, A friend, Alice G. Geenthorp, Anonymous, F. & E. S.
$3—"A Mother."
$2.50—Mrs. Catherine Wilson.
$2—Mrs. Charles Falk.
$1.50—C. P. Dairy, Valparaiso, Ind.; Joe Glocskie, Valparaiso, Ind.
$1—Mrs. J. E. D., Mrs. James J. Glassner, Mrs. M. B. S.

EXPERTS SPLIT ON CHARITY COAL SPECIFICATIONS

Joseph J. Bennett, purchasing agent of the Illinois Central railroad, and one of the six experts who met last week to draft specifications for charity coal, said yesterday that he had not signed the specifications and that he is not satisfied with them.

Until yesterday it had been understood that Mr. Bennett was one of the four experts who approved the final draft, over the protests of the other two experts, and the specifications were adopted by the joint committee of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission and the Cook county board as the work of the majority of the group of experts.

Charles B. Goodspeed, assistant to the chairman of the relief commission, who reported the specifications to the joint committee as the opinion of four of the six experts, said yesterday that none of the four actually signed the final draft. Mr. Bennett, he said, assisted in writing the final draft and expressed no opposition to it at that time.

Since the six experts actually were split evenly, Commissioner Peter M. Kelly said last night that he plans to ask the county board to reject the specifications.

BUREAU STANDS BY POLICY ON RELIEF RESULTS

Joseph L. Moss, director of the county bureau of public welfare, declared yesterday that the bureau would stand by its decision to receive all organized protests against the relief administration at the new office opened on Monday in the building at Ogden avenue and Randolph street.

"It is merely a question of whether we or the communists are going to run the relief stations," Mr. Moss said. "We cannot get our tremendous load of work done with delegations calling to protest, and agitators stirring up the applicants to riots."

Thirty agitators were dispersed by the police yesterday when they mingled with 350 persons awaiting relief at the station at 54 West Chicago avenue. One agitator was arrested.

10,000 SEE STECHER WRESTLE DRAW WITH LONDOS

FIRST DEFEAT IN NINE STARTS FOR INVADERS

Grapplers Discard Clown Tactics.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

All tradition was defied and heresy of a high order committed against the fair name of wrestling at the Coliseum last night when the ever winning James Londos, who has not lost a fall in a Chicago ring these last two years, was thwarted in a stirring struggle with Joe Stecher, the venerable Nebraskan who thrice held the title before his retirement. At the conclusion of sixty minutes amazingly free of the usual histrionics, the contest was called a draw.

Not the least surprising feature of the evening was the fact that the Coliseum, which accommodates more than 10,000 for a grappling entertainment, fairly bulged with patrons, who crowded into every nook and cranny of the ancient structure. The inadequate capacity of the building for last night's show was made plain by the fact that more than a thousand less fortunate customers stormed all gates along Wabash avenue in an effort to buy tickets, only to be denied same. Probably the least astonished individual on the premises was Dr. John Krone, the host of the occasion, who beamed as would be ticket buyers clamored for admission.

Modern Frills Are Out.

The prediction that Stecher, who hails from the prehistoric days of wrestling when a hold was a hold, might upset the antics made popular by Londos and the rest of the moderns was vindicated by the Nebraskan last night. Stecher, who started a comeback last year, forced Londos to abandon his usual repertoire and to go back to the old fashioned methods of ten years ago. It took the preliminary matches to supply the comic relief of the show.

The match, incidentally, was consummated in the presence of Gen. John Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission, who recently voiced his distaste with the methods of the Londos school of wrestling.

They Both Get Cheers.

After the lesser numbers had been transacted, Stecher and Londos entered the ring, the former to much cheering from all parts of the house, and the champion to a rousing Bronx chorus which should give him a good lead on Babe Ruth and Jack Sharkey for the boo drawing title of the year. Before Londos gingerly fingered the petals of a bouquet of posies which had been thrust upon him by an admirer, a heretic in one of the upper shelves of the house asked him how the ride had been from St. Louis, where only Wednesday night he had disposed of one Everett Marshall, also in a championship match.

The first five minutes of the match were highly embarrassing, for the boys did a shy polka around the ring for just that length of time, and a motion was made to introduce them to each other. Stecher put an end to this very abruptly by rudely applying his patented scissors hold. He held it thus in approved pre-war method of wrestling for no less than eight minutes, causing Londos pain no end. This treatment so distressed James that he promptly mounted his bicycle whenever in sight of Stecher's octopus-like limbs.

Scissors Pain Mr. Londos.

During the ensuing half hour Stecher clamped the scissors grip on the champion no less than six times, much to the customers' glee and to James' grief. This grief became so apparent that Ed White, his manager, who had been chinning himself on the outside of the mat, objected several times, but to no avail.

Londos, of course, was not idle all this while, but was forced to rely on Stecher's own scissors hold to get any results. All of his own favorites—the airplane spin, the body slam, and the unconscious hold—failed to function until, with less than fifteen minutes of the time limit remaining, Stecher succumbed to the body slam system, and the more cynical in the audience, believing this was the finish, made motions to go home. Stecher put a stop to this, however, by unwinding himself and applying another scissors.

Londos worked the body slam twice before the end of the match and Referee Emil Thiry had his nose in the resin trying to decide whether Joe was entirely prostrate, but ruled otherwise. On the last attempt James tried to conclude the evening with an airplane spin, but instead found Stecher's legs twined about his tonsils with great pressure and was fortunate to escape them finally.

McMillen, Savoldi Win.

In the preliminaries James McMillen, the old Illinois football player, took assorted rights and lefts before finally subduing Tommy Marvin in 22 minutes with a body slam. Joe Savoldi, onetime Notre Dame jumping jack, tried several end runs against Marshall Blackstock, but finally scored a touchdown with a flying tackle in 13:26. Erny Dusek, brother of the illustrious Rudy, finally unhorsed Abe Kashey, who had ridden him about five and a half furlongs around the ring in 17:15, using a leg spin. Ivan Leskinovich cut down Wee Willie Davis with a flying mare in 10:32.

"COME EARLY, BOYS. AND GET A SEAT!"

Here is probably the first 1933 photograph of that old 1928 custom, entitled, "Turning 'Em Away." Real customers, armed with real greenbacks, crowded the sidewalks outside Coliseum last night trying to buy tickets to the Londos-Stecher wrestling match, only to be informed by Promoter Doc Krone that there isn't a seat left. "First come, first served," said Doc, with a trace of regret in his voice. Probably it was only a trace, because 10,000 were already in the house.

"Hold it, Joe!" yell the cameramen, and Joe holds it, the same being Jim Londos' head. Despite Stecher's valiant efforts, however, the bout was called a draw.

ANDERSON SIGNS AS NOTRE DAME COACH FOR 1933

Appointment of Assisting Staff Delayed.

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Heartley [Hunk] Anderson today signed a contract to continue as head football coach at the University of Notre Dame in 1933. The announcement was made by the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the university. Anderson's salary was not named.

Father O'Donnell said that the assistant coaches have not been selected, and that the present contract of Director of Athletics Jesse C. Harper does not expire until May, at which time an announcement regarding the position will be made.

Two Assistants in School.

It is understood that Anderson's contract runs from February to February. Two of the present assistant coaches, Marchmont Schwartz and Nordoff Hoffmann, members of the 1931 team, are students in the Notre Dame law school and for this reason signed contracts which do not run out until May. No action has been taken in the cases of John [Ike] Voedisch and Tommy Yarr, assistants, whose contracts expire Feb. 1.

Anderson came to Notre Dame from Calumet, Mich., playing guard with the undefeated teams of 1919 and 1920, and the western championship eleven of 1921 which lost only one game.

Two Years at St. Louis.

He was made assistant to the late Knute Rockne in 1922, upon his graduation, and remained with Rockne until 1928, when he left to serve two years as head coach at St. Louis university, St. Louis, Mo. He returned to Notre Dame to mold the line for the 1930 national champions, taking charge of spring practice while Rockne was recuperating from a leg ailment in Florida.

Upon Rockne's death in an airplane crash in March, 1931, Anderson became senior coach with Jack Chevigny junior coach. Chevigny yesterday announced that he had signed to coach St. Edward's college in Austin, Tex., a school operated by the Holy Cross order of priests which operates Notre Dame. Chevigny resigned from Notre Dame last year to coach the Chicago Cardinals in the National Professional league, and Anderson was made head coach.

In his two years, Anderson's teams have won 13 games, tied one, and lost four.

Helps Build Champions.

Rockne gave credit to Anderson for helping develop the 1930 national champions, saying that the team was in first class condition at the end of the spring training period of six weeks. Anderson has shown in his two years as head coach that he is more than a line coach, having turned out backs, from sophomore material, which rank with the greatest in Notre Dame history.

He showed last season, in bringing out a new type of offense for the Army game at New York which Notre Dame won, 21 to 0, that he has the inventive ability to keep pace with new developments in the game.

Billiards Undergo a Change and Youngsters Take Lead

BY FRENCH LANE.

A revolution seems to have taken place in three cushion billiards. The orthodox players and former champions are losing in the world's championship tournament, which enters its fifth day at the Wabash Recreation rooms today.

Youngsters who throw all caution to the winds and knock the balls around the table with "Who gives a hang?" abandon have been winning. The veterans, who are playing just as well, or perhaps better, than in other years, are dropping by the wayside.

This morning three players are tied for the lead, two of them being the youngest fellows in the tournament—Jay Bozeman of Vallejo, Cal., and Welker Cochran of Iowa. Each has won two games, without a defeat. The other fellow is Clarence Jackson, the slow moving Detroit undertaker.

Here's a New Style.

Even the undertaker has introduced a new style of play. He studies the shots his opponents cannot make, then tries to leave them in that position every time. He trusts to wild shots and the breaks to bring him his points.

Cochran and Bozeman scored spectacular victories yesterday. Cochran beat Art Thurnblad of Chicago, 50 to 43, in 39 innings, last night. It was Thurnblad's third defeat in a row, yet he scored 20 billiards in his 25th, 26th, and 27th innings to take the lead.

But Cochran, noted only as a balkline player, refusing to worry about safety shots, sailed into the lead again and won fairly handily. He actually made 51 points to Thurnblad's 43, for he clicked up one which Referee George McElligott called a miss. The referee later admitted his mistake. Score by innings:

COCHRAN — 0 6 0 4 1 0 0 2 1 5 1 2 0 3 0 0 4 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 1 0 0 1 8 0 0 0 2 0 1 0 0 3 2 — Total, 50. Innings, 39. High run, 8.

THURNBLAD — 4 2 1 0 0 0 0 0 1 1 1 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 1 0 1 0 2 7 0 0 0 1 1 0 1 1 0 1 4 0 — Total, 43. Innings, 39. High run, 10.

Bozeman Leads Throughout.

Bozeman defeated Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia by the narrow margin of 50 to 45 in 45 innings yesterday afternoon. Reiselt entered the game the 1 to 2 favorite.

Bozeman had grabbed a 14 to 7 lead at the end of the eleventh inning and was in front from then on to the finish. Reiselt staged the gamest kind of a rally, and in the first half of the 45th inning, after making 12 billiards in five innings, he was just one point behind, 46 to 45.

Bozeman's next shot was of the most difficult sort. He had to send his ball skipping around the table and hit five cushions to score. He made the point, then added three more spectacular shots and the match was over.

Score by innings:

BOZEMAN — 010 310 011 070 051 001 230 200 020 110 011 003 000 104 004—Total 50. High run, 7. Innings, 45.

Denton Wins.

Earlier in the afternoon the colorful Tiff Denton from the Ozarks had beaten Frank Scoville of Buffalo, 50 to 39 in 54 innings. Denton was so pleased with the way he was clicking off the billiards he forgot to quarrel with the referee, scorekeeper, and other officials.

Scoville sprinted into the lead, 34 to 33, in the 42d inning, and he made two more in the next round.

Then Denton put on a rally to make a cluster of nine, the second high run of the tournament. The long run upset Scoville to such a degree that he shot the wrong ball when he finally got back to the table. As a result of the foul he lost a point. Score:

DENTON — 2 0 1 0 1 2 0 0 4 3 0 4 1 0 6 0 1 0 0 0 2 0 0 1 0 0 3 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 5 0 1 1 —50 High run, 9; 54 innings.

Jimmy Ward was the star of the game, scoring three goals for the Maroons and turning in one of his best all around performances of the season. Hooley Smith broke up dozens of Senator plays and was a standout on the defense.

RUTH SAYS HE'S WILLING TO TAKE 15 PER CENT CUT

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—His early rage considerably subsided, Babe Ruth today gave the first intimation that he might be in a more compromising mood when he resumes negotiations in his salary controversy with the Yankees. He asserted that a 10 per cent cut, or even 15 per cent, would be acceptable to him.

Ruth drew $75,000 last year. The Yankees, in the contract which he bounced right back at them last Monday, offered only $50,000 for 1933. A 15 per cent cut would put the Babe's salary at $63,750.

Georgia Coleman of Los Angeles, who arrived in town yesterday for the meet, reported at the club immediately for a workout, and demonstrated that she has lost none of the skill that won her the national and Olympic diving championships.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks, victims of a 5 to 0 trouncing at the hands of the New York Rangers no longer ago than last Sunday night, got even with Gotham in a great big way at the Stadium last night when they accorded the New York Americans a ruthless 6 to 0 pommeling before 8,000.

It was one of the most stirring comebacks in Chicago hockey history and especially gratifying because it was the first Hawk victory in four games between the two teams this season. It also was the first defeat for the Americans in their last nine games.

Gottselig and March scored in the first period and in the second period Cook scored twice and Jenkins once. The sixth marker was by Thompson in the third period. Eight points were rung up in the league records on assists, Cook getting two and March, Graham, Coulter, McFadyen, and Thomson one each.

Fight Enlivens Play.

In addition to the amazing showing of the Hawks, the scene was enlivened by a fist fight between Roger Jenkins and Tom Filmore, which brought the first major penalties of the season in Chicago.

The first period was notable because the Hawks scored two beautifully executed goals in the last 5½ minutes and because of the fight between Filmore and Jenkins.

The fight, which netted each of the combatants a ten minute term in the jail coop, was precipitated while the opening period was in the ninth minute. Goalie Gardiner had gone to his knees to smother a close up shot and while he was down Filmore took a swish at him with his stick.

This maneuver brought Jenkins onto the scene and fisticuffs ensued. After Jenkins and Filmore had been pulled apart, Filmore broke loose from Referee Hewitson and started swinging again. When calm was restored the two boys were locked up together, but fought no more. Jenkins, however, went back for another two minutes for slashing.

Boys Get Busy.

It was after the major penalties had expired that the Gottselig-Cook-March line got busy and registered twice. Gottselig got the first one in 14:30; March and Cook had caried the puck into the American defense zone. Both overskated the rubber, nowever, and, much to his surprise, Gottselig, who was watching the activities, found the puck free right at his toes.

No one had to wire Johnny what to do. He picked up the vagrant object and with splendid deceptive artistry, skated to Goalie Worters, feinted Roy into a jig and slammed in the tally.

In 17:10 Gottselig took the puck just over the blue line and passed to March, who was racing along the right boards. Mush received perfectly and swooped in for a close up shot which Worters saved. March then pounced on the rebound and hooked it in for goal No. 2.

Three More Goals.

The Americans made things miserable for the Hawk defense in the first two minutes of the second period, but in 2:25 the Hawks were the ones to register. Graham and Thompson had reversed an American onslaught and had started the puck sliding across the New York defense zone. Then Cook got the disk directly in front of the cage and about 18 feet out. He let fly and Hawk goal No. 3 shot right past Worters.

The Hawks' goal No. 4 was hung up in 11:10. Cook took a pass from Thompson and skated to the left of center ice to shooting position, whence he beat Worters with finesse.

Hawk goal No. 5 was as thrilling as the best of the others. McFadyen and Coulter carried the puck down. Worters made a great save of a hard shot by Coulter, but before the American goalie could recover Jenkins had whanged home a beauty.

Through some beautiful stick handling Cook started No. 6 on its way from mid-ice. Tommy passed to Thomson, who beat Worters in a rush to the nets.

SILVER SKATES ARE POSTPONED FOR LACK OF ICE

Entrants Must Watch Tribune for Derby Dates.

The sixteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies conducted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, which were scheduled for tomorrow and Sunday at Garfield park, have been postponed because of a lack of ice.

No definite date has been set for the meet, as it may be possible to hold it some time during the next week, perhaps at night, if the temperature drops sufficiently to produce ice thick enough to support the skaters.

A cold spell of two or three days' duration would make it possible to hold the meet, so skaters entered in the meet should watch THE TRIBUNE for notice of the date on which the preliminaries will be run off. It is probable that the Derbies will be held with only a day's notice in advance in order to take advantage of any sudden change in the weather.

Nearly 4,000 boys and girls have entered the meet. The names of the entrants with their numbers will be published in THE TRIBUNE in advance of the meet.

SKATERS, REMEMBER—

BY IRVING JAFFEE.

Since this is the final article of this series for entrants in THE TRIBUNE'S Silver Skates Derbies, which will be held at Garfield park as soon as weather permits, don't be caught unprepared when it is possible to hold the Derbies. In this connection I will relate an unpleasant experience and the lesson I learned from it a few seasons back.

At the Olympic trials held at Lake Placid in 1931, where the American team was to be chosen, we had a thaw for a few days, the ice melted away, and skaters from all parts of the country lost the opportunity to train properly during that period.

During those warm days a majority of the skaters loafed around, slept late, and did everything but train. The night before the elimination trials were scheduled I was invited to attend a party at a night club. I reasoned with myself that the races probably would be canceled, so I accepted. We danced and made merry until the small hours.

The Race Is On!

I had opened my windows wide on retiring and in a few hours was awakened by strong, cold breezes blowing through the room. I arose and examined the thermometer, which registered 15 above.

After an irregular night of rest I came down to discover that the races would be held that day. Needless to say, I was sorry I had stepped out the night before, and if I didn't regret it then I certainly did when the time for the races came along, for I made a poor showing in what were usually my best events.

As a final summary of all the advice I have tried to impart during this series of articles I submit the following important points for all Silver Skates seekers to remember:

1. Don't become discouraged by poor weather. Remember, your rivals have had as little opportunity as you to train.

2. If a postponement is necessary keep on training.

3. Get to bed early the week-end the events are held.

4. Before the event map out in your mind the type of race you are going to skate and follow that plan.

5. Don't let another skater's reputation frighten you. You may earn a reputation for yourself in these races.

6. Make sure your skates and clothing are in perfect condition to avoid mishaps before and during the race.

7. Have a sharp edge on your skates.

8. Check your shoe laces, for many a race is lost through a broken lace.

9. Wear skate protectors in walking out on the ice to prevent the loss of that sharp edge.

10. Wear heavy gloves to keep warm and to protect your hands in case of a fall.

Don't Grandstand.

11. Wear warm clothing and insert newspapers in your uniform in case of a damp, windy day.

12. Don't let a more experienced opponent scare you or talk you out of your rightful position at the starting line.

13. Be alert. Don't get left at the post.

14. Don't grandstand or show off during the race. It won't help you to win.

15. Don't foul or push another skater. It means disqualification.

16. Try and obtain a light massage, if possible, before the race.

17. Don't take hot baths from now until the day of the races. They will weaken you. A lukewarm shower, followed by an alcohol rub, will suffice.

18. Keep cool at all times.

19. Be a good loser as well as a good winner. There can be only one winner in each race, so don't be downhearted if you come in second or even last. There may be better luck next time.

20. Help the officials to conduct the meet smoothly by obeying them.

MADIGAN DENIES HE WANTS POST AT OREGON STATE

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Edward Patrick [Slip] Madigan, football coach at St. Mary's college the last twelve years, today denied published reports he was considering applying for the coaching berth at Oregon State college made vacant by the recent resignation of Paul Schissler. Madigan said such a move "would be a backward step."

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Gordon Phelps, big first baseman who batted .373 with Youngstown in the Central league last season and was purchased by Washington, has been sold outright to Atlanta of the Southern association by the Senators.

MOON MULLINS—MAMIE GETS FLOORED

SMITTY—HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN!

Illini Defense May Balk N. U. 5 Tomorrow

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern's basketball team, defeated in its first conference game by Illinois, 27 to 25, and victor over Purdue, Chicago, and Wisconsin since, has high hopes of revenge against the Illini tomorrow night at Patten gymnasium. Apparently, a capacity crowd of 5,700, the fourth sell out of the home season, will see the game.

Northwestern's chances of victory depend on how successful Joe Reiff and Elmer Johnson are in eluding the Illinois defense. Reiff was held to six points, one field goal and four free throws, at Champaign, his lowest total in three years of Big Ten competition. Since then, however, he has increased his total points to 60, an average of 15 points a game.

Illini Has Good Defense.

The Illinois defense will be much more difficult to penetrate than was Wisconsin's last Monday night. For one thing, Wisconsin used a strict man-to-man defense and the players failed to change men when Northwestern used block formations.

Brewer got away from his guard several times by cutting from the side across and in front of Johnson on the free throw line to receive a pass from Reiff. By cutting close to Johnson he provided an automatic block for his guard.

The defense for this play, of course, is for Johnson's guard to switch to Brewer. The play is more effective with Brewer, than any other man, for his right hand shot is excellent, probably better than when he shoots with two hands.

Illini Know How.

These block plays will have slight chance of success tomorrow night against Illinois. The Illini, judging by their first game with Northwestern, have been drilled in changing men. They also favor a combination zone and man to man defense.

This game is all important to Northwestern. Defeat, particularly with a game yet to be played on Purdue's floor, may eliminate the Wildcats from the championship race.

Schuman Meets Phagan Tonight in Cicero Bout

Three bouts at six rounds will head the second boxing show this season at the Cicero stadium, 52d avenue and 20th street, tonight. Johnny Phagan, 1932 international Golden Gloves welterweight champion, and Harry Schuman of the west side will meet in one. The others will bring together Ray Tramble, Rockford, Ill., middleweight, and Joe Mendoza of the south side, and Kid Irish, St. Louis, Mo., featherweight, and Charley Cerminaro.

Phagan will be seeking his fourth professional victory in five bouts. Johnny was held to a draw by Solly Dukelsky, who has been beaten by Schuman. Schuman has won his four matches in Chicago since returning from Florida last year. Eddie Gill, St. Charles, Ill., probably will battle the winner of the Tramble-Mendoza match at Cicero on Feb. 3.

Barney Ross signed last night to box Johnny Datto at Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 30. The bout was closed when it was learned that the Barney Ross-Billy Townsend contest scheduled for the Chicago Stadium on Jan. 27 was indefinitely postponed. Joey Palazzola, Detroit featherweight, will appear on the Ross-Datto card.

The finals of the boys' boxing tournament will be presented at the Division street Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night. Preliminaries have been contested. The original entry was 86.

A meeting of professional promoters and matchmakers in Chicago will be held at the Medinah Athletic club tonight to prevent overpaying of boxers on their cards. Charles Hall of the Coliseum Athletic club has made arrangements for the meeting. It is contended that if the promoters and matchmakers work together and refuse to allow boxers to dictate terms and pick their opponents, bouts could be promoted on a profitable scale instead of at a loss.

Among those who have been invited to attend are:

Chicago Stadium — Nate Lewis, matchmaker, and Mickey Farr, assistant; White City—Pep Kerwin, promoter, and Sammy Abruscato, matchmaker; Cicero stadium—Eddie Purvis, matchmaker; Rainbo Fronton—Grant Kromenaker, promoter, and Chuck Logan, matchmaker; Coliseum — Charles Hall, promoter, and Tom Ford, matchmaker.

Paul Dazzo, west side featherweight, has been matched for a bout with Ross Fields at Cleveland on Jan. 30. The contest is set for six rounds. Sammy [Kid] Slaughter of Terre Haute, Ind., and Gorilla Jones, former middleweight champion, clash in the windup. Dazzo has started workouts at Trafton's gymnasium.

WOMAN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE IN SHERIDAN ROAD

Becomes Confused While Crossing Street.

Miss Mary Simmons, 65 years old, a resident of the Edgewater Beach hotel, was fatally injured last evening when struck by an automobile as she was crossing Sheridan road, at Berwyn avenue. She died in the Edgewater hospital, where John M. Frier, 1317 Albion avenue, driver of the car, took her.

Lincoln park police were informed that Miss Simmons became confused while crossing the street east, toward her hotel, and that Frier swerved sharply in an effort to avoid striking her. George Deacy, 4200 Washington boulevard, said Miss Simmons, who was his wife's aunt, lived alone at the hotel and formerly lived at 5200 Sheridan road.

Girl Skater Killed.

Olive Jane Norton, 14 years old, 8928 Normal avenue, was struck by an automobile while roller skating at Vincennes avenue and East 89th street, and died later in the Auburn Park hospital. Charles Scott, 8798 Beverly avenue, driver of the car, took her to the hospital. He said he tried to avoid hitting two other girls and did not see the victim.

Two other deaths increased the 1933 Cook county automobile toll to 45. The other victims:

Jacob Zimmer, 48 years old, 4550 Mobile avenue. Died in the Keystone hospital early today of injuries suffered when he was struck at Fullerton and Central avenues by an automobile driven by Edward Maha, 5039 North Parkside avenue.

Michael Kaspar, 18 years old, 4610 South Lincoln street. Died in South Town hospital of injuries incurred Saturday in an automobile collision at Damen avenue and Garfield boulevard.

A coroner's jury, investigating the deaths of Henry Bicknase, 65 years old, a retired farmer, and his son, Earl, 35 years old, an electrician, of Palatine, who were killed Wednesday night when their automobile was struck by a Chicago and North Western railway train at the Frade street crossing in Palatine, recommended yesterday that the railway install gates at the crossing.

Hunt Hit and Run Driver.

Otto Matchke, 75 years old, 1526 Clybourn avenue, was seriously injured yesterday at North avenue and Clark street by a hit and run motorist who disregarded a red traffic signal. Matchke was taken to the Alexian Brothers' hospital.

The police were searching for Charles Kimball, formerly of 2552 Prairie avenue, Evanston, believed to be the motorist who Wednesday struck and seriously injured John Clements, 33 years old, 4065 Sheridan road, and drove away with the remark, "Everybody for himself, pal," when Clements begged to be taken to a hospital. The license number on the car was traced to Kimball.

Burton Freer, 53 years old, editor of the magazine "Spur," was fatally injured yesterday in an automobile collision near Michigan City, Ind. He died at the St. Anthony hospital there.

4 AID DAUGHTER IN SUIT TO UPSET L. H. BRINK WILL

Four witnesses yesterday testified that Louis H. Brink, head of a produce brokerage concern, a founder of the Chicago Poultry board, and a charter member of the old butter and egg exchange, drank straight alcohol for many years before his death in April, 1931. They were called by Mrs. Jessie Brink Long, 529 North Grove avenue, Oak Park, his daughter, and Mrs. Ida Brink, his widow, who are contesting the will through which he disposed of his $1,250,000 estate, before Circuit Judge Joseph Burke.

Richard Schuler, former bookkeeper; J. H. Sherman, a friend who had known Brink four years before his death; A. M. Michaelson of Benton Harbor, owner of a bathhouse; and Miss Margaret Lowe, a nurse; told of Brink's appetite for alcohol. Sherman said he had "never known Brink to be sober" and Michaelson said Brink was a regular patron of the bathhouse "to get the alcohol boiled out of him." Michaelson said Brink was a broken old man when he made his will.

Mrs. Long charged that her father was not in full possession of his faculties when he made his will. The document made his three sons, John L. Brink, 7925 Washington boulevard, River Forest; Ernest C. Brink, 533 North Grove avenue, Oak Park; and Laurence H. Brink, 529 North Grove avenue, Oak Park, who are defendants in the suit, the executors. They were directed to place the property in trust and provide for their mother from the income until her death. At that time they were to split the principal into four parts, retaining their sister's share in trust until her death. Then her children will divide the share.

4 MEN KILLED AS TRUCK HITS TRAIN ON SPUR

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Four welfare employés were killed and seven injured, three seriously, when a City of Dearborn truck on which a group of fourteen workmen were riding crashed into a switch train in South Dix avenue, Dearborn, at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The truck crashed into the rear freight car of the train. The men killed were riding in the open body of the truck. The impact of the crash hurled them under the train, which was backing up.

Clarence A. Harris, 36 years old, the driver of the truck, said he did not see the train approaching. He spun the steering wheel just before the crash in an effort to avoid the collision, he said, but the move was too late, and served only to hurl the truck sideways against the moving cars.

CLOGGED BOWELS EXACT THEIR PRICE

Don't imagine that you can shock your system every few days with laxatives and fail to pay the price. Laxatives and purges rob the delicate membrane lining of your bowels of moisture and elasticity, so that you have to continue drugging more and more to spur your reluctant bowels to action. Almost before you realize your peril, you're a laxative slave. Digestive troubles develop, headaches, dizzy spells and biliousness follow. An operation for piles or other intestinal trouble may result.

But you can free yourself from laxative slavery and constipation quickly and easily with Cream of Nujol treatment.

This new form of Nujol is specially suited to sufferers from chronic constipation. It soothes and comforts the bowels, absorbs poisons, and helps the peristaltic action which alone can dispose of wastes naturally.

Start the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment tonight. It is delicious to take and costs you only a few cents a day.

BANKRUPTCY SUIT FILED AGAINST BIG PHONE COMPANY

President's Reply Hints of "Shakedown."

An involuntary bankruptcy action was instituted in the United States District court yesterday against the Associated Telephone and Telegraph company, an $80,000,000 utility holding company with headquarters at 100 West Monroe street.

The petition was filed by Attorneys Joseph Kamfner and Edwin Halligan on behalf of Morton J. Pinz, agent for the three following Canadian companies: The Stevens Baker Company, Ltd., the Pender Loan and Investment company, and the Anglo-Canadian Investment company, all of Vancouver, British Columbia. These companies, holders of debenture bonds of $1,000 or more, allege that the Chicago company is insolvent, but do not say that there has been any default.

President Answers Charge.

E. C. Blomeyer, president of Associated Telephone, last night issued the following statement on the action:

"Some weeks ago a gentleman from Vancouver came into the Chicago offices of this company. He told officers here that certain stockholders were complaining about the sale of some property by the parent company to one of its own subsidiaries. He concluded his conference by indicating that the matter could be settled amicably if Associated Telephone would turn over to his principals at a nominal consideration valuable properties it owned.

"This gentleman indicated that failing such a settlement suits would be filed. Yesterday this company received a telegram from this same party asserting that unless certain things in connection with the matter were done immediately a bankruptcy proceeding would be filed Thursday.

"Associated Telephone is solvent, it has not committed any act of bankruptcy, it has no past due bills or bond indebtedness and it has not, as alleged, turned over to banks or trust companies, any of its assets. The company intends to fight the suit. Its attorneys are Defrees, Buckingham, Jones & Hoffman."

Charge Transfer of Assets.

The petition filed yesterday states that an act of bankruptcy was committed on Sept. 19, 1932, at which time the telephone company transferred stocks, bonds and securities in excess of $1,000,000 to the British Columbia Telephone Co., Ltd. It also alleges that on the same date there was similar transfer of a great number of assets to various companies.

Last July 11 a petition for the appointment of a receiver in equity was filed in the United States District court here, but it was dismissed on July 29 without costs.

Associated Telephone was organized as a Delaware company in 1926. It is an alliance of British and American telephone interests operating both in the manufacturing and telephone service fields. It has subsidiaries in all parts of the world.

Lambert.

I would appreciate information on Lambert common stock. Do you consider this stock to be a risk?— L. A.

Lambert company was originally established in 1884. Listerine, a liquid antiseptic and mouth wash, is its principal product. It contributes about 60 per cent of sales. Listerine tooth paste supplies much of the remainder. Other products are shaving cream, salve, throat tablets, and medicated cigarets, all sold under the Listerine trade name. In 1930 the company acquired Pro-phy-lac-tic Brush company.

The main factor in the company's growth has been its liberal advertising. Advertising budget is about one-third of sales. Widespread advertising has made other sales costs small. The company employs few salesmen and has followed the practice of not permitting discounts to large purchasers.

Competition is mainly from retailers who push their own private brands with customers. The company virtually had its field to itself until about two years ago. Since then competitors have begun to establish their brands on a national scale.

Net income for the first nine months of 1932 was $3,208,000, or $4.28 per share on 748,996 shares, against net of $5,361,000, or $7.16 per share, for the corresponding 1931 period. Net for 1931 was $6,143,000, or $8.23 per share, against net of $7,132,000, or $9.52 per share, for 1930. Net for 1929 was $7,019,000, against net of $6,235,000 for 1928.

Property requirements are small. Total fixed assets on Dec. 31, 1931, [after depreciation] were $1,237,000. On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $7,746,000 and current liabilities were $1,536,000. Working capital was $6,209,000, against $5,942,000 the year before.

Capitalization is simple. There is no funded debt and only one class of stock. For six years through 1931 dividends totaled 82 per cent of total profits [97 per cent in 1931]. On Oct. 1, 1932, the stock was placed on a quarterly $1 dividend basis, compared with $2 previously paid. It deserves a fairly good rating. The element of risk is inherent in every common stock commitment, however.

Colorado Utilities.

Kindly tell me about Colorado Utilities corporation first mortgage 6 per cent bonds. My coupon for September was returned.—Mrs. S. J. C.

Interest due Sept. 1, 1932, on the first 6s, due 1938, was not paid on its due date. According to the underwriter the amount due was deposited prior to the expiration of the 90 day period of grace. If you send your coupon through again it probably will be honored.

RESERVE SELLS $34,200,000 OF U. S. SECURITIES

Continue Open Market Policy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—Federal Reserve banks sold $34,200,000 of government securities during the last week, continuing the open market operations which they began in the previous week.

A decline in member bank reserve balances accompanied the selling of governments by the reserve banks for the first time last week. Before starting to sell governments, however, the reserve banks pledged themselves not to let their operations lower the present high level of member bank excess reserves.

Excess reserves of the member banks, now estimated to be between 500 million and 600 million dollars, are regarded as essential raw material for the reconstruction period. It is from these idle funds that the banks will draw when they resume normal commercial credit operations, and the reserve banks do not wish their selling in the open market to drain the huge reserves of potential credit.

Keep Reserves Up.

Reserve banks may regard the $29,000,000 decrease in total member bank reserves only as partially offsetting an increase of $60,000,000 which occurred in the preceding week. If they become alarmed at the decrease in reserves, however, the reserve banks may temporarily slacken their sales of governments during the coming week.

All of the twelve reserve banks joined in the selling of government securities last week. The Chicago Federal Reserve bank sold $4,207,000 of governments, bringing its total holdings down to $253,343,000. This operation was accompanied by an increase of $2,500,000 in the member bank reserves in the Chicago district, contrary to the general movement.

The selling of $34,200,000 of governments last week brought the twelve reserve banks' aggregate holdings under the 1,800 million dollar mark for the first time in recent months. They now have 1,778 million dollars of governments. To accomplish the 34 million dollar reduction last week the reserve banks sold $43,200,000 of treasury certificates and bills and bought nine million dollars of treasury notes.

Helps Market for Notes.

This shifting from certificates and bills to notes was carried on in the previous week also and, if followed continuously, it will make the government portfolio of the reserve banks much less mobile. Meanwhile it gives new support to the market for treasury notes, a market which the treasury may wish to exploit in some of its impending financing, officials point out.

The fall in member bank reserve last week was not due entirely to the selling of the central banks. One of the forces which has been increasing the excess reserves has been the return of money to the banks from circulation. Last week that trend was reversed and 13 million dollars of money actually flowed from the banks' vaults into circulation.

That the selling by the reserve banks did have some relation to the declining reserves is indicated by the fact that preliminary reports from member banks show that as their reserves went down last week they increased their holdings of government securities, some of which may have been purchased with money from the reserves and the central banks sold.

MEMBER BALANCES DROP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—An unseasonable rise of $18,000,000 of money in circulation and a decline of $29,000,000 in member bank reserve balances along with the further reduction of $34,195,000 in government security holdings were the features of the report today of the federal reserve bank for the week ended Wednesday.

Gold holdings of the system rose $17,034,000 in the week which corresponded with the advance in monetary gold stocks of the country. The monetary gold stocks reached a total of $4,566,000,000, which is $657,000,000 above the low point reached on June 15, last.

Federal reserve note circulation increased $10,271,000 in the week and deposit liabilities dropped $36,599,000, due principally to the fall in member bank reserve deposits. The net decline in note and deposit liabilities combined together with the rise in gold holdings lifted the ratio of reserves to note and deposit liabilities to 64.7 per cent against 64.1 per cent last week.

Brokers' loans, as reported by local member banks of the federal reserve, declined $14,000,000 to $367,000,000. The entire reduction was embraced in the loan accounts of the reporting banks themselves, loans for the account of out-of-town banks, and others being unchanged.

The Analyst says American business activity, as measured by its index, entered 1933 about 40 per cent below estimated normal, but about 15 per cent above the low point of the depression, reached in July.

Kansas City Southern December Net Ahead of '31

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Kansas City Southern railroad has reported December net income, after taxes, of $72,514, an increase of more than $25,000 over the same month in 1931.

Directors of International Harvester company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock, payable March 1 to stock of record February 6.

U. S. Avoids Issuing Long Term Bonds

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—The door was virtually closed today on the probability of a government bond issue on Feb. 1, notwithstanding reports that refinancing of the huge public debt would be launched on that date.

OGDEN L. MILLS.

As the improbability of a bond issue on the first of the month developed, it brought with it the certainty that the Democratic administration will have to take over a $21,000,000,000 public debt, together with the task of refinancing three-fifths of it.

If the treasury were planning a bond issue on Feb. 1, as rumors insisted, announcements would have been circulated by now, official circles said today. Announcements of bond issues are published two weeks before the date of issue. On this basis a Feb. 1 bond issue would have been announced by today at the latest.

Must Refund $144,400,000.

Approximately $144,400,000 of 3¾ per cent treasury certificates must be refinanced on Feb. 1. Rumor, which now appears to have been unfounded, declared that the treasury would enlarge this necessary refinancing into a bond issue.

The $144,400,000 Feb. 1 maturity probably will be rolled over in about its present form, according to the latest indications. Because it has almost 400 million dollars in cash on hand, the treasury may not have to add much to the new issue above refinancing needs in order to obtain additional running funds.

The interest rate on the new issue, however, is expected to be much lower than the 3¾ per cent rate which the maturing issue bears. The latest issue of treasury certificates carried a rate of ¾ of 1 per cent. Since that issue was floated, however, the federal reserve banks have embarked on a policy of cutting down their certificate holdings, and the new issue, therefore, may have to bear a higher rate than its immediate predecessor.

Last Republican Financing.

Rolling over of the Feb. 1 certificates will be the last large refinancing handled by Secretary of the Treasury Mills and his staff. The next major operation, refinancing of 661 million dollars on March 15, may be planned by Mills before March 4, but it will be executed by his successor.

In foregoing a bond issue on Feb. 1, therefore, Secretary Mills passes up his opportunity to start the huge 12 billion public debt refinancing which must be carried out in the next five years.

The refinancing falls into two phases: Refunding of the six billion fourth Liberty loan and conversion of a six billion short term debt into bonds. Mills has insisted that the first of these tasks is no concern of his, since the Liberty loan is not callable until Oct. 15 and need not be given until April 15.

He could, however, have started the conversion of the short term debt if he had put out a large bond issue on Feb. 1, the proceeds of which would have retired the Feb. 1 certificates and subsequent short term maturities. Mills has declared, however, that a balanced budget is necessary for successful refinancing, and the Democratic decision to let budget balancing go over to a special session may have deterred him from starting the conversion.

R. G. DUN SHOWS BETTER TREND IN TRADE OF NATION

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The decline in business failures in the last quarter of 1932 to levels below a year ago was the most favorable economic development of that period, says R. G. Dun & Co. in their quarterly survey of industry issued today.

Defaults were 6.2 per cent under the total for the fourth quarter of 1932, recording the greatest quarterly decline in the last four years, the agency reports.

Commenting on the possible significance of this trend, the agency says that "in all past periods of business contraction commercial mortality has increased in proportion to the severity of the deflation, but a time has come in each of these depression years when the pace of liquidation has slackened, deflation has become less severe, and commercial failures have turned downward."

Steel Mill to Give 200 Work at Steubenville, O.

Steubenville, O., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Two hundred men will be given employment again with the resumption of operations tomorrow at the Follansbee Brothers' company's open hearth furnace here. The mills will furnish ingots and bars to the Follansbee, W. Va., plant of the company which heretofore has bought its steel on the open market.

STOCKS STRONG IN LIGHT TRADE; LEADERS GAIN

Fractional Advances Dot the List.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—Stock prices hardened today in light trading. Many fractional net gains were posted at the close on a turnover not much in excess of half a million shares. Individual performances by well bought specialty issues saved the proceedings from the extreme dullness that has characterized recent sessions.

A firmer tone in wheat and cotton, together with a stronger bond market, helped to sustain price levels, but the share market was still in need of something stronger in the way of an incentive for a rise.

The list presented an appearance of being liquidated and bear operations were restricted for the most part to experimental selling for a possible turn. Such bear tactics, coupled with buying said to have been for the purpose of covering short accounts, played a large part in sustaining the list at slightly higher levels.

Watch Political Conference.

Much of the buying was said to have been induced by the conference to be held tomorrow between President Hoover and President Elect Roosevelt. There was no inclination in the street to look upon the Washington discussions with any great hope as far as the market is concerned, but there is the outside chance that they might be fruitful.

The market presented a strong tone right through the session, and while selling developed in some directions late in the day, the movement was not contagious. In general, closing prices were not far from the day's best levels.

Woolworth, for some reason, continued to be the butt of a sellers' clique. It was turned over in large volume and ended with a fractional decline.

General Electric was also a soft spot, closing down a bit, but other shares of pivotal distinction posted changes on the upside, albeit fractional. These were American Can, American Telephone, Du Pont, United States Steel, and Westinghouse. General Motors was unchanged on a negligible turnover.

Aviation Group Strong.

Traders' interest made a periodic swing to the aviation group, with benefit to the shares of the big air transportation companies. United Air Transport, for instance, reflected a good technical position by a run-up to 26¾ from 26⅜ at one time on a string of buying orders. Gossip has it that an opportunist pool garnered a line of the stock during the recent weakness.

Aviation corporation took up a good deal of space on the tape and wound up with a fractional gain.

National Dairy Products returned to stability after having been shaken by selling yesterday. Its activity came from the buying side today and it closed unchanged on balance.

The excellent report of Liggett & Myers continued to be the subject of much talk in brokerage offices, and issues of that company were in the van of a rally in the tobacco section.

Union Pacific set the pace for the rails, with a rise at one time of 2 points. Chesapeake and Ohio was well bought and quickly reached its old high around 28, which it seems to have difficulty in breaking. New York Central did fairly well, as did most of the other active carrier shares.

CENT. HANOVER BANK CHOOSES 35 YEAR OLD HEAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—William S. Gray Jr. today was elected president of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company by the board of trustees, at their organization meeting following the stockholders' annual meeting last Thursday. George Davison, president since 1929, was elected chairman of the board, and William Woodward, chairman since 1929, was elected honorary chairman.

Mr. Gray, who was born in 1897, has become the youngest president of an important New York banking institution, as he is now only thirty-five years old.

Youngest President Named by Coffee, Sugar Exchange

New York, Jan. 19.—William H. English Jr. was elected the twenty-fourth president of the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange at the annual election today. Succeeding H. H. Pike Jr., who held the office for two years, Mr. English is 33 years old, the youngest president of any of the commodity or security markets.

N. Y. CENTRAL, B. & O. BORROW MONEY THEY EARNED FOR INTEREST

New York, Jan. 19.—The New York Central railroad has obtained a loan of $2,000,000 and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad is applying for a loan of $1,000,000 from the Railroad Credit corporation, it was disclosed today. The first transactions of their kind by eastern trunk lines, their effect will be to make available to the companies involved some of the funds which they earned in 1932, but which they were compelled to advance to the corporation for distribution as loans to weaker railroads.

The New York Central contributed about $6,000,000 and the Baltimore and Ohio about $4,000,000 to the corporation in 1932. At the same time, however, these railroads were failing to earn their interest charges and were borrowing from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for various purposes.

Insurance Men Cheer Palmer as State Chief

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Insurance leaders of Chicago were unanimous yesterday in expressions of satisfaction over the appointment by Gov. Horner of Ernest Palmer as state insurance superintendent, holding that this action will mean the salvation of insurance in Illinois.

Mr. Palmer, who is manager and general counsel of the Chicago Board of Fire Underwriters, declined to comment on his appointment, saying that any word on the matter will have to come from Gov. Horner. He is resigning from his present position so that his hands will be entirely free when his appointment is confirmed by the senate.

Gov. Horner stated in Springfield yesterday that he is prepared to have the general assembly make the insurance department a separate unit if necessary in order to secure effective regulation of companies operating in this state.

His Solution of Problems.

C. M. Cartwright, editor of the National Underwriter, made this comment:

"The appointment of Mr. Palmer will solve the insurance problems of Illinois. As I understand it Mr. Palmer will be responsible to Gov. Horner alone and no politics will enter the picture.

"Mr Palmer is a man of good judgment and broad legal experience. He has the good common sense to handle the present difficult situation. The present problems did not develop hurriedly, but have been smouldering for years. The state insurance department has been ridden by politics for years. His appointment means that Illinois will give a good account of itself in the future."

Alexander E. Patterson of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company said:

"I am delighted with Mr. Palmer's appointment. I wrote to Gov. Horner this morning to say that I believe that Illinois will now have its laws administered in a way that will put the state on a par with other states, such as New York and Massachusetts, where failures have been nil."

George Tramel, Chicago manager of the Aetna Life Insurance and Affiliated companies, said:

"The appointment of Mr. Palmer is the most welcome insurance news of the year. It is the greatest news that policy holders could have.

"Gov. Horner could not have selected a more able man than Mr. Palmer. Illinois will now come into its own in the insurance world."

Should Improve Conditions.

Herman A. Behrens, president of the Continental Assurance and Casualty companies, remarked:

"I believe that the appointment of Mr. Palmer means that the Illinois insurance laws will be enforced and if they are insurance conditions will be satisfactory in this state."

Mr. Palmer was born in Portsmouth, N. H., in 1882. He was educated at Lake Forest academy and college and at the Northwestern university law school. He was admitted to the bar in 1910. His home is in Evanston.

BRITISH BUYING BACK GOLD PAID TO U. S. ON WAR DEBT ACCOUNT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—The Federal Reserve bank of New York has resold to the British treasury or the Bank of England part of the $95,550,000 gold it acquired in London on Dec. 15 as a result of the payment of the war debt instalment. That was disclosed yesterday when the reserve bank announced a reduction of $25,101,200 in its gold held abroad.

The reserve bank's spokesman, evidently in deference to the wishes of the British authorities, refused to amplify the announcement.

Having got the full benefits of the publicity involved in their costly gesture of making payment against the war debt, it was suggested by some that the British had decided that, after all, they would rather keep some of the gold and spend some of the dollar balances that they have on deposit here.

Of the $95,550,000 gold earmarked at the Bank of England on Dec. 15 for the account of the Federal Reserve bank here in return for the transfer to the British bank of a like amount of gold in this country, $44,459,000 had been shipped over here up to Wednesday, leaving $51,091,000 still held in London. Yesterday's reduction of the gold held abroad brought the total down to $25,990,000. Future gold statements will be watched with interest to see whether any of this remainder is resold.

Bank Accepts Insurance Bid on Blackstone

Settlement of the Blackstone hotel receivership, with the Metropolitan Life Insurance company taking over the entire property, including furniture and fixtures, was indicated yesterday with the likelihood that a final order, approving such settlement, will be entered by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson this afternoon.

The insurance company, which has already acquired the building by virtue of foreclosure of a $1,600,000 first mortgage, this afternoon made a bid of $125,000 for the furniture and fixtures on which the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company has a chattel mortgage.

This is an increase of $25,000 over the original bid made by the insurance company which was previously rejected. It also duplicates the previous highest bid made on behalf of Albert Pick Company, Inc., hotel furnishers.

In addition the Metropolitan Life Insurance company is to pay $35,000 more to defray the cost of the receivership, including fees of the receivers as well as the attorneys for the general creditors.

Attorneys for the bank and general creditors indicated that the latest bid of the insurance company is acceptable.

Job Campaign Keeps 41,132 on Pay Rolls

Of 2,225 Chicago companies reporting to the departments of labor and commerce at Washington, 2,001 are participating in the share the work movement, according to a report made yesterday as the results of the campaign to increase jobs in the Chicago area by Alfred S. Alschuler.

The report states that as a result of this campaign 41,132 workers have been retained on pay rolls who would otherwise have been dismissed, 4,240 workers have been reemployed, and 1,794 additional workers will be taken on.

The Chicago firms reporting to date include manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers, and others whose aggregate number of employés, as of Dec. 15, was approximately 203,665.

Manufacturers Retain 35,310.

Manufacturers, numbering 1,352, reported that the share the work arrangement permitted the retention of 35,310 employés, that 3,466 new employés have been taken on, and that approximately 1,238 additional workers will be employed.

Wholesalers, numbering 239, reported that the movement has resulted in the retention of 2,466 workers, that 217 new employés have been taken on, and that approximately 98 additional workers will be employed.

Retailers, numbering 474, reported that the movement has resulted in the retention of 2,826 workers, that 450 new employés have been hired and that approximately 265 additional workers will be employed.

Banks, numbering nine, reported that the movement has resulted in the retention of 46 workers, that 4 new employés have been hired, and that no additional workers will be employed.

Hotels Help in Work.

Hotels, numbering 15, reported that the movement has resulted in the retention of 147 workers, that 31 new employés have been hired, and that approximately 6 additional workers will be employed.

Other employers, numbering 12, including railroad companies, motor bus lines, mining companies, and natural gas producers, sand and gravel companies, and drayage companies, reported that the movement has resulted in the retention of 337 workers, that 72 new employés have been hired, and that approximately 187 additional workers will be employed.

CHICAGO FINDS IT HARD TO BUY BACK OWN BONDS

Investors Not Keen for 100 Cents on $1.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Bankers who last month directed the big drive to preserve the credit of the city of Chicago yesterday were jubilant over the suddenly changed attitude of the public toward the city's bonds.

M. S. SZYMCZAK.

A month ago holders of city of Chicago bonds maturing Jan. 1 were worrying about their payment and wondering whether it would be wise to accept the new five year 6 per cent bonds in exchange for the maturing bonds.

Reluctantly most of the holders accepted the new bonds in exchange for the old—not through choice but because they saw no attractive alternative.

This week through the collection of delinquent taxes City Controller Szymczak has $419,122 to buy that amount of the bonds back from holders. The bonds are not callable but the city collector is permitted by the indenture to use money collected in back taxes to purchase bonds at par.

Fifteen Million Outstanding.

There are outstanding about 15 million dollars' worth of these bonds, 10 millions in the hands of the public and 5 millions with banks. And yet holders of only $359,000 worth of bonds have taken advantage of the opportunity to sell their bonds at 100 cents on the dollar. There is $60,000 in cash that hasn't been taken by the bondholders.

John Denison, vice president of the Continental Illinois company and a member of the group of bankers who directed the refunding operations, when asked for his explanation of the investors' better frame of mind, said:

"The very fact that the refunding went over in such good shape was reassuring to bondholders. Many of them last month wanted cash because they couldn't get it. Now that they

A tax increase of 700%

Federal Estate taxes are many times greater than they were prior to last June. On estates of $2,000,000, the increase is over 700 per cent. On smaller estates, the percentage increase is even more. For example, an estate of $450,000 which up to June 6, 1932 paid a tax of $2,100 is now taxed over ten times that or $27,600; an estate of $150,000 which was formerly taxed only $100 now must pay $4,600.

This increased taxation may seriously affect your plans for providing for your family after you are gone. Much may be done during your lifetime to minimize the effect of these taxes, and we shall be pleased to discuss this important matter with you and your attorney at any time.

WHEAT MOVES NEARER TO COST OF PRODUCTION

Chicago Prices Advance ¾ to 7/8c in Day.

WHEAT PRICES IN GOLD

Wheat prices in world markets, reduced to United States funds, at closing rates of exchange:

| | Thursday. | Wk. ago. |
|---|---|---|
| Chicago May | $ .47⅞ | $ .46⅝ |
| Winnipeg May | .40⅜ | .39⅜ |
| Do No.2 Manitoba | .36⅞ | .35⅝ |
| Liverpool March | .45¼ | .44⅝ |
| Do May | .49 | .48¼ |
| Do No.2 Manitoba | .52⅜ | .52⅜ |
| Rotterdam, Jan | .45 | .45 |
| Buenos Aires May | .38⅝ | .37½ |

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A gradual recognition that wheat is selling below production costs in all of the leading countries is beginning to be a factor in the market. Discovery that futures in Liverpool were around 3c per bu below the cost of the cheapest wheat which could be delivered on contracts started the English market on the upgrade, in the face of forecasts for large Argentine shipments. This in turn started a buying movement in North America yesterday.

There was a noticeable lack of pressure on wheat both in Chicago and foreign markets, and while the buying was not aggressive, prices locally advanced 1¼@1⅜c over the finish of the previous day, with May and July touching 48¾c. Profit taking and selling against offers caused the bulge, but the finish was at net gains of ⅝@⅞c, with May and July 47⅝@47⅞c and September 48⅛@48⅝c at the last.

Winnipeg Leads Advance.

Winnipeg wheat led the advance and was up 1⅛@1⅜c for the day, taking the blackboard quotations, while Liverpool was ⅝@1c per bu higher and Buenos Aires 1@1⅛c up for the day. The advance in the latter is expected to have some influence on Liverpool during the early trading today.

A report from the Pacific northwest received by Bartlett-Frazier from a farmer in that section, in which mention was made that it would be more profitable to buy wheat futures than it would be to reseed winter killed crops and grow the grain, attracted considerable attention from the trade.

There has been evidence of aggressive support in the Winnipeg wheat market of late, and, according to reports from there Thursday, foreigners had been taking the October delivery for the last three days. The new crop month in the Canadian market was quoted at 49c at the close, or about 40⅝c per bu, figured on the current rate of exchange.

Based on freight rates from Alberta points to Vancouver, the Canadian price suggests a figure of not over 35c per bu to the producer, and well below that figure in the areas where freights are higher. Even these figures are much above those which could be secured by the Kansas farmer, based on a comparison with the Kansas City price for September delivery.

Corn Higher with Wheat.

There was little pressure on corn and futures finished ¼@⅝c higher, May being 26⅝c, July 28@28⅛c, and September 29¼c. The country sold only 6,500 bu to arrive. Trade in the aggregate was light. There were further reports of export demand, and it is claimed around 200,000 bu have been sold abroad from the gulf in the last few days. Oats gained ⅛c with corn, closing with May at 17⅛c and July at 17⅜@17⅝c, while rye was ⅜c higher. May rye was 35⅜c and July 35c at the finish. Barley gained ¼c, with May at 27⅜c.

Courtney Will Address Cartage Exchange Dinner

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney will be the principal speaker at the nineteenth annual banquet of the Cartage Exchange of Chicago tomorrow evening at the Palmer house. Among those present will be members who belonged to one of the forerunners of the exchange, known as the Chicago Team Owners association, organized in 1897.

COTTON TRADERS AWAIT BETTER POLITICAL NEWS

Cotton traders and mill interests are understood to be awaiting more reassuring news of a political character upon which to base their operations for the future. Moderate trade buying develops on breaks and there is also fair selling on bulges. However, at present the market seems to have no particular trend and price fluctuations are confined to narrow limits.

An advance of 10 to 12 points was made early and was followed by a moderate reaction and a bulge. The range was narrow and the close on futures in Chicago was at net gains of 3@7 point, and other markets up 2@6 points. Spot market was 5 points higher, New York being 6.25c, New Orleans and Galveston, 6.10c, and 6.05c at Houston. Liverpool closed 3@4 points net higher.

Domestic and foreign trade was said to be fair. Wall street sold March delivery and it is said that cooperatives are holders of a substantial amount of March contracts, a transfer of which to some more distant positions may widen differences between months. Exports on Wednesday were 25,200 bales, making a total for the season about 90,000 bales in excess of the same time last year. Prices follow:

BANKING ON BALCONIES

Growth of deposits from $89,301,000 to $149,514,000 in the last year has raised a problem for the Northern Trust company. Its building, at the northwest corner of La Salle and Monroe streets, was heightened two stories a few years ago, about all the present foundations will support.

To provide elbow room for the additional employés taken on during the last year balconies are being constructed around the main banking floor.

can get it they don't want it. It's largely a matter of psychology."

AN INSURANCE REPORT

President M. J. Cleary of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company of Milwaukee the other night addressed a large meeting of his company's agents here. He asked that no newspaper reporters be invited. He was scheduled to talk about the financial condition of the company, but he said he didn't want to appear to be seeking publicity.

Three agents, less reticent than their chief, have reported to us what he said.

Mr. Cleary informed his audience that of the million policies that the company had in force 66 per cent had no loans whatever against them. He said that surplus at the close of 1932 was at about the same level as a year ago, approximately $54,000,000. New insurance business paid for in 1932 totaled a quarter of a billion dollars.

He said that of the company's $300,000,000 investments in bonds, $160,000,000 was in railroads, $30,000,000 in utilities, and $83,000,000 in governments, municipals, etc.

Few Bonds in Default.

Less than $100,000 of the bonds, Mr. Cleary was quoted as saying, are in default. He added that five times as many of the municipals were in default as rails and utilities combined, most of them being in the Chicago district.

Mr. Cleary is reported to have said that the company has had to take over 1,600 farms, but that these represent only 5 per cent of the company's farm mortgages. Foreclosed farm real estate, he stated, represents only 1.5 per cent of total assets.

Of $190,000,000 invested in city mortgages, he said, only one piece of property, a bank and office building in Lima, O., has had to be taken over by the company.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was more active and firmer today in increased covering and scattered buying, promoted by the firm cotton, grains, lard and hog markets, which offset the easier crude position. Final prices were 5 to 9 points net higher. Sales 12 contracts, or 1,800 barrels. Bleachable spot closed 3.65c; January, 3.87c; March, 3.78c; May, 3.90c; July, 4.01c.

BUTTER WEAKENS AFTER UPTURN

Butter futures gained sharply at the opening on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, but failed to hold. Closing prices were ⅝@¾c lower. Eggs were unchanged to ½c lower.

Active new buying and covering carried butter higher at the start. Production reports tended to encourage the advance, the Pacific coast reporting the make under last year and the American association reporting only a very slight increase over last week and over the same week last year. However, storage figures were poor and liquidation developed at mid-season and continued to the close.

Receipts of eggs continued above last year, but a better tone to the spot market held the futures firm early. The weakness in butter contributed nervousness and brought out selling at the close. Sales: Butter, 142 cars; eggs, 23 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 8 cars. Prices follow:

HOGS ADVANCE TO BEST PRICES IN THREE WEEKS

Lighter Supplies Result in Brisk Buying.

Hogs rallied on strong support yesterday and top sales equaled the highest marks in 24 days with the close brisk when reports from the country promised lighter supplies for today. Estimates placed today's run at the five leading markets at 53,000. These points handled 72,000 last Friday.

All interests were on the market from the start, big local houses leading the buying several times during the session. Lights and light butchers were wanted at 10@15c advance. Medium and weighty stock gained 5@10c, with the general average for the session up 10c at $3.20. Fancy 150@211 lb averages topped at $3.40, comparing with a low of $3 on Dec. 31. The one weak factor in the trade was eastern demand, which has been at low ebb the last three days.

Although hog receipts this month are running largest in several months, to date they show only 7 per cent gain over the corresponding period in November and are 20 per cent smaller than a year ago.

Light Cattle Lose 15 to 25c.

Low priced light cattle and some medium grades of steers lacking finish came under the hammer yesterday and lost mostly 15@25c. Top steers and yearlings held about steady, but slow progress was made in all branches, weakness predominating most of the time. Occasional sales of good to choice cattle were uncovered that showed losses of 10@15c.

The quality of the rank and file of offerings was rather plain and sold largely within a range of $4.25@5.50, only a small quota passing $6.00. Armour and Wilson obtained several loads of choice 909@1,130 lb averages at the $7.00 top.

The cattle trade has been very erratic the last few days. Best grades of light steers and yearlings are closing steady with a week ago. Others are weak to 25c lower, with some of the plain quality extremely heavy steers almost back to the low spot of three weeks ago. Almost all of last week's 50c to $1.00 advance in heavy heifers and in-between grades of yearlings has been erased.

Top Lambs Gain 10c.

Trading in lambs progressed slowly because of the recent sinking spell experienced in the wholesale market for carcasses, but with a comparatively light run in the pens, sellers managed to pull the bulk through without much change in prices, while gains of 10c were registered at the top of the list. Eastern houses, while showing more discrimination against the heavy lamb, paid 10c advance and up to $6.35 for top handyweights. Packers and city butchers bought at $6.25 and under.

The trade anticipates a substantial reduction in supplies the remainder of the week. Five western points report 22,000 in sight for today against 39,700 last Friday. The receipts at Chicago so far this month are 20 per cent below a year ago.
